The Commission was appointed in 1908 to make - inventory of the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Scotland from the earliest times to 1707, and to specify those that seem most worthy of preservation. The terms of reference were extended by Royal Warrant dated Jan. I, 1948, to cover the period since 1707 at the Commissioners' discretion. The National Monument Records of Scotland, branch of the Commission housed in the same premises, contains an extensive collection of photographs, drawings and printed books relating to Scottish architecture, which may be consulted by members of the public.

INDEPENDENT BROADCASTING AUTHORITY

70 Brompton Road, S.W. 3 [0I-584-701I]

The Independent Television Authority was created by Act of Parliament in July, 1954 to provide additional television broadcasting services to those provided by the British Broadcasting Corporation. In July, 1972 under the Sound Broadcasting Act, 1972, it was renamed the Independent Broadcasting Authority and its functions were extended to cover the provision of local radio service. The present act, the Independent Broadcasting Authority Act, 1973, consolidates the Television Act, 1964, and the Sound Broadcasting Act, 1972. In 1974 the life of the Authority was extended to July $\mathbf{3 x}$, 1979 . The Authority consists of - Chairman and ten members appointed by the Home Secretary (of whom three make Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland their respective responsibilities) and permanent staff under the Director General. The four main functions of the Authority are to appoint the programme companies; to own and operate the transmitters; to supervise the programmes provided by the contractors and their scheduling; and to control the advertising. The Authority is required to obtain its normal programme supply from programme companies, who pay the Authority rental to enable it to carry out its duties and who operate under contract to the Authority. 15 television programme companies provide programmes in the programme companies providee phare the London ${ }_{14}$ ITV regions (two companies sel contract, one operating at the weekends, the other during the week). There are 19 ILR companies operating in 18 areas (two companies cover the London area). These companies are financed by the sale of advertising time.

CENTRAL OFFICE OF INFORMATION Hercules Road, S.E.I [ox-928-2345]

The Central Office of Information is $\quad$ common service department which produces information and publicity material, and supplies publicity services, for other Government departments which require them. In the United Kingdom it conducts Government display press, television and poster advertising (except for the National Savings Committee), produces and distributes booklets, leaflets, films, television material, exhibitions, photographs and other visual material; and distributes departmental press notices. For the overseas departments it supplies British Information posts overseas with press, radio and television material, booklets, magazines, reference services, films, exhibitions, photographs, display and reading room material; arranges tours in the United Kingdom for official visitors from overseas. Administrative responsibility for the Central Office of Information rests with Civil Service Department Ministers, while the ministers whose departments it serves are responsible for the policy expressed in its work.

BOARD OF INLAND REVENUE  Somerset House, W.C. 2 [01-438 6622]

The Board of Inland Revenue was constituted under the Inland Revenue Board Act, 1849, by the consolidation of the Board of Excise and the Board of Stamps and Taxes. In 1909 the administration of excise duties was transferred to the Board of Customs. The Board of Inland Revenue administers and collects direct taxes-mainly income tax, corporation tax, capital gains tax, capital transfer tax, stamp duty, development land tax and petroleum revenue tax-and advises the Chancellor of the Exchequer on policy questions involving them. The Head Office is in London and there are Inspectors of Taxes offices and Collection offices throughout the United Kingdom. The Department's Valuation Office is responsible for valuing property for tax purposes, for compensation and for compulsory purchase and (in England and Wales) for local rating purposes. In 1975/6 Inland Revenue collected over $618,000,000,000$ tax at cost of approximately $£ 355,000,000$.

> H.M. LAND REGISTRY
> Lincoln's In Fields, W.C. 2 [02-405 3481

The registration of title to land was first introduced in England and Wales by the Land Registry Act, $\mathbf{x} 862$. Many changes have been made to the original system by subsequent legislation and H.M. Land Registry operates today under the Land Registration Acts, 1925 to 197 I . The object of registering title to land is for dealings with it to be made more simple and economical. This is achieved by maintaining a register of land owners whose title is guaranteed by the State and by providing simple forms for the transfer, mortgage and other dealings with real property. Under the Land Registration Act 1966, the voluntary first registration of land in non-compulsory areas was severely curtailed in order to facilitate ma accelerated programme for the extension of the compulsory system to cover all the built-up areas of the country as soon as possible. The intention is that registration of title shall ultimately be universal throughout England and Wales. Nevertheless, a great deal of and was formerly registered voluntarily in nonlcompulsory areas and it is still possible to register building estates, upon certain conditions, throughout the country. A great deal of land in non-compulsory areas is therefore already registered. H.M. Land Registry is administered under the Lord Chancellor by the Chief Land Registrar and the work is decentralized to a number of regional offices. The Chief Land Registrar is also responsible for the Land Charges Department and the Agricultural Credits Department.

LIBRARIES

THE BRITISH LIBRARY

Store Street, W.C.I [0x-636 0755]
The British Library was established on July x , 1973, under the British Library Act, 1972, F to provide, on national scale, comprehensive reierence, lending, bibliographic and other servces based on its vast collections of books, manuscrpts maps, music, periodicals and other material.

The Library was created by bringing together under a management Board a number of national organizations to form three main Divisions. The Reference Division comprises the former library departments of the British Museum including the Newspaper Library at Colindale and Science Reference Library. The Lending Division comprises the former National Lending Library for Science and Technology and the former National Central Library. The Bibliographic Services Division incorporates the British National Bibliography and the (former British Museum) Copyright Receipt Office. There is also a Research and Development Department, and a Central Administration.

The Reference Division contains more than 9,000,000 printed books, about 80,000 Western and 35,000 Oriental manuscripts, and outstanding collections of newspapers, official papers, papyri, charters, seals, maps, music and postage stamps. Admission to the reading rooms for research is by ticket only. The Science Reference Library is the principal public reference library in the United Kingdom for contemporary literature of science and technology, and here no reader's ticket is necessary.
The Lending Division in Yorkshire operates a rapid postal loan or photocopy service for organizations and currently receives about $2,500,000$ requests a year. Individuals should apply through their local libraries. The stock contains some $2,350,000$ volumes of books and periodicals, about $x, 500,000$ documents in microfilm, and large quantities of semi-published materials such as reports, translations and theses.

MONOPOLIES AND MERGERS

 COMMISSIONNew Court, 48 Carey Street, W.C. 2
[01-83x 6 IxI]
The Commission was established under the Monopolies and Restrictive Practices (Inquiry and Control) Act 2948 as the Monopolies and Restrictive Practices Commission and was reconstituted on subsequent occasions. It became the Monopolies and Mergers Commission when the Fair Trading Act, 1973 , came into operation on November 1, 1973. The Commission has the duty of investigating and reporting on questions referred to it in accordance with the Act with respect to (a) the existence or possible existence of monopoly situations not registrable under the Restrictive Trade Practices Act, 1976, which consolidated earlier legislation, and relating to the supply of goods or services to the United Kingdom or part of the United Kingdom or to the supply of goods for export; (b) the transfer of a newspaper or newspaper's assets; (c) the creation or possible creation of a merger situation qualifying for investigation within the meaning of the Act.

In monopoly references (except those "limited to the facts") and in merger references it is the duty of the Commission to report on the effect of the facts which they find on the public interest and to consider and, if they think fit, to recommend the action to be taken to remedy or prevent adverse effects. In addition the Fair Trading Act, 1973, provides for references to the Commission on the general effect on the public interest of specified monopoly or other uncompetitive practices and of restrictive labour practices.

The ethnographical collections are displayed in The Museum of Mankind at 6 Burlington Gardens, W.r. Opening times as above.

The British Museum may be said to date from 1753. when Parliament granted funds to purchase the collections of Sir Hans Sloane and the Harleian manuscripts, and for their proper housing and maintenance. The building (Montague House) was opened in $\mathbf{x 7 5 9}$. The present buildings were erected between 1823 and the present day, and the original collection has increased to its present dimensions by gifts and purchases. The administrative expenses were estimated at $65,030,000$ in 2976-77, and were met by a vote under ${ }^{\circ}$ Museums, Galleries and the Arts". Class $\mathbf{X}$ of the Civil Estimates. The constitution of the British Museum was revised under the terms of the British Museum Act, 1963.
Under the provisions of the British Library Act 1972 and the British Library Act (Appointed Day) Order 1973, the Library Departments of the British Museum were transferred on July 1 , 1973, from the responsibility of the Trustees of the British Museum to that of the British Library Board and became part of the British Library.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM (NATURAL HISTORY

Cromwell Road S.W. 7
[ox-5896323]
Open free on week-days (except New Year's Day, Good Friday, Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and Boxing Day) to 6 , and on Sundays from 2.30 to 6.

The Natural History Museum originates from the natural history departments of the British Museum, Bloomsbury. During the rgth century the natural history collections grew so extensively that it became necessary to find new quarters for them and in 888 I they were moved to South Kensington. The British Museum Act, 1963 , made the Natural History Museum completely indeperdent with its own body of Trustees. The Zoological Museum, Tring, bequeathed by the second Lord Rothschild, has formed part of the Museum since r938. Research workers are admitted to the libraries and study collections by Student's Ticket, applications for which should be made in writing to the Director. There are lectures for visitors in p.m. week-days and lecturers are also available at other times for special parties by arrangement with the Department of Public Services.

The administrative expenses were estimated at C4, 168,000 in $1977-78$.

OFFICE OF THE PARLIAMENTARY COMMISSIONER AND HEALTH SERVICE COMMISSIONER  Church House, Great Smith Street, S.W.I [ox-212 7676]

The Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration is responsible for investigating complaints referred to him by Members of the House of Commons from members of the public who claim to have sustained injustice in consequence of maladministration in connection with administrative action taken by or on behalf of Government Departments. Certain types of action by Departments are excluded from investigation. Actions taken by other public bodies (such as local authorities, the police, the Post Office and nationalised industries) are outside the Commissloner's scope.
The Health Service Commissioners for England, for Scotland and for Wales are responsible for investigating complaints against National Health Service authorities that are not dealt with by those authorities to the satisfaction of the complainant. Complaints can be referred direct by the member of the public who claims to have sustained injustice or hardship in consequence of the failure in w service provided by a relevant body, failure of that body to provide service or in consequence of any other action by that body. Certain types of action are excluded, in particular, action taken solely in consequence of the exercise of clinical judgment. The three offices are initially held by the Parliamentary Commissioner.

Paymaster General's Office  Russell Way, Crawley, West Sussex  [Crawley 27833 ]

The Paymaster General's Office was formed by the consolidation in 1835 of various separate pay departments then existing, some of which dated back at least to the Restoration of $\mathbf{x} 660$. Its function is that of paying agent for Government Departments, other than the Revenue Departments. Most of its payments are made through banks, to whose accounts the necessary transfers are made at the Bank of England. The payment of many types of public service pensions is an important feature of its work. The expenses of the office were estimated at $£ 4,579,000$ for $1977-78$.

OFFICE OF POPULATION CENSUSES AND SURVEYS St. Catherine's House, W C. 2 [OI-242 0262]

The Office of Population Censuses and Surveys was created by a merger in May 1970 of the General Register Office and the Government Social Survey Department. The Registrar General controls the local registration service in England and Wales in the exercise of its registration and marriage duties. Copies of the original registrations of births, stillbirths, marriages and deaths are kept in London. A register of adopted children is held at Titchfield. Central indexes are compiled quarterly and certified copies of entries may be obtained on payment of certain fees. Since 1841 the Registrar General has been responsible for taking the census of population. He also prepares and publishes a wide range of statistics and appropriate commentary relating to population, fertility, births, still-births, marriages, deaths and cause of death, infectious diseases, sickness and injuries. The Registrar General also maintains, at Southport, a central register of persons on doctors' lists, for the purposes of the National Health Service.

SCOTTISH RECORD OFFICE  H.M. General Register House, Edinburgh a [031-556 6585 ]

The Scottish Record Office has a continuous history from the $3^{\text {th }}$ century. Its present home, the General Register House, was founded in 1774 and built to designs by Robert Adam, later modified by Robert Reid. Here are preserved, in accordance with the Treaty of Union, the older public records of Scotland and many collections of local and church records and family muniments. Search Rooms open daily from to 4.45: Saturdays, 9 to 12.30 (Historical Search Room only). Certain groups of records, mainly the more modern records of courts and government departments and the plans collection, are preserved in the Scottish Record Office's auxiliary repository at the West Register House in Charlotte Square-the former St. George's Church which was designed by Robert Reid. The West Register House Search Room opens daily from 9 to 4.45 (Mondays to Fridays). Permanent and special exhibitions of documents are mounted in the Museum at the West Register House, which is open to the public on weekdays during Search Room hours. The National Register of Archives (Scotland), which is I branch of the Scottish Record Office, is based in the West Register House.
Keeper of the Records of Scotland, J. Imrie.

SOCIAL SCIENCE RESEARCH COUNCIL I Temple Avenue, E.C. 4 [oI-353 5252]

The S.S.R.C. was set up by Royal Charter in 1965 for the promotion of social science research. The Council carries out its role by awarding research grants, by initiating research and research contracts, by awarding postgraduate studentships, bursaries and fellowships, and through its research units. In addition the Council provides advice and disseminates knowledge on the social sciences. A list of publications is available from the S.S.R.C. Information Section.
Chairman, D. Robinson.
Secretary, C. S. Smith.

HER MAJESTY'S STATIONERY OFFICE

Atlantic House, Holborn Viaduct, E.C.I [ox-583 $9^{876}$ ]
Sovereign House, Botolph Street, Norwich [0603-2221r]
Her Majesty's Stationery Office was established in 1786 and is the British Government's central organisation for the supply of printing, binding, office supplies, office machinery of all kinds, and published books and periodicals, for the Public Service at home and abroad; it also undertakes duplicating and distributing for Government departments. H.M.S.O. is the publisher for the Government and has bookshops for the sale of Government publications in London, Edinburgh, Cardiff, Manchester, Bristol, Birmingham and Belfast; leading booksellers in the larger towns act as agents; and there are wholesale departments in London, Edinburgh and Belfast from which booksellers may obtain supplies. It is also the agent for the sale of publications of the United Nations and its specialised agencies and for certain other international organisations.
The aggregate net estimate for the department for $1977 / 78$ was f,90,202,000 (an increase of £ $1,653,000$ on the same estimate for 1976/77).
Generally the department obtains its supplies from commercial sources by competitive tender. Forprinting and binding, however, H.M.S.O. hasits own printing works and binderies which produce about one-third of the total requirement, including telephone directories, pension allowance books, national savings certificates and stamps, postal orders, premium bonds, National Insurance stamps, road fund licences and television licences.

Overseas Trade. The Department is responsible for commerical policy and relations with overseas countries and is concerned with economic policies affecting the international position of the United Kingdom. It promotes United Kingdom commercial interests overseas, negotiates on trade and commercial matters and administers U.K. protective tariffs. Under the direction of the British Overseas Trade Board, which was set up in January 1972 and has the Secretary of State for Trade as President, the Department promotes British exports, providing an export information service to industry and commerce, largely through the eight regional offices, and handling Government support for overseas trade fairs.

Shipping and civil aviation. The Department is the sponsor for the United Kingdom shipping and civil aviation industries including the conduct of international negotiations. It is also responsible for the regulation of marine safety. The Department sponsors the British Airways Board, the British Airports Authority and the Civil Aviation Authority, and approves the capital investment of these bodies. In addition, the Department issues policy guidance to the Civil Aviation Authority and administers the Authority's annual grant until such time as full recovery of costs is attained.
Commerce and Industry. The Department is responsible in general for the basic legal framework for the regulation of industrial and commercial enterprises, administering a number of statutes governing company affairs and insolvency. It also holds general responsibility for company law, patent, trade mark and copyright matters, and for all matters affecting insurance. The Department of Trade is also the sponsor Department for tourism and the hotel and travel industries; the newspaper, printing and publishing industries; the film industry and the distributive and service trades.

THE TREASURY  Parliament Street, S.W.x [or-233-3000]

The Office of the Lord High Treasurer has been continuously in commission for well over 200 years. The Lord High Commissioners of H.M. Treasury consist of the First Lord of the Treasury (who is also the Prime Minister), the Chancellor of the Exchequer and five Junior Lords. This Board of Commissioners is assisted at present by the Chief Secretary, Parliamentary Secretary who is the Chief Whip, a Financial Secretary and Minister of State (who are also members of the Government) and by the Permanent Secretary. The Prime Minister and First Lord is not primarily concerned in the day-to-day aspects of Treasury business. The Parliamentary Secretary and the Junior Lords are Government Whips in the House of Commons. The management of the Treasury devolves upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer and, under him, the Chief Secretary, the Financial Secretary and the Minister of State. The Chief Secretary is responsible for the control of public expenditure. The Financial Secretary discharges the traditional responsibility of the Treasury for the largely formal procedure for the voting of funds by Parliament. All Treasury Ministers are concerned in tax matters.

COUNCIL ON TRIBUNALS
6 Spring Gardens, Cockspur Street, S.W. $\mathbf{x}$ [or-930-8601]
The Council on Tribunals, with its Scottish Committee, was constituted in 1958 under the provisions of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act of that year to act as an advisory body in the field of administrative tribunals and statutory inquiries. It now operates under the Tribunals and Inquiries Act, 1971.

Its principal functions are (a) to keep under review the constitution and working of the various tribunals which have been placed under its general supervision by the Act; (b) to report on particular matters relating to any tribunal which may be referred to it by the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Advocate; and (c) to report on matters relating to statutory inquiries which may be similarly referred to it or which the Council may determine to be of special importance. In addition, the Council must be consulted both about rules of procedure for statutory inquiries and before rules are made for any of the tribunals under its general supervision, and it may make general recommendations about appointments to membership of such tribunals. The numerous tribunals which have been placed under the Council's supervision are concerned with - wide variety of matters varying from agriculture and road traffic to independent schools and pensions. They include the main National Health Service and Social Security Tribunals, together with such tribunals as the Civil Aviation Authority, Industrial Tribunals, the Land Tribunal, the Mental Health Review Tribunals, Local Valuation Courts, Rent Tribunals, Rent Assessment Committees and the Transport Tribunal. There is power in the $197 x$ Act to extend the Council's jurisdiction to additional classes of tribunals and inquiries or hearings.

The Scottish Committee of the Council considers Scottish tribunals and matters relating only to Scotland.

The Members of the Council are appointed by the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Advocate. The Scottish Committee is composed partly of members of the Council designated by the Lord Advocate and partly of other persons appointed by him. The Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration is ex officio member both of the Council and of the Scottish Committee.

The Council submits IIII annual report on its proceedings and those of the Scottish Committee to the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Advocate, which must be laid before Parliament.

CORPORATION OF TRINTTY HOUSE  Trinity House, Tower Hill, E.C. 3 [ 0 I-480-66ox]

Trinity House, the first General Lighthouse and Pilotage Authority in the Kingdom, was $\quad$ body of importance when Henry VIII granted the institution its first charter in 1514 . The Corporation the general lighthouse authority for England and Wales, the Channel Islands and Gibraltar, with certain statutory jurisdiction over aids to navigation maintained by local harbour authorities, etc., and by the General Lighthouse Authorities for Scotland and Ireland. It is also responsible for dealing with wrecks dangerous to navigation, except those occurring within port limits or wrecks of H.M. ships. The Lighthouse Service, including those of Scotland and Ireland, is maintained out of the General Lighthouse Fund which is provided from light dues levied on ships using the ports of the United Kingdom and Eire. The Corporation is also the principal pilotage authority in the United Kingdom and is responsible for London and 40 other districts. Certain charitable trusts are administered by the Corporation for the relief of aged or distressed mariners and their dependants. The affairs of the Corporation are managed by Board of nine active Elder Brethren and the Secretary, assisted by Administrative, engineering and marine staff. The active Elder Brethren also act nautical assessors in marine causes in the Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice.

VALUE ADDED TAX TRIBUNALS
Value added tax tribunals for England and Wales are established in London, Cardiff, Birmingham and Manchester, and value added tax tribunals for Scotland and Northern Ireland in Edinburgh and Belfast respectively. A person dissatisfied with a decision of the Commissioners of Customs and Excise relating to certain aspects of value added tax may appeal to a tribunal.
The tribunals are entirely independent of the Commissioners. They are under the supervision of the Council on Tribunals and are intended to determine disputes concerning value added tax speedily and with $\quad$ minimum of formality, and to assist in obtaining uniformity in the application of the tax throughout the United Kingdom.

FOREIGN COMPENSATION COMMISSION

 Alexandra House, Kingsway, W.C. 2The Commission was set up by the Foreign Compensation Act, 1950, to distribute funds paid by foreign governments as compensation for expropriated British property and other losses sustained by British nationals. The Foreign Compensation Act, 1962, provided, inter alia, for the payment out of moneys provided by Parliament of additional compensation in respect of claims arising in connection with certain events in Egypt. The Foreign Compensation Act, 1969, provided, inter alia, for the payment by the Board of Trade to the Commission for distribution of moneys held by the Custodian of Enemy Property being former property of a Baltic State or ceded territory. The Commission has completed the final distribution of the funds contributed by Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Poland, Rumania and Hungary, and the moneys received from the Board of Trade in respect of claims under the U.S.S.R. Distribution Order. The Commission has registered certain British claims in Czechoslovakia and also in the Baltic States and territories annexed by the Soviet Union. The $\mathcal{£ 2 7 , 5 0 0 , 0 0 0}$ compensation paid by the Government of the United Arab Republic under the financial agreement of Fe . 28 , 1959, has been fully distributed. The Foreign Compensation (Egypt) Order in respect of British-owned property affected by Egyptian measures of nationalization between 1960 and $x 964$ came into operation on Feb. x, 1972, and the Commission is in the concluding stages of determining claims thereunder. The Foreign Compensation (German Democratic Republic) (Registration) Order 1975 which came into operation on May 7, 1975, enables certain claims relating to property in the German Democratic Republic and Berlin (East) owned by United Kingdom nationals or relating to debts owed by persons resident in the German Democratic Republic and Berlin (East) to United Kingdom pationals to be registered with, and reported upon by, the Commission. The Foreign Compensation (Romania) Order, 1976, which came into operation on Nov. 1, 1976, makes provision for the determination of claims and distribution of information in connection with the agreement with the Roumanian Government of Jan. 12, x976. ## THE BRITISH COUNCL  ro Spring Gardens, S.W. I

The British Council was established in 1934 and incorporated by Royal Charter in 1940 . Its principal aims are: to promote a wider knowledge of Britain and the English language abroad, to develop closer cultural relations between Britain and other countries and to administer educational programmes which contribute towards the development of many countries. The Council is financed almost entirely by grants (estimated at $£ 38,300,000$ for $1977 / 78$ ) from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Overseas Development. In addition, it disburses sums as agent for the Ministry of Overseas Development ( $£ 28,700,000$ ) and for international organisations, including United Nations agencies ( $£ 4,800,000$ ). The Council's revenue (estimated at $£_{4,000,000 \text { ) includes carnings from }}$ English language teaching and paid educational services.
Chairman, Sir Charles Troughton, C.B.E., M.C., T.D. Director-General, Sir John Llewellyn, K.C.M.G., D.sc.

THE NATIONAL TRUST

40-42 Queen Anne's Gate, Westminster, S. W. I [ox-930 o211]
The National Trust was founded in 1895 by Miss Octavia Hill, Sir Robert Hunter and Canon Rawnsley, their object being to preserve as much as possible the history and beauty of their country for its people. It became an organization incorporated by Act of Parliament ( rga ) to ensure the preservation of lands and buildings of historic interest or natural beauty for public access and benefit. It is independent of the State and relies on the voluntary support of private individuals for working funds. As a charity, however, it is allowed certain tax exemptions.

The Trust is now the largest private landowner in the country and third overall only to the Crown and the Forestry Commission. It protects nearly 500,000 acres, much of it superb hill country in the Lake District, Snowdonia, the Peak District and other National Parks. The Trust also owns and opens to the public some 200 country houses and gardens, and preserves villages, nature reserves, archæological sites and many farms.
In 1965 the Trust launched in campaign to acquire as much possible of the most beautiful stretches of coastline which were under threat from development. The Trust now protects 367 miles of coastline.
The Trust has now over 530,000 members paying an annual subscription and about 100,000 new members are joining each year. Rents, admission fees, legacies and gifts are other important sources of support and income.
The policy of the Trust is determined by the governing body, the Council. Half of its members are appointed by national institutions, such as the British Museum, the National Gallery, the Ramblers' Association and the Royal Horticultural Society; the other half are elected by Trust members at the Annual General Meeting. The Council appoints the Executive Committee, which in turn has established Regional Committees responsible for the management of the Trust's properties.

THE NATIONAL TRUST FOR SCOTLAND

 5 Charlotte Square, Edinburgh -The National Trust for Scotland was founded in 193x, and its objects are similar to those of the National Trust. Like that organization, it is incorporated by Act of Parliament, is dependent for finance upon legacies, donations and the subscriptions of its members, is recognized as a charity for tax exemption purposes, and enjoys certain privileges under various Finance Acts regarding death duties.
The Trust administers about 80 major properties covering over 82,000 acres. Great houses in its care include:- The Binns, West Lothian; Brodick Castle, Isle of Arran; Crathes Castle, Kincardineshire; Culzean Castle, Ayrshire; Falkland Palace, Fife; Hill of Tarvit and Kellie Castle, Fife, and the Castle of Drum, Castle Fraser, Leith Hall and Craigievar Castle, Aberdeenshire.
In the Trust's care are also several noteworthy gardens. Some are associated with the great houses, others are:- Inverewe, in Wester Ross; the re-created 17 th century garden of Pitmedden in Aberdeenshire; and Threave in Kirkcudbrightshire, where a School of Practical Gardening is run; Branklyn Gardens, Perth, and Greenbank, Clarkston, Glasgow.

Among the mountainous country owned by the Trust is the Pass of Glencoe and the mountain group "The Five Sisters of Kintail" and the estate of Torridon in Wester Ross.
Islands in the Trust's care include the St. Kilda group, and Fair Isle. At Bannockburn, Killiecrankie, Glenfinnan and Culloden, the Trust owns sites associated with Scottish history.
Among smaller properties are houses associated with famous Scots:- the birthplaces of Barrie in Kirriemuir, Carlyle in Ecclefechan, and Hugh Miller in Cromarty; and Burns ${ }^{3}$ Bachelors' Club, Tarbolton and Souter Johnnie's House, Kirkoswald in Ayrshire.
At Culross in Fife, and at Dunkeld, Perthshire, the restoration of attractive groups of houses led to the creation of a special fund under which such properties are brought, restored and sold. Under this scheme over roo properties in the coastal burghs of East Fife and elsewhere have been and are being restored. This operation was one of the four pilot projects in the United Kingdom selected for special allocation during European Architectural Heritage Year, 1975 and in 1976 was awarded the European Prize for the Preservation of Ancient Monuments, given by the F.V.S. Foundation of Hamburg.

BRITISH STANDARDS INSTITUTION

British Standards House, a Park Street, W. $\mathbf{I}$
The British Standards Institution is the recognized authority in the U.K. for the preparation and publication of national standards for industrial and consumer products. The Institution originated in 1901, when the Institutions of Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineers, together with the Iron and Steel Institute and the Institution of Naval Architects, formed a joint Engineering Standards Com-mittee-which subsequently became the British Engineering Standards Association. A Royal Charter was granted in 1929 and with the extension of the scope of the organization to include the building, chemical and textile industries its title was later changed to "British Standards Institution ".

The Institution, in consultation with the interests concerned, now prepares standards relating to nearly every sector of the nation's industry and trade. There are over 7,000 British Standards covering specifications of quality, construction dimensions, performance or safety; methods of test and analysis; glossaries of terms; and codes of practice. About 500 new and revised British Standards are published each year.

The Institution represents the U.K. in the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) and other international bodies concerned with harmonizing standards.

British Standards are issued for voluntary adoption though in a number of cases compliance with British Standard is required by legislation. The Institution operates certification schemes under which industrial and consumer products are certified $\quad$ complying with the relevant British Standard and manufacturers satisfying the requirements of such schemes may use the Institution's registered certification marks (known as the "Kitemark" and the "Safety Mark"). Other testing and certification services, together with information services, are available to industry, including help in meeting technical requirements in export markets.

The Institution is financed by voluntary subscriptions, an annual Government grant, the sale of its publications and fees for testing and certification. There are more than 15,000 subscribing members of B.S.I., including public authorities, trade and technical bodies, professional institutions, manufacturers, distributors and large scale purchasers.
Chairman of the Executive Board, Sir Arthur Hetherington, D.s.c.

The Council, originally set up in 1944 = the Council of Industrial Design, is sponsored by the Department of Industry to promote the improvement of design in the products of British industry. Its name was changed in 1972 to reflect its increasing activity in the field of engineering design.

The Council's services to industry are based on teams of engineering field officers and industrial officers who visit companies throughout the United Kingdom to diagnose engineering design problems and to discuss and advise on design policy. The Council's Record of Engineering Design Expertise provides information about consultants, companies, universities and research organizations able to provide companies with technical advice and assistance and the Council's Designer Selection Service can recommend selected industrial designers for specific jobs.

The Council maintains permanent exhibitions of independently selected British goods from Design Index and its Design Centres in London's Haymarket and at 72 St. Vincent Street, Glasgow. Design Index, the Council's unique photographic and sample record of about 8,000 current British products selected for their good design, can also be consulted at the Design Centres.

Other services include annual award schemes for consumer and contract goods, engíneering products and components, and medical and motor vehicle equipment; training courses and conferences for retail staff, manufacturers and managers; publications, including the monthly magazines Design and Engineering; a slide loan library; and press and information services.
Chairman, The Viscount Caldecote, D.s.c. Director, K. Grant.
Chairman of Scottish Committee, W. G. Cowan. Chief Executive, Scottish Committee, R. Clark.

THE LONDON CLEARING BANKS

Committee of London Clbaring Bankers (1821), so Lombard Street, E.C. 3

The Committee consists of the Chairmen of Barclays, Coutts, Lloyds, Midland, National Westminster, and Williams & Glyn's and meets regularly to discuss matters of common interest. It is the body through which the Bank of England communicates official policy to the banks and through which the banks may present their views to the Bank of England and the Treasury. Secretary-General, P. J. Nicholson.

Bankers' Automated Clearing Services, Ltd. 3 De Havilland Road, Edgware, Middlesex
Bankers' Automated Clearing Services is a company wholly owned by the London Clearing Banks. Its function is to receive money transfers recorded on magnetic tape and to distribute them to the appropriate bank. Nearly all standing orders in Great Britain are interchanged through BACS as is a substantial volume of direct debits originated by non-banking organizations for payments of rates, insurance premiums and hire purchase payments. Credits are also received on magnetic tape, mainly for payment of salaries and pensions.
Managing Director, D. J. Pyne.

> Bankers' Clearing House to Lombard Street, E.C. 3

The Clearing System came into being in London during the second half of the r8th century and the London Bankers' Clearing House has served as a pattern for the Clearing Houses that have been established since throughout the world.

Two Cheque Clearings are operated each business day. The Town Clearing enables cheques of $£ 5,000$ and over to be cleared the same day, provided that such cheques are paid into and drawn on one of the hundred Clearing Bank branches, designated as Town Clearing branches, situated within a half-mile radius of the Clearing House. The General Clearing handles cheques which cannot be passed through the Town Clearing. On an average day, $4,100,000$ cheques with atotal value of $\mathcal{L} 8,600$ million are exchanged and paid through these two clearings. Inter-branch clearings are dealt with separately by each Bank.

A Credit Clearing is also operated. The daily average for this clearing, including work passed through the Bankers' Automated Clearing Service - 1,179,000 items with intal value of $£ 220$ million.

At the end of the day each bank works out the net balance resulting from its transactions in that day's Town Clearing, the previous day's General Clearing and Credit Clearing and B.A.C.S. output and such differences as need to be adjusted. This net balance is either credited to or deducted from the bank's own account at the Bank of England. Chief Inspector, S. C. Veal.
Deputy Inspector, E. J. A. Webb.

PREMIUM SAVINGS BONDS

One of the most popular forms of saving in the United Kingdom is through Premium Savings Bonds. These bonds are United Kingdom Government security and were first introduced on November 1, I956. Instead of earning interest, however, each bond offers to its holder the chance of winning money prize in a prize draw. Bonds are issued in values ranging from $\mathcal{L} 5$ (the minimum purchase) to $£ 500$, and may be purchased in multiples of $£_{5}$; each £x buys one bond unit, which has one chance in each prize draw.

Prizes are paid from a fund formed by the interest, at present $5^{\frac{5}{8}}$ per cent. per annum, on each bond eligible for the draw. A bond becomes eligible for the draw three clear calendar months following the month of purchase and goes into every subsequent draw whether or not it has won - prize until the end of the month in which it is repaid. Bonds belonging to deceased bondholder will remain eligible for all Prize Draws held in the month of death and in the following iz calendar months, provided they have not been repaid earlier. They will then become ineligible for all further draws. These terms also apply to bonds purchased before August 1, 1960 (Series "A"). Prizes range in value from $£ 5,000$ to £25, a single prize of $£, 100,000$ and a second prize of $£ 25,000$ each month, one of $£ 50,000$ and 25 of fx,ooo each week, the winning numbers being selected by the electronic random number indicator equipment-usually called "ERNIE". Winning numbers are printed monthly in the London Gazette.
It is estimated that by the end of June, 1977, bonds to the value of $£ 2,157,737,96$ had been sold. Of these $£ 941,352,716$ had been cashed, leaving $£\{, 216,385,245$ still invested. After the draws in July, I977, $34,529,697$ prizes, totalling $£ 594,789,825$ had been distributed since the inception of the Premium Savings Bond Scheme.

SAVINGS BANKS

National Savings Bank.-On December 3x, 1976, there were approximately $19,500,000$ active accounts with the sum of $£ 1,534,414,7^{87}$ due to depositors in Ordinary accounts and $\mathcal{£} 665,18$, 036 in Investment accounts. Interest on National Savings Bank Ordinary deposits is allowed at 5 per cent. per annum. A higher rate of interest is paid on deposits in National Savings Bank Investment accounts (the current rate can be ascertained at any Savings Bank Post Office). A depositor may have more than one account in either series. With certain exceptions, the total balance in the Ordinary account is subject to limit of $£ x 0,000$ and the balance that may be held in an Investment account is $£ 50,000$. On Dec. 31, 1976, the average amount held in Ordinary accounts was $£ 78 \cdot 68$; in Investment accounts, approximately $£^{2} 790^{\circ} 00$.

BRITISH SAVINGS BONDS

$8 \frac{1}{2} \%$ British Savings Bonds (Jubilee Issue) are a guaranteed state security. They cost $£_{5}$ each and may be held up to maximum of $£\{10,000$. Bonds acquired by inheritance do not count towards this limit. They may be held by individuals solely or jointly; by trustees; by charitable, friendly and provident societies; by clubs and funds, by corporate bodies generally. Interest is earned at the rate of $8 \frac{1}{2} \%$ year, provided they are held for minimum period of 6 months. The interest which is payable half yearly is taxable but tax is not deducted at source. The value of British Savings Bonds remains constant and they may be encashed at par on one month's notice. They will be redeemable at the rate of $£_{104}$ for $£ x o m$ of Bonds on the next interest date after 5 years have passed from the purchase date. The $\mathscr{E}_{4}$ capital bonus is exempt from United Kingdom Tax. British Savings Bonds may be bought at any Post Office transacting Savings Bank business, Trustee Savings and other Banks.

NATIONAL SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

The amount, including accrued interest, remaining to the credit of investors in National Savings Certificates on March 31, 1977 was approx. $£ 3,576 \cdot 36 \mathrm{~m}$. In $1976-77, £ 1,259-57 \mathrm{~m}$. was subscribed and $£ 429-10 \mathrm{~m}$. (excluding interest) was repaid. NoteCertificates of the current Fourteenth Issue are avallable in denominations of $1,2,3,4,5,10,20,50,100,200$ and 500 units, but are subject to a minimum purchase of 5 units ( $£ 5$ ). Certificates of the Index-Linked Retirement Issue may be purchased in demominations of $1,2,5,10,20$ and 50 units.

SAVE AS YOU EARN

The "Save As You Earn" Scheme was brought into operation on October x, 1969. A Second Issue was introduced on July 1,1974 , and EThird Issue (" Index-linked ") was brought in on July $x, 1975$. Any individual aged 16 years or over may participate by making regular monthly payments with i minimum of $£ 4$ and a maximum of $£ 20$.

Savings may be contributed by deductions from pay, by standing order on a bank or National Giro or by cash payments at most post offices.

Indexation applies only to completed savings contracts, except that contracts terminated by the death of the saver will attract indexation if repaid after the first year. At the end of five years, the repayment value of completed contracts will be the total contributions plus any increase due to the monthly linking of contributions to the Retail Price Index. Completed contracts which are not withdrawn will qualify for further index-linking and It bonus equal to two monthly contributions at the end of seven years.

Savers who wish to stop payments will be able to withdraw the total sum saved, but there cannot be partial withdrawals. Tax-free compound interest will be paid at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum amounts withdrawn after the first year.

By the end of June 1977, 662,472 live SAYE contracts remained registered with the Department for National Savings, with in total monthly commitment to save of $£ 7,085,648$. The total payments received since October I, 1969, amounted to £262,101,506.

> Theobalds Road, W.C. I Set up on June 16 , 1965 , under the Law Commissions Act. 1965, to make proposals to the Government for the examination of the Law and for its revision where it is unsuited for modern requirements, obscure, or otherwise unsatisfactory. It recommends to the Lord Chancellor programmes for the examination of different branches of the law and suggests whether the examination should be carried out by the Commission itself or by some other body. The Commission is also responsible for the preparation of Consolidation and Statute Law Revision Bills.

BRITISH FORCES BROADCASTING SERVICE

King's Buildings, Dean Stanley Street, London S.W.I

The Service came into existence during the early partt of the Second World War to entertain, inform and to maintain the morale of the Serviceman in the field. No exact date can be given for the inception of the Service because, in answer to the need, special broadcasting for the Services overseas began in many different places almost simultaneously during 1942.

In 1060 B.F.B.S. was reorganised; a Director was appointed and Head Office was created in London. In addition to directing the activities of the Service Head Office also produces every week some 30 hours of radio programmes featuring leading personalities in sport, music and entertainment, which the stations overseas cannot produce themselves. These programmes are recorded and dubbed in London and flown to the B.F.B.S. stations abroad, as well as to H.M. Ships in many parts of the world, and for the benefit of unaccompanied personnel serving in places such as Belize.
B.F.B.S. Television, aservice combining programmes from all three channels in the U.K., started at Celle, near Hannover on September 18 , 1975. When the full transmitter chain is completed, it will serve all the main concentrations of personnel and their families in West Germany.

The Combined Services Entertainment section of B.F.B.S. organises stage shows, about 45 of which are sent out every year to tour Northern Ireland and Commands overseas.

The staff of B.F.B.S. are all civilian, professional broadcasters and engineers. The Service is administered by the Army i. behalf of the other two Services and is financed from Ministry of Defence funds. Director, I. J. Woolf.

SERVICE SALARIES AND PENSIONS

The military salaries for Service men and women, effective from April 1 , 1975, were increased with effect from April $x, x 976$ by $\quad$ pay supplement of $£ 6$ a week, subject to limit on individual earnings of ©8,500 year; and with effeci from April 1, 1977 by in further pay supplement of 5 per cent. of total earaings, subject to 1 minimum of $£ 2 \cdot 50$ ■ week and maximum of $f 4 i$ week. On both occasions there were proportionately smaller increases for juniors and apprentices. The rates of pay shown below are those introduced April 1,1975 and do not include the pay supplements. The Review Body on Armed Forces Pay, who recommended the payment of the supplements in their Fifth and Sixth Reports, were concerned with ranks up to and including that of Brigadier, whilst the salaries Major-Generals (or equivalent rank) and above, an also the salaries of medical and dental officers, -1 subject to separate review. Since 1970 the determin ing factor of the Review Body's recommendation has been the relation of forces' salaries to civilia carnings by job evaluation. On these occasior their recommendations were made in the context the Government's incomes policy as set out in "Th Attack on Inflation" and "The Attack on Inflation The Second Year ". The undermentioned salari for the Women's Services reflect equal pay for equ: work and conditions but because the X-factor fc women is lower than that for men, women's rate approximate to 95.45 per cent. of the rates for mer

Charges for Married Quarters

Nore-A major change in the Armed Forces pension arrangements was made in 1975 with the introduction, from April 1, of "preserved" pensions to comply with the appropriate provisions of the Social Security Act 1973. Those who leave the Forces having served at least five years after the age of 21 , but not long enough to qualify for the appropriate immediate pension, now quallify for a preserved pension and terminal grant both of which are payable at age 60 . The tax-free resettlement grants shown below are payable on release to those who qualify for a preserved pension and who have completed 9 years service from age 21 (officers) or 12 years from age 18 (other ranks)

THE METHODIST CHURCH

The Methodist Church is goverred primarily by the Conference, secondarily by the District Synods (held in the autumn and the spring), consisting of all the ministers and of selected laymen in each district, over which a chairman is appointed by the Conference; and thirdly by the circuit meeting of the ministers and lay officers of each circuit. The authority of both Synods and Circuit Meetings is subordinate to the Conference, which has the supreme legislative and judicial power in Methodism.
President of the Conference (July 1977-78), Rev.
B. A. Shaw, B.A.

Vice-President of the Conference (July 1977-78), Dr. Esther M. Waterhouse.
Secretary of the Conference, Rev. K. G. Greet, D.D., - Central Buildings, Westminster, S.W.I.

President Deginate ( $197^{8-79), ~ R e v . ~ D . ~ E n g l i s h, ~ M . A . ~}$ Vice-President Designate ( $197^{8-79 \text { ), Mrs. A.H. Lenton. }}$

Statistics.-In 1975 in association with the Conference in Great Britain there were 3,865 Ministers, 16,962 Löcal Preachers, 557,249 Members in 734 Circuits. Statistics are published triennially.

The World Methodist Council, founded $\mathbf{x 8 8}$, reorganized 195\%, associates Methodism throughout the world in 82 countries.
The Methodist Church was founded in 1739 by the two brothers Wesley and rapidly spread throughout the British Isles and to America before 1770. ## THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

His Holiness Pope Paul vi (Giovanni Battista Montini), Roman Pontiff, bom in Concesio, Italy, September 26, 1897; ordained priest May 29, 1920; nominated Archbishop of Milan, November 1, 1954; Cardinal, December 15, 1958; elected Pope June 21, 1963; crowned June 30, 1963.
The Sacred College of Cardinals, when complete, consisted of six Cardinal Bishops, fifty Cardinal Priests and fourteen Cardinal Deacons. This number was fixed by Pope Sixtus V in 1586 . Pope John XXIII created 52 new Cardinals. The present Pope created 27 new Cardinals on Feb. 22, 1965, 27 on June 26, 1967, 33 on Apr. 28, 1969, 30 on March 5, 1973, 20 on May 24, 1976, 4 on June 27, 1977. In July 1977 there were 137 Cardinals. The Cardinals are advisers and assistants of the Sovercign Pontiff and form the supreme council or Senate of the Church. On the death of the Pope they elect his successor. The assembly of the Cardinals at the Vatican for the election of a new Pope is known af the Conclave in which, in complete seclusion, the Cardinals elect by secret ballot; a two-thirds majority is necessary before the vote Erim be accepted, final. When a Cardinal receives the necessary votes the Dean of the Sacred College formally asks him if he will accept election and the name by which he wishes to be known. On his acceptance of the office the Conclave is dissolved and the First Cardinal Deacon announces the election to the assembled crowd in St. Peter's Square. On the first Sunday or Holyday following the election the new Pope is crowned with the tiara, the triple crown, the symbol of his supreme spiritual authority. A new pontificate is dated from the coronation.

FORMS of ADDRESS: Cardinal, "His Eminence Cardinal ..." (if an Archbishop, "His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of ..."); Archbishop "The Most Rev. Archbishop of ...": Bishop, "The Rt. Rev. the Bishop of ..."

PATRON SAINTS

St. George, Patron Saint of England.-St. George is believed to have been born in Cappadocia, of Christian parents, in the latter part of the 3 rd century and to have served with distinction as a soldier under the Emperor Diocletian, including a visit to England on a military mission. When the persecution of Christians was ordered, St. George sought a personal interview to remonstrate with the Emperor and after a profession of faith resigned his military commission. Arrest and torture followed and he was martyred at Nicomedia on April 23, 303, a day ordered to kept in remembrance as a national festival by the Council of Oxford in $\mathbf{2 2 2 2}$, although it was not until the reign of Edward III that he was made patron saint of England. His connection with a dragon seems to date from the close of the 6th century and to be due to the transfer of his remains from Nicomedia to Lydda, close to the scene of the legendary exploit of Perseus in rescuing Andromeda and slaying the sea monster, credit for which became attached to the Christian martyr.

St. David, Patron Saint of Wales.-St. David is believed to have been born near the beginning and to have died towards the end of the 6th century. St. David was an eloquent preacher, who founded the monastery at Menevia, now St. David's. He became the patron of Wales, but there is no record of any papal Canonization before $118 x$. His annual festival is observed on March $\mathbf{x}$.

St. Andrew, Patron Saint of Scotland.-St. Andrew, one of the Christian Apostles and brother of Simon Peter was born at Bethsaida on the Lake of Galilee and lived at Capernaum. He preached the Gospel in Asia Minor and in Scythia along the shores of the Black Sea and became the patron saint of Russia. It is believed that he suffered crucifixion at Patras in Achaea, on a crux decussala (now known as St. Andrew's Cross) and that his relics were removed from Patras to Constantinople and thence to St. Andrews, probably in the 8th century, since which time he has been the patron saint of Scotland. The festival of St. Andrew is held on November 30 , a church festival indicated in the calendar by red letters.

St. Patrick, Patron Saint of Ireland.-St. Patrick was born in England about 389 and was carried off to Ireland as slave about sixteen years later, escaping to Gaul at the age of 22. He was ordained deacon at Auxerre and having been consecrated Bishop in 432 was despatched to Wicklow to reorganize the Christian communities in Ireland. He founded the see of Armagh and introduced Latin into Ireland as the language of the Church. He died in $46 x$ and his festival is celebrated on March 17.

THE CENTENARIES OF 1978

The earlier part of 1878 was again taken up with the Eastern Question. The Russians continued to approach Constantinople; they captured Sofia on January 3, and advanced on Adrianople, and on January so they took the Shipka Pass. In England, the attention of the Government was concentrated on Turkey, while, to quote Whitaker's Almanack, " numerous excited meetings were held in London and the provinces". Many Cabinet meetings were held, at which divisions were apparent. On Jan. 23; the Fleet was ordered to Constantinople, and though this order was countermanded on the following day, Lord Carnarvon, the Colonial Secretary, and Lord Derby, the Foreign Secretary, both tendered their resignations, the former for the second time within a month. He persisted with his decision, but Lord Derby was persuaded, for the time being, to remain in office. Meanwhile, the House of Commons approved a vote of credit for 66,000,000.

The Fleet was finally dispatched, and anchored in the Sea of Marmora on Feb. 13. A military armistice had been signed by the Russians and Turks, and in negotiating a treaty the Russians threatened an ultimatum if Turkish signatures were delayed. On March 3 the Treaty of San Stefano was indeed signed, but its terms were not yet known. Austria suggested I Conference of Powers, which the British Government accepted, provided the terms of the treaty were divulged to the Powers. Russia decided to accept this condition, and the provisions of the treaty came to light. As they imposed severe penalties on Turkey, including the creation of an enlarged Bulgaria, with ports on the Aegean, the state of tension continued.

Lord Derby finally resigned on March 28 and was succeeded as Foreign Secretary by Lord Salisbury. The latter immediately issued a circular to the Powers, demanding that the Treaty of San Stefano should be submitted to the judgement of Europe, 1 course to which Russia, after complicated discussions, finally consented. The Congress of Berlin, attended by Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury, and with Bismarck in the chair, sat from June 13 to July 13 , and brought about considerable modifications to the Treaty of San Stefano, in particular with respect to the plan for Bulgaria. As incidents of the settlement, Britain annexed Cyprus, where the Union Jack was hoisted on July 14, and Austria acquired Bosnia. Sir Garnet Wolseley was appointed Governor of Cyprus.
Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury were enthusiastically received on their return to London, bringing back, as the former said, "peace with honour", phrase which was to be echoed by another Prime Minister sixty years later in somewhat less propitious circumstances when Mr. Neville Chamberlain returned from Munich. Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury both received the Garter, an honour which the Prime Minister had declined earlier in the year.

Continued fears of Russian pressure towards India led indirectly to war in Afghanistan during the year. Shere Ali, the Amir of Afghanistan, had shown himself unwilling to accept I British mission at Cabul, but in July $\begin{gathered}\text { Russian mission arrived and }\end{gathered}$ wu duly welcomed, signing a convention with the Amir. The Viceroy of India, Lord Lytton, exponent of the forward policy, determined that a British mission should be received. He dispatched II without the British Government's approval, but the Amir refused it entry into Afghanistan. An ultimatum to the Amir produced no satisfactory wowr min war began, General Roberts achieving a notable victory at Pelwar Kotal $\mathrm{E}^{2}$ December a and 3 .

Towards the end of the year, the consequences of forward policy were also apparent in South Africa. Sir Bartle Frere, the High Commissioner, persuaded the Government at home, after much discussion, to send out additional troops, and on Dec. II he sent an ultimatum to the Zulus. This was disregarded, and war broke out early in the New Year.

Victor Emmanuel, the first King of united Italy, died in January, and in the following month Pope Pius IX, who had held the Papacy for thirty-two years, died at the age of eighty-six, and was succeeded by Cardinal Pecci, under the name of Leo XIII. Several attempts were made during the year to assassinate crowned monarchs, the German Emperor and the Kings of Italy and Spain all being attacked; the octogenarian Emperor of Germany was shot at twice by Socialists in Berlin, and on the second occasion was seriously injured, the Crown Prince acting for some time - Regent. The attempts gave Bismarck opportunity to strengthen his campaign against the Socialists. He dissolved the Reichstag and the newly-elected body proved more Conservative. Towards the end of the year, Bismarck began negotiations with the Pope in an attempt to settle his differences with the Roman Catholic Church.

In Paris, a highly successful international exhibition was opened on June $\quad$ by the President of the Republic, Marshal MacMahon.

Three great disasters at sea occurred during the year. On March 34 the training ship, H.M.S. Euridyce, foundered off the Isle of Wight in I squall, with the loss of 330 lives, mostly cadets. On May 3x, while the German fleet was proceeding down the Channel the Grosse Kurfïrst collided with her sister ship, the König Wilheim and sank, more than 300 men losing their lives, and on Sept. 3 there was 1 II even worse disaster when the pleasure steamer, Princess Alice, was struck by the Bywell Castle on the Thames near Wool wich, the loss of lives amounting to nearly 700.

Cleopatra's Needle, which had remained at Ferrol after being rescued from the Bay of Biscay in the previous year, was towed to London by a large tug and arrived at the East India Docks on Jan. 23. It was finally erected on the Embankment on Sept. 1a when among the objects placed beneath the obelisk was a copy of the current edition of Whitaker's Almanack.

On January $\mathbf{x y}$, the dismantling of Temple Bar, before its removal from its site at the entrance to the City, was completed. In October the Metropolitan Board of Works agreed to install electric lighting on the Embankment and it was first used experimentally on Dec. 13 .

Queen Victoria suffered a great sorrow in the death of her second daughter Princess Alice, the Grand Duchess of Hesse-Darmstadt. Several of the latter's children contracted diphtheria, and one of them had died before Princess Alice herself succumbed to the disease, dying at the age of 35 on Dec. 14, the anniversary of the death of the Prince Consort.

During the year Robert Louis Stevenson's first book, An Inland Voyage, was published. Other books included Walter Pater's best known work, Marius the Epicurean, Swinburne's second series of Poems and Ballads, and Thomas Hardy's The Return of the Nasive. John Richard Green published the first of his four-volume History of the English People, and Lecky's History of England in the Eighteenth Century was also begun during the year. H. M. Stanley's Through the Dark Continent, ai account of his crossing of Africa, had 1 popular triumph. H.M.S. Pinafore, the first great success among the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, wir produced during the year.

Increase of the People

Mid－year estimates of the future total population of the United Kingdom are based on estimates by the Registrars General of the total population at mid－1973．The projections have been prepared by the Government Actuary＇s Department in consul－ tation with the Registrars General．It is assumed in their projections below that，at ages under 60 for males and 70 for females，death rates will decline over the period of the projection until after 40 years， they are three－quarters of present rates．Above these ages the assumed improvement becomes proportion－ ately smaller as age advances until they vanish at ages over 90 ．Annual live births implied in the projections are 753，000 in mid－1973／74，735，000 in 1974／75 and 732,000 in 1975／76 followed by gradual increase in birth and fertiliey rates until 1983／84 When the number of births reaches 954,000 ． The projection for $2001 / 02$ is 845,000 and for $20 \times 2$／ $20 \times 3$ is 950,000 ．The ratio of male to female births is taken as $y \cdot 06$（N．Ireland $\mathrm{x} \cdot 07$ ）throughout and allowance has been made for a net outward mi－ gration of 19,000 in $1973 / 74$ rising to 50,000 year from 1978 onwards．

LOCAL GOVERNMENT IN ENGLAND AND WALES

The Local Government Act, 1972 provided for the reorganisation of local government in England (outside Greater London whose local government was reorganised in 1965) and Wales. On April I, 1974 the former county, county borough, and county district councils were abolished. Two tiers of new local authorities, county and district councils, covering metropolitan and non-metropolitan counties and districts, replaced them.

Structure and Areas in England

Six metropolitan counties cover the main conurbations outside Greater London: Tyne and Wear, West Midlands, Merseyside, Greater Manchester, West Yorkshire and South Yorkshire. They range in population from $1,200,000$ (Tyne and Wear) to 2,800,000 (West Midlands). Each metropolitan county extends to the edge of the general continuously built-up area of the conurbation. Thus each of the major conurbations outside London has now one local authority to administer strategic functions over the whole conurbation.

The six metropolitan counties are divided into 36 metropolitan districts. These range in population from 173,000 (South Tyneside) to 1, roo,000 (Birmingham). Most of them have a population of over 200,000 and most include a former county borough. They form compact areas.
There are 39 non-metropolitan counties ranging in population from 110,000 (Isle of Wight) and 283,000 (Northumberland) to $1,400,000$ (Kent). These counties have generally been formed by combining former administrative counties and associated county boroughs, i.e. they are based on geographical counties. There are, however, three completely new non-metropolitan counties: Avon, Cleveland, and Humberside. Some former counties have been merged to form Cumbria (Cumberland, Westmorland and the Furness area of Lancashire); Hereford and Worcester; Cambridgeshire (Huntingdon and Peterborough and Cambridgeshire and Isle of Ely); and Leicestershire (Leicestershire and Rutland). Smaller boundary adjustments have been made between, e.g. Berkshire and Oxfordshire, Buckinghamshire and Berkshire, and Hampshire and Dorset.
Each of the non-metropolitan counties is divided into non-metropolitan districts, of which there are 296. These districts have been formed generally by the amalgamation of former county districts to cover areas with populations broadly between 60,000 and 100,000 . About one third of the nonmetropolitan districts, however, have populations above this range because of the need to avoid dividing large towns. Some districts, mainly in sparsely populated areas, have populations below 60,000 though only 14 have populations below 40,000 (as compared with three quarters of the $\mathbf{x , 2 1 0}$ former authorities).

Permanent Local Government Boundary Commissions for England and Wales have been set up to keep the areas and electoral arrangements of the new local authorities under review.

Constitution and Elections

The new county and district councils consist of directly elected councillors. The broad range of sizes of councils are: county councils $60-100$ members; metropolitan district councils $50-80$ members; non-metropolitan district councils $3^{-}$ 60 members. The councillors elect annually one of their number as chairman. There are no aldermen under the new system, though councils may give past councillors the title "honorary alderman". The title carries no right to sit on the council.

All the new authorities were elected en bloc in $r 973$ (as "shadow " authorities until they took on their functions on April 1, 1974). After transitional period all councillors were elected for a term of four years. All county councils were elected en bloc in 1977 and every four years thereafter. One third of the councillors for each ward of each metropolitan district were elected from 1975 in each of the three years between county council elections. Non-metropolitan district councils can choose whether to have elections on the county council or metropolitan district council basis. Most of their electoral areas needed revision and the next elections were therefore held in 1976 on a whole council basis. If they choose whole council elections these will be held in the mid-year between county council elections. If they choose elections by thirds, for geographical reasons it may not be practicable to arrange for elections by thirds in every ward. Local elections will normally be held on the first Thursday in May.

Greater London (See below) is not affected by reorganisation. Elections to local authorities in Greater London are, however, to be brought into line with the rest of England so that the normal term of office for councillors on the G.L.C. and the London Borough Councils will be four years instead of three. Greater London Council elections took place in the same year as county council elections in 1977 and will take place every fourth year thereafter. Aldermen ceased to sit as members of the G.L.C. after the 1977 elections. The next London Borough Council elections will be held in May 1978. Aldermen will cease to sit as members of London Borough Councils after the 1978 elections.

Internal Organisation and Local Government Services in England

The council are the final decision making body within any authority. They are free to great extent to make their own internal organisational arrangements. Normally questions of major policy are settled by the full council, while the administration of the various services is the responsibility of committees of members. Day to day decisions are delegated to the council's officers, who act within the policies laid down by the members.

Many councils have set up corporate management teams of the Chief Executive and chief officers. Such teams consider the operations of their authority as a whole, rather than dealing with each service separately, as was often the case in the past.

Local authorities are empowered or required by various Acts of Parliament to carry out functions in their areas. The legislation concerned comprises public general Acts and " local" Acts which local authorities have promoted as private bills. Functions are divided everywhere between two tiers of authorities, though their allocation within the metropolitan areas is somewhat different from outside, the metropolitan district councils exercising more functions than the non-metropolitan district councils.

Responsibility for the main local government functions is allocated as follows (though responsible authorities may involve other authorities in the provision of certain of their services through agency arrangements):

County councils: Strategic planning (e.g. structure plans; major projects); traffic, transport and highways; police; fire service; consumer protection (other than hygiene); refuse disposal; smallholdings.

Non-metropolitan county and metropolitan district councils: Education; social services; libraries.

District Councils: Local planning: housing; highways (maintenance of certain urban roads and offstreet car parks); building regulations; environmental health; refuse collection; cemeteries and crematoria.

Concurren! (county and district councils); Recreation (e.g. parks, playing fields, swimming pools); museums; encouragement of the arts.

The sewerage and sewage disposal functions of local authorities have been transferred to 9 new water authorities and the Welsh National Water Development Authority. Water authorities, however, $m$ expected to make agreements whereby the new district councils discharge sewerage functions on im agency basis. Apart from these functions, the water authorities are responsible for water supply and conservation; river pollution control and river management; fisheries; land drainage; and use of water space for recreation and amenity purposes.

The personal health functions of local authorities have been transferred to area health authorities, whose are the same as non-metropolitan and Welsh counties and metropolitan districts. The area health authorities will work within strategies formulated by regional health authorities. They will work in close collaboration with local education, social services and environmental health authorities.

London.-The Greater London Area embraces the old counties of London and Middlesex (except Potter's Bar, Staines and Sunbury-on-Thames) and parts of the neighbouring counties of Essex, Herts., Kent and Surrey and the whole of the county boroughs of Croydon, East Ham and West Ham.

For those functions which need to be considered for the whole of the Area, the Greater London Council is responsible; such functions as traffic, major roads and overall planning. All other matters are the concern of the 32 London borough councils; the City of London, besides retaining its previous functions, has the powers of a London borough.

Parishes

The existing rural parishes in England are generally not affected by local government reorganisation except that the powers of parish councils have been extended and $\square$ few of them have been divided by the boundaries of new counties and districts. 300 former small borough and urban district councils have become parish councils with the same powers mother parish councils.

Parishes with 200 or more electors must generally have parish councils, and about three-quarters of the parishes have councils. A parish council comprises at least 5 members, the number being fixed by the district council. All parishes have parish meetings, comprising the electors of the parish.

Parish councll functions include; allotments; arts and crafts; community halls, recreational facilities (e.g. open spaces, swimming pools); cemeteries and crematoria; and many minor functions. They must also be given an opportunity to comment on planning applications. They may, like county and district councils, spend up to a $2 p$ rate for the general benefit of the parish. They precept on the district councils for their rate funds. Parish councils will be elected, after I transitional period, every four years, in the year in which the local district councillor is elected.

Civic dignities

District councils may petition for a royal charter granting borough status to the district. In boroughs the chairman of the council is the mayor. The status "city" with or without the right to call the mayor "Lord Mayor " may also be granted by letters patent. Parish councils may call themselves "town councils", in which case their chairman is the "town mayor".
Charter trustees are established for those former boroughs which are too large to have parish counclls and are situated in districts without city or borough status. The charter trustees are the district councillors representing the former borough and they elect a mayor, continue civic tradition, and look after the charters, insignia and civic plate of the former borough.

Local Government Elections

Generally speaking, all British subjects or citizens of the Republic of Ireland of 18 years or over, resident on the qualifying date in the area for which the election is being held are entitled to vote at local government elections. A register of electors is prepared and published annually by local electoral registration officers.

A returning officer has the overall responsibility for an election. Voting takes place at polling stations, arranged by the local authority and under the supervision of presiding officer specially appointed for the purpose. Candidates, who are subject to various statutory qualifications and disqualifications designed to secure that they are suitable persons to hold office, must be nominated by electors for the electoral area concerned

Local Commissioners for England and Wales

There now exist Local Commissioners for England and Wales whose duty it is to investigate complaints of maladministration in many aspects of local government.

Wales

Wales, including the former Monmouthshire, has been divided into eight counties; Gwynedd; Clwyd; Powys; Dyfed; West, Mid and South Glamorgan; and Gwent. They range in population from 99,000 (Powys) to 536,000 (Mid-Glamorgan). There are 37 new districts in Wales, many of those in the less populated parts reflecting the areas of former Welsh counties. Their populations range from 18,000 (Radnor) to 285,000 (Cardiff).
The arrangements for Welsh counties and districts are generally similar to those for English nonmetropolitan counties and districts. There are some differences in functions: Welsh district councils have refuse disposal - well mefuse collection functions and they may provide on-street well - off-street car parks with the consent of the county council. A few districts have also been designated as library authorities.

In Wales parishes have been replaced by communities. Unlike England, where many areas are not in any parish, communities have been established for the whole of Wales; there is one for each Welsh parish, county borough, borough or urban district (or part where the former area is divided by $I$ new boundary). Community meetings may be convened as and when desired. Community councils already exist where there were formerly parish councils, and also in nearly all the former boroughs and urban districts, and further councils may be established at the request of the community meeting. Community councils have broadly the same range of powers as English parish councils. Community councillors are elected en bloc same basis parish councillors in England, i.e. at the same time $\quad \|$ district council election and for a term of four years.

Local Government Finance

Local government is financed from various sources. (1) Rates.- Levied by district councils and in London by the City Corporation and the London boroughs. Sums required by the Greater London Council and by county councils are included in the rates levied by London boroughs and district councils. Rates are levied by a poundage tax on the rateable value of property in the area of the rating authority. Under the General Rate Act, x967, rating authorities are required to charge a lower rate in the pound on dwellings than on property generally in their area. Differentials of ${ }_{18 \frac{1}{2} p}$ for England and 36p for Wales were prescribed for 1975-76, 1976-77 and 1977-78. New valuation lists, prepared by valuation officers of the Board of Inland Revenue, came into force on April 1, 1973. These are updated as new property enters the list, and changes to existing property necessitate amendments to the rateable value. The lists remain in force until the next general revaluation due in 2980. Certain types of property are exempt from rates, e.g. agricultural land and buildings, and churches. Some charities and other non-profit making organizations can receive partial exemption. Under the General Rate Act, 1967, as amended by the Local Government Act, 1974, local authorities can resolve to rate specified classes of empty property by an amount up to 100 per cent. of the full rates. Since April I, 1974, rating authorities must levy. surcharge on empty commercial property at double the normal rates for the first twelve months, treble the rates for the second twelve months and so on progressively during the period of non-use. The Local Government Act, 1974, also makes provision for rate rebates for domestic ratepayers, regardless of the type of property in which they live, eligibility depending on income and family circumstances.
(2) Government Grants,-In addition to specific Government grants in aid of revenue expenditure on particular services, from April x, 1974 grants known as rate support grants are payable to local authorities under the provisions of Part $#$ of the Local Government Act, 1974. These grants, which replace the block grants previously paid under the Local Government Act, 1966, consist of three elements: the needs element, the resources element and the domestic element. The needs element, which is payable to non-metropolitan counties, metropolitan districts, London boroughs, the City of London, and the Isles of Scilly, is intended to compensate for variations between authorities in the amount they need to spend per head of population to provide a comparable level of service. The grant is distributed to local authorities on the basis of a distribution formula, which may vary from year to year, using various objective factors for measuring the relative needs of each authority. The resources element is payable to those rating authorities whose rateable resources per head of population fall short of a prescribed national standard for the year, and is so calculated to bring their resources effectively up to that national standard. The domestic element is payable to all rating authorities to reimburse them for the cost of giving the domestic rate relief prescribed for the year.
In order to arrive at the total amount of the rate support grants to local authorities in England and Wales for any year, the aggregate of Exchequer grants to local authorities in respect of their relevant expenditure for the year is determined in advance (housing subsidies and specific grants towards expenditure on rate rebates and mandatory awards to students and trainee teachers are outside this aggregate amount) and from this is deducted the estimated amount of specific grants for the year in aid of revenue expenditure and the supplementary grants for transport purposes and in connection with national parks; the resulting balance is the amount of rate support grant. This amount can be subsequently increased if there is a substantial increase in the relevant expenditure of local authorities due to in increase in the level of prices, costs or remuneration, or because later legislation has created new areas of expenditure.
Forecasts of local authority relevant expenditure for $1977-78$ in England and Wales adopted by the Government for rate support grant purposes were as follows. The amounts given are at November $x 976$ prices.

The aggregate amount of Exchequer grants for 1977-78 was determined at $£ 7,147,000,000$ being 61 per cent. of the estimated relevant expenditure. Of this, the specific revenue grants and the transport and National Parks supplementary grants were estimated at $£ 989,500,000$ giving a total for rate support grants of $£ 6,157,000,000$ of which $£ 3,712,000,000$ was in respect of the needs element, $£ 657,000,000$ the domestic element and £r, $7^{88,000,000}$ the resources element.
Rates and Ratcable Values.-The total rateable value for England and Wales on April r, 1976 was $£ 6,809,000,000$. The latest estimate of the amount to be raised in rates (net of rate rebates) in $99777^{8}$ is $\AA 4,600,000,000$.
Average Rates.-The estimated average rates levied in England in 1977-78 were: Inner London Boroughs, domestic rate 55.4 p , non-domestic rate 75.7 p ; Outer London, 58.6 p and 77.3 p ; Metropolitan Districts, 64.9 p and 83.9 p ; Non-metropolitan districts, 60.8 p and 80.4 p . In Wales the estimated average rates levied were, domestic rate $57 \cdot 4 \mathrm{p}$, non-domestic rate, $93 \cdot 9 \mathrm{P}$. The average rates levied in England and Wales were estimated as $60 \cdot 8 \mathrm{p}$ (domestic) and $80 \cdot 2 \mathrm{p}$ (non-domestic).

SCOTLAND

Under the new structure of local government, in terms of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1973, which came into administrative effect on May 16, x975, Scotland is for local government purposes divided into 9 regions, and 3 islands areas covering respectively Orkney, Shetland and the Western Isles. Within the regions there is a second independent tier of 53 districts.
Functions.-Regions and districts have separate responsibility for specific functions. In addition they share responsibility for certain concurrent functions. Islands area councils are all-purpose authorities responsible in these areas for the functions (except police and fire services) which are the separate or concurrent responsibility of regions and districts.

Regional Functions.-The new regional authorities are directly responsible for overall planning strategy and the highly technical or expensive services, e.g. the provision of major infrastructure services including transportation, roads and passenger transport, airports, water, sewerage, river purification, flood prevention, as well as education, social work, police and fire services.

District Functions.-The district authorities deal with more local matters such local planning; development control; building control; housing; environmental health including cleansing, refuse collection and disposal, food hygiene, inspection of shops, offices and factories, clean air, markets and slaughterhouses, burial and cremation; regulation and licensing, including cinemas and theatres, betting and gaming, taxis, house to house collections; libraries.

Concurrent Functions.-These include countryside and tourism, industrial development, recreation parks, art galleries and museums.

Community Councils.-Provision is also made in the Act for setting up community councils under schemes prepared by each district and islands authority. The Act required that the schemes be submitted to the Secretary of State for approval by May x6, 1976. Such councils are not local authorities but have a statutory base. They have no statutory functions but are expected to take such action in the community as appears to their members to be desirable and practicable.

Local Government Electors.-In October 1975 there were $3,763,194$ electors in Scotland. The first ordinary elections of all the new authorities took place on May 7, 1974.

Rates and Rateable Values.-In 1973-74, the latest year for which final figures were available, a total of $\mathcal{L} 285,085,000$ was received from the general rates of local government in Scotland and $£_{11,939,000}$ from domestic water rates. The rateable value on which rates were leviable was $£ 296,668,000$ on the general rates and $£ 172,869,000$ on the domestic water rates. The average general rate levied was $96 p$ and the domestic water rate levied was 7 p .

Provisional figures for $\mathbf{9 7 5}-76$ show total receipts from general rates of $£ 434,80 r, 000$ and £ $18,235,000$ from domestic water rates, and $\mathcal{E}^{5} 505,134,000$ and $\mathcal{C}^{2} 5,011,000$ for $1976-77$. The rateable value leviable for $1975-76$ was $£_{309,484,000}$ (general) and $£ 174,936,000$ (domestic water rate) and $£ 3 \times 6,275,000$ (general) and Cx88,661,000 (domestic water rate) for 1976-77. The average rate per $£$, levied for $1975-76$ was 140.5 p (general) and 10.5p (domestic water) and 160p (general) and 13.5 p (domestic water) for 1976-77.

NORTHERN IRELAND

For the purpose of local government Northern Ireland has a system of 26 single-tier district councils. There are 526 members of the councils, elected for periods of four years at It time on the principle of proportional representation.

The district councils all have the same three main roles. These are:
(a) direct role in which the councils are responsible for a wide range of local services including the provision of recreational, social, community, and cultural facilities; environmental health; consumer protection; the enforcement of building regulations; the promotion of tourist development schemes; gas supply; street cleansing; refuse collection and disposal; litter prevention; and miscellaneous licensing and registration provisions;
(b) representative role in which they nominate representatives to sit as members of the various statutory bodies responsible for the administration of regional services such as education and libraries, health and personal social services, drainage, fire and electricity; and
(c) a consultative role in which they act as the media through which the views of local people are expressed on the operation in their area of other regional services notably planning, roads, and conservation (including water supply and sewerage services) provided by those departments of central government which have an obligation, either statutorily or otherwise, to consult the district councils about proposals affecting their areas.

THE NATIONAL PARKS

The ten National Parks described below in their order of designation have been established in England and Wales. These areas are not public property and visitors are not free to wander over private land within the Park boundaries. They have been marked out for special care aimed at two prime purposes: to conserve and enhance their natural beauty, and to promote their enjoyment by the public.

Peak District National Park ( 542 sq . miles).Mainly in Derbyshire but extending into Staffordshire, Cheshire, South Yorkshire, West Yorkshire and Greater Manchester. In the south and east are limestone uplands, and finely wooded dales with swift, clear rivers and unspoilt stone villages. Northwards, moorlands, edged by gritstone crags, attract hill walkers and climbers. There are information centres at Bakewell, Edale, Castleton and at Buxton (just outside the Park) and wu information caravan tours the Park

Lake District National Park ( 866 sq. miles).-In Cumbria. Spectacular mountain scenery with wooded lower slopes enhanced by lakes and tarns. The area includes England's highest mountains (Scafell Pike, Helvellyn and Skiddaw) and largest lakes. Walking and rock-climbing men the principal recreations, but there are fishing, swimming, sailing, boating and winter sports as well. There are information centres at Keswick, Ambleside and Bowness. Information vans are sited at Waterhead, Coniston, Glenridding and Hawkeshead. At Brockhole, Windermere, is $\quad$ National Park centre.

Snowdonia National Park ( 838 sq. miles). In Gwynedd in North Wales. A mountainous region supporting farms, forest, reservoirs and power stations and traversed by high passes, offering some of the finest rock-climbing and mountain walking for both beginner and expert. The main valleys, often finely wooded, hold lakes and are watered by rivers with cascading falls. There are information centres at Aberdyfi, Bala, Blaenau Ffestiniog, Conwy, Harlech, Dolgellau, Llanberis and Llanrwst.

Dartmoor National Park ( 365 sq. miles).-In Devon, the highest area of high moorland in southern England, famous for its granite "tors" often weathered into strange shapes. Fine hanging oak woods adorn the river valleys which lead up into the Moor. The Park is rich in prehistoric relics and offers fine walking and riding. Information vans are sited at Yelverton, Haytor and New Bridge.

Pembrokeshire Coast National Park (225 sq. miles).-A spectacular section of Britain's coastline, where rock cliffs alternate with bays and sandy coves. In the north is Mynydd Preseli, abounding in prehistoric relics. The Park includes the fine Milford Haven waterway reaches, Tenby, the cathedral of St. David's, and Carew and other Norman castles. There are information centres at Tenby, St. David's, Pembroke, Fishguard, Kilgetty and Haverfordwest. A countryside unit is open at Broad Haven.

North York Moors National Park ( 553 sq. miles).In North Yorkshire and Cleveland, the Park stretches from the Hambleton Hills in the west to the coastline above Scarborough. On the coast sheltered bays and sandy beaches alternate with headlands harbouring villages such as Staithes and Robin Hood's Bay. The heart of the Park offers tracts of open moorland, intersected by beautiful wooded valleys. Mount Grace Priory and the abbeys of Rievaulx and Byland are within the Park. There are information centres at Danby Lodge and Sutton Bank.

Yorkshire Dales National Park (680 sq, miles).-An of upland moors, cut by deep valleys, mostly in North Yorkshire but extending into Cumbria. The Park includes some of the finest limestone scenery in Britain: Kilnsey Crag in Wharfedale, Gordale Scar, and Malham Cove in Malhamdale. In the Park also are Swaledale and Wensleydale, the three peaks of Ingleborough, Whernside and Pen-yGhent, and many relics of the past such as the Roman fort at Bainbridge and Bolton Abbey in Wharfedale. There are information centres at Clapham, Aysgarth Falls, Malham and Settle. An information caravan is sited at Hawes.
Exmoor National Park ( 265 sq. miles). -Mainly in Somerset but extending into Devon, this is a moorland plateau seamed with finely wooded combes. The well-known coastline between Minehead and Combe Martin Bay is exceptionally beautiful. In the east are the Brendon Hills. There are informaation centres at Minehead, Lynmouth and Dulverton. An information van is sited at Combe Martin.

Northumberland National Park ( 398 sq. miles).-A region of hills and moorland, stretching from Hadrian's Roman Wall in the south to the Cheviot Hills on the Scottish Border. The $\quad 11$ is rich in historic interest. There are information centres at Byrness, Ingram and Once Brewed and $\quad$ en information van tours the Park.

Brecon Beacons National Park ( 519 sq. miles).-The most recent National Park, established in 1957, is centred on "The Beacons" with its three peaks: Pen y Fan, Corn Du and Cribyn rising to nearly 3,000 feet. But it includes the Black Mountains to the east and the Black Mountain to the west, thus taking in parts of Gwent and Dyfed as well as southern Powys and a small area of mid-Glamorgan. The Upper Usk Valley, Llangorse Lake, Brecon Cathedral, Carreg Cennen Castle and Llanthony Abbey are all within the Park. There are information centres at Brecon, Abergavenny, Llandovery and mountain centre near Libanus, Brecon.

AREAS OF OUTSTANDING NATURAL BEAUTY

These are designated solely for landscape conservation purposes. They we listed below, in alphabetical order, having been designated between December, 1956 and February, 1976.
Anglesey ( 83 sq . miles).-Except for breaks around the urban areas and in the vicinity of Wylfa, the designated area extends along the entire coastline. The varied scenery is famed for its beauty, as also me the Menai Straits, separating the island from the mainland.

Amside and Silverdale ( 29 sq. miles).-Lying along the upper half of Morecambe Bay, the area embraces the Kent estuary where it adjoins the Lake District National Park and includes extensive tidal flats in the Bay. The varied coastal landscape contains several limestone hills, woodland and bog areas locally known - " mosses". Known for its wildfowl breeding grounds, the whole area is of considerable ecological value.

Cannock Chase ( 26 sq . miles). This is an area of high heathland in Staffordshire, relieved by varied scenery in which parklands adjoin farms, woodlands and pleasant villages. Deer continue to roam over the Chase.

Chichester Harbour ( 29 sq. miles). -Well known for its small boating and sailing facilities, the area extends from Hayling Island in the west to Apuldram in the east and contains the whole of Thorney Island.

Chilterns ( 309 sq. miles).-The well-known chalk downlands from Goring in South Oxfordshire northeastwards through Buckinghamshire, Hertfordshire and Bedfordshire to Dunstable and Luton, including the outlying group of hills beyond Luton. Contains several National Trust properties and Whipsnade Zoo.

Cornwall ( 360 sq. miles).-Comprising a number of separate areas including Bodmin Moor and some of the finest and best-known coastal scenery in Britain. Most of the Land's End peninsula; the coast between St. Michael's Mount and St. Austell with Falmouth omitted; and the Fowey Estuary are all included: in north Cornwall most of the coast to Bedruthan Steps, north of Newquay, and between Perranporth and Godrevy Towans.

Cotswold (582 sq. miles).-Contains the great limestone escarpment overlooking the Vales of Gloucester and Evesham. The remainder is high undulating country and narrow wooded valleys traversed by shallow rapid streams. Noted for its beautiful villages.

Dedham Vale (z2 sq. miles).-This, the smallest area so far designated, is the flat land of water meadows with hedges and woodland, bordering Essex and Suffolk, where John Constable (r776${ }^{18} 37$ ) painted during most of his life. Flatford Mill, Willy Lott's Cottage and the church of Stoke-by-Nayland still stand.

East Devon (ro3 sq. miles).-The area comprises the fine stretch of coastline between Orcombe Rocks, near Exmouth, and the Dorset area mII Lyme Regis, with Sidmouth, Beer and Seaton omitted. Inland Gittisham Hill, East Hill and Woodbury and Aylebeare Commons are all included.

North Devon ( 66 sq . miles).-Comprising three sections of fine coastline- the whole of the Hartland peninsula; from Bideford Bar to the western limits of Ilfracombe, and from east of Ilfracombe to the boundary of the Exmoor National Park. Clovelly, Braunton Burrows, Woolacombe and Combe Martin are all included.

South Devon (128 sq. miles).-It includes the magnificent coast between Bolt Head and Bolt Tail. National Trust property; Salcombe, Slapton Sands and Dartmouth, and the four estuaries and valleys of the Yealm, Erme, Avon and Dart.

Dorset ( 400 sq , miles). - Takes in the whole of the coastline between Lyme Regis and Poole, with the Isle of Portland and Weymouth omitted, and stretches inland to include the Purbeck Hills and the downs, heaths and wooded valleys of the Hardy country.
Forest of Bowland ( 3 Io sq. miles).-A fine tract of high open moorland running westward from nir Settle and Bolton by Bowland in the Pemnines, to Caton and Scorton in Central Lancashire.

A small outlying area nif of the River Ribble includes Pendle Hill and Pendleton Moor.

Gower ( 73 sq . miles).-In the county of West Glamorgan, South Wales, the area is known for its beautiful coastline, its rocky limestone cliffs, sandy bays and coves and for its wooded ravines stretching inland.
East Hampshire ( $\mathbf{x} 5 \mathrm{sq}$. miles). The area stretches from the outskirts of Winchester to the Hampshire/ Sussex border at a distance of about 10 miles inland from the south coast.

South Hampshire Coast ( 30 sq. miles).- 14 miles of coastine on the northern shores of the Solent. between Hurst Castle and Calshot Castle, southeast of Fawley, with the central part of the area extending inland up the Beaulieu River for about six miles, including a beautiful part of the New Forest. Along much of the coast woods of oak and Scots pine stretch down to the water's edge, while at the western end are some attractive salt marshes.

Kent Downs ( 326 sq . miles)--Running from the Surrey border near Westerham (its boundary adjoining that of the Surrey Hills area), about 60 miles to the coast $=$ Dover and Folkestone, with a coastal outlier at South Foreland and a narrow strip of the old sea cliff escarpment west of Hythe overlooking Romney Marsh. Pleasant pastoral scenery, picturesque villages, ancient churches and castles, with the Downs rising to 600 feet.

Lincolnshire Wolds ( 216 sq. miles). -The area extends in a south-east direction from Laceby and Caistor in the north to the region of Splisby, about ten miles west of Skegness. Its charm is derived from the undulating terrain, sparse settlement pattern and the excellent views from the chalk escarpments. The wolds are extensively farmed and contain numerous small, attractive villages.
Lleyn ( 60 sq. miles).-An isolated peninsula in Gwynedd, North Wales, of unique character, still largely unspoilt by the hand of man.
Malvern Hills ( 40 sq. miles). -The area embodies the whole range of the Malvern Hills in the county of Hereford and Worcester, just touching Gloucestershire. Such well-known features as the Worcestershire Beacon, North Hill, the Herefordshire Beacon, and Midsummer Hill, in National Trust property, are within the area.

Mendip Hills ( 78 sq. miles).-Comprising over half of the Mendip Hills, the area stretches, east to west, from Bleadon Hill to the A. 39 road north of Wells. Blagdon Lake and Chew Magna Lake are within the boundary which, in the south, takes in Cheddar Gorge. The plateau, rising to over r,000 ft., commands fine views over the Bristol Channel and surrounding countryside. Noted for its caves, including Wookey Hole, the area is of great scientific and historic interest.

Norfolk Coast ( $x 74$ sq. miles).-With coastal scenery ranging from salt marsh and mudflats, sand-dunes and shingle ridges to cliffs, this area includes six miles of the south-east coast of the Wash, an almost continuous coastal strip three to five miles in depth from Hunstanton to Bacton, with a further small strip between Sea Palling and Winterton-on-Sea. The area, which is rich in wild-life, also includes part of the Sandringham Estate.

Northumberland Coast (50 sq. miles).-Low cliffs and rocky headlands with active fishing villages comprise this area which stretches from just south of Berwick to Amble. It includes Holy Island, with the oldest monastic ruins in the country; the Farne Islands, and the great castles of Bamburgh, Dunstanburgh and Warkworth.

Quantock Hills ( 38 sq. miles).-The main feature of this area in Somerset is the range of red sandstone hills rising to a height of $x, 260$ feet at Will's Neck above Crow Combe.
Isles of Scilly ( 6 sq . miless). There are about 140 islands and skerries in the Scllies group of which only five are inhabited. Geologically, the formation is similar to Land's End and other granite areas in Cornwall. The coastline is dramatically rocky, interspersed with sheltered sandy beaches and areas of dune of bleached decomposed granite, glistening with mica and shells. There are coastal paths round the larger islands, and a number of sites of special scientific interest, identified by the Nature Conservancy Councli.
Shropshire Hills ( 300 sq. miles).-This area includes the fine landscape around Church Stretton, with Caer Caradoc, the Long Mynd, the Stiperstones, and the long ridge of Wenlock Edge from which it extends north-east to the Wrekin and the Ercall.

Soloway Coast (4I sq. miles).-A stretch of beautiful coastline in Cumbria from above Maryport to the estuaries of the Rivers Eden and Esk (with Silloth omitted) backed by the Solway Plain and noted for its historic and scientific interests.

Suffolk Coast and Heaths ( 55 x sq. miles).-Takes in $3^{8}$ miles of coastline and parts of the Stour and Orwell estuaries, while the Deben, Alde and Blyth flow through it. With heath, woodland, marsh and beaches, the scenery is attractively varied and the area important to ornithologists.
Surrey Hills (i6o sq. miles).-The Hog's Back and the ridge of the North Downs from Guildford to Titsey in the east are within this area, 11 are Leith Hill, Hindhead Common, the Devil's Punch Bowl; the well-known villages of Abinger, Shere, Hambledon and Chiddingfold; Box Hill and Frensham Ponds.
Sussex Downs ( 379 sq. miles). The ma includes the chalk escarpment of the South Downs from Beachy Head to the West Sussex/Hampshire border, with such well-known features $\quad$ Hirle Beacon and Chanctonbury Ring, and stretches down to the coast between Eastbourne and Seaford. In the west the boundary adjoins the East Hampshire and Surrey Hills areas.
North Wessex Downs ( 67 r sq. miles).-An upland area in Hampshire, Wiltshire, Oxfordshire and Berkshire, bounded by the Marlborough and Lambourn Downs in the west and the Chiltern Hills in the east. To the south of the downs the area is intersected by the Kennet Valley, the Vale of Pewsey and Enbourne Vale, with Savernake Forest in the midst. The southern section comprises the North Downs where they descend to the Test Valley which, together with Salisbury Plain, form the southern limit of what is so far the largest area designated.
Isle of Wight ( 73 sq. miles).-A number of separate areas comprising unspoiled stretches of coastline, the Yar Valley, the high downland behind Ventnor and the fine chalk downland ridge east of Newport to Culver Cliff and Foreland.

Wye Valley (r25 sq. miles).-This area lies within the counties of Gwent, Gloucestershire and Hereford and Worcester. The lower Wye Valley landscape is characterised by its steeply-wooded slopes, cliffs and gorges where the river has cut through limestone outcrops. Further north the valley is broader and the river meanders through pleasant pastureland. Tintern Abbey and the well-known viewpoint from Symonds Yat within this beautiful ${ }^{1 / n}$. The flora include many -1 species.

THE KINGDOM OF ENGLAND

Position and Extent.-The Kingdom of England occupies the southern position of the island of Great Britain and lies between $55^{\circ} \quad 46^{\prime}$ and $49^{\circ} 57^{\prime} 30^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{N}$. latitude (from the mouth of the Tweed to the Lizard), and between $x^{\circ} 46^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. and $5^{\circ} 43^{\prime}$ W. (from Lowestoft to Land's End). England is bounded on the north by the summit of the Cheviot Hills, which form I natural boundary with the Kingdom of Scotland; on the south by the English Channel; on the east by the Straits of Dover (Pas de Calais) and the North Sea; and on the West by the Atlantic Ocean, Wales and the Irish Sea. It has a total area of 50,333 sq. miles (land 50,053 ; inland water 280) and a population (r97z Census) of $46,029,000$.

Relief.-There is a natural orographic division into the hilly districts of the north, west and south-west, and the undulating downs and lowlying plains of the east and south-east. In the extreme north the Cheviot Hills run from east to west, culminating in the Cheviot, 2,676 feet above mean 1 Ie level. Divided from the Cheviots by the Tyne Gap is the Pennine Chain, running N. by W. to S. by E., with its highest point in Cross Fell, 2.930 feet above mean sea level. West of the Pennines are the Cumbrian Mountains, which contain in Scafell Pike ( 3,210 feet) the highest land in England, and east of the Pennines are the Yorkshire Moors, their highest point being Urra Moor ( 1,489 feet). South of the Pennines are the Peak of Derbyshire ( 2,088 feet) and Dartmoor (High Willhays, 2,039 feet). In the western county of Salop win the isolated Wrekin ( $x, 335$ feet), Longmynd ( $x, 696$ feet), and Brown Clee ( $x, 792$ feet); in Hereford the Black Mountain ( 2,310 feet), in Worcester the Malvern Hills ( $\mathrm{x}, 395$ feet); the Cotswold Hills of Gloucestershire contain Cleeve Cloud (about $\mathrm{x}, 100$ feet).

Hydrography.-The Thames is the longest and most important river of England, with a total length of $2 \times 0$ miles from its source in the Cotswold Hills to its outfow into the North Sea, and is navigable by ocean-going steamers to London Bridge. The Thames is tidal to Teddington ( 69 miles from its mouth) and forms county boundaries almost throughout its course; on its banks are situated London, the capital of the British Commonwealth; Windsor Castle, the home of the Sovereign, Eton College, the first of the public schools, and Oxford, the oldest university in the kingdom. The Severn is the longest river in Great Britain, rising in the north-eastern slopes of Plinlimmon (Wales) and entering England in Salop with I total length of 220 miles from its source to its outflow into the Bristol Channel, where it receives on the left the Bristol Avon, and on the right the Wye, its other tributaries being the Vrynwy, Tern, Stour, Teme and Upper (or Warwickshire) Avon. The Severn is tidal below Gloucester, and a high bore or tidal wave sometimes reverses the flow as high as Tewkesbury ( $33 \frac{1}{2}$ miles above Gloucester). The scenery of the greater part of the river is very picturesque and beautiful, and the Severn is a noted salmon river, some of its tributaries being famous for trout. Navigation is assisted by the Gloucester and Berkeley Ship Canal ( 26 a miles), which admits vessels of 350 tons to Gloucester. The Severn Tunnel, begun in 5873 and completed in 1886 (at I cost of $£ 2,000,000$ ) after many difficulties from flooding, is 4 miles 628 yards in length of which $2 \frac{1}{6}$ miles are under the river). A road bridge over the Severn estuary, between Haysgate.

Gwent, and Almondsbury, Glos., with e centre span of $3,240 \mathrm{ft}$. was opened by Her Majesty the Queen on September 8, 1966. Of the remaining English rivers those flowing into the North Sea are the Tyne, Wear, Tees, Ouse and Trent from the Pennine Range, the Great Ouse ( 160 miles) from the Central Plain, and the Orwell and Stour from the hills of East Anglia. Flowing into the English Channel are the Sussex Ouse from the Weald, the Itchen from the Hampshire Hills, and the Axe, Teign, Dart, Tamar and Exe from the Devonian Hills; and flowing into the Irish Sea are the Mersey, Ribble and Eden from the western slopes of the Pennines and the Derwent from the Cumbrian Mountains. The English Lakes are noteworthy rather for their picturesque scenery and poetic associations than for their size. They lie in Cumbria, the largest being Windermere (so miles long), Ullswater and Derwentwater.

Islands.-The Isle of Wight is separated from Hampshire by the Solent; total area 147 sq. miles, population (estimated 1975) 112,000. The climate is mild and healthy, and many watering places have grown up during the last century. Capital, Newport, at the head of the estuary of the Medina, Cowes (at the mouth) being the chief port; other centres are Ryde, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor, Freshwater, Yarmouth, Totland Bay, Seaview and Bembridge. The Scilly Islands, 25 miles from Land's End, consist of about 40 islands, with total area of about 4,000 acres, only St. Mary's, Tresco, St. Martin's, St. Agnes and Bryher being inhabited (population, x97x, 2,428). The capital is Hugh Town, in St. Mary's. The climate is unusually mild, and vegetation luxuriant, semi-tropical plants flourishing in the open. Lundy ( $=$ Island) II miles N.W. of Hartland Point, Devon, is about miles long and about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile broad (average), with a total area of about $x, 050$ acres (mainly picturesque), and a population of about 20 ; it became the property of the National Trust in 1969 and has 3 lighthouses (one disused).

Climate. -The annual air temperature reduced to sea-level varies from $11^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. in the extreme south-west to $9^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. near Berwick-on-Tweed. In January the south and west are warmer than the east, the mean temperature reduced to sea-level being less than $4.5^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. over the eastern half of the country. In July the warmest districts are more definitely in the south and inland, the range being from $17^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. around London to less than $5.9^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. in the extreme north. The decrease of mean temperature with height is about $0.6^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. per $x 00$ metres. The coldest month of the year is January and the warmest July. Sea temperature reaches its maximum rather later than air temperature. The average annual rainfall decreases from west to east, owing to the preponderance of south-west winds, and also increases with altitude. The annual average, r916-1950, varies from 20 in . ( 500 mm .) in the neighbourhood of the Thames Estuary and locally in Cambridgeshire to more than 100 in. ( 2,500 mm .) over the mountains of the Lake District. Rather more rain falls in the summer half-year in parts of the east, but in the west much more falis in the winter half-year. The months of least raln are March to June and the wettest months October to January. The mean annual number of hours of bright sunshine varies from $x, 750$ hours along the south-east coast to less than $x, 300$ hours in the neighbourhood of the Pennine range. June is the sunniest month followed by May, July and August in that order.

EARLY INHABITANTS

Prehistoric Man.-Palæolithic and Neolithic remains are abundantly found throughout England. The Neolithic period is held to have merged into the Bronze Age about to 1500 B.C., and a date between these years has been given to Stonehenge (so miles N. of Salisbury, Wiltshire) which consists of two circles of menhirs (the largest monolith being $22 \frac{1}{3}$ feet in height). The village of Avebury and its surroundings were scheduled in 1937, and in x943 about 1,000 acres of Avebury were purchased by the National Trust, thus preserving the Circle of megalithic monuments, the Avenue, Silbury Hill, etc., relics of Stone Age culture of 1900-1800 B.C., which make this one of the most important archæological sites in Europe. The Devil's Arrows, near Boroughbridge, Yorkshire, are regarded as the finest remaining megalithic monoliths in northern Europe; the tallest arrow is 30 ft .6 in . high and its greatest circumference is 16 ft . In the latter part of the Bronze Age the Goidels, , people of Celtic race, and in the Iron Age other Celtic races of Brythons and Belgae, invaded the country and brought with them Celtic civilization and dialects, place names in England bearing witness to the spread of the invasion over the whole kingdom.

The Roman Conquest.-Julius Cesar raided Britain in 55 B.C. and 54 B.C. The Emperor Claudius, nearly 100 y cars later (A.D. 42), dispatched Aulus Plautius, with a well-equipped force of 40,000 , and himself followed with reinforcements in the same year.

The British leader from A.D. $4^{8-5 I}$ was Caratacus (Caractacus), who was finally captured and sent to Rome. By A.D. 70 the conquest of South Britain was completed, a great revolt under Boadicea, Queen of the Iceni, being crushed in A.D. 6r. In A.D. 122, the Emperor Hadrian visited Britain and built. a continuous rampart, since known as Hadrian's Wall, from Wallsend to Bowness (Tyne to Solway). The work was entrusted by the Emperor Hadrian to Aulus Platorius Nepos, legate of Britain from 122 to 126 , and it is now regarded as "the greatest and most impressive relic of the Roman frontier system in Europe."

The Romans administered Britain as a Province under a Governor, with a well-defined system of local government, each Roman municipality ruling itself and the surrounding territory. Colchester, Lincoln, York, Gloucester and St. Albans stand on the sites of five Roman municipalities, while London was the centre of the road system and the seat of the financial officials of the Province of Britain. Well-preserved Roman towns have been uncovered at (or near) Silchester (Calleva Atrebatum), 10 miles south of Reading, Wroxeter (Viroconium), near Shrewsbury, and St. Albans (Verulamium) in Hertfordshire.

Four main groups of roads radiated from London, and a fifth (the Fosse) ran obliquely from Ermine Street (at Lincoln), through Leicester, Cirencester and Bath to Exeter. Of the four groups radiating from London one ran S.E. to Canterbury and the coast of Kent, a second to Silchester and thence to parts of Western Britain and South Wales, a third (now known as Watling Street) ran through Verulamium to Chester, with various branches, and the fourth reached Colchester, Lincoln, York and the eastern counties.

Christianity reached the Roman province of Britain from Gaul in the 3rd century (or possibly earlier), Alban, "the protomartyr of Britain," being put to death as a Christian during the persecution of Diocletian (June 22, 303), at his native town Verulamium. The Bishops of Londinium, Eboracum (York), and Lindum (Lincoln) attended the Council of Arles in 354.

The Roman garrison of Britain was much harassed in the $4^{\text {th }}$ century by Saxon pirates, who invaded the eastern areas. A system of coast defence was organized from the Wash to Southampton Water, with forts at Brancaster, Burgh Castle (Yarmouth), Walton (Felixstowe), Bradwell, Reculver, Richborough, Dover, Stutfall, Pevensey and Porchester (Portsmouth). About A.D. 350 incursions in the north of Irish (Scoti) and Picts became most formidable, and towards the end of the 4 th century many troops were removed from Britain for service in other parts of the Roman Empire. Early in the 5th century Gaul was taken from the Romans by Ceutonic invaders and Britain was cut off from Rome. The last Roman garrison was withdrawn from Britain in A.D. 442 and the S.E. portion was conquered by the Saxons.
The Latin-speaking Celts of England were replaced by their heathen and Teutonic conquerors, to the submergence of the Christian religion and the loss of Latin speech. According to legend, the British King Vortigern called in the Saxons to defend him against the Ficts, the Saxon chieftains being Hengist and Horsa, who landed at Ebbsueet, Kent, and established themselves in the Isle of Thanet. Bede, a Northumbrian monk, author of the Ecclesiastical History at the opening of the 8th century, described these settlers as Jutes, and there are traces of differences in Kentish customs from those of other Anglo-Saxon kingdoms.

Anglo-Saxons and Normans.-What happened in Britain during the 150 years which elapsed between the final break with Rome and the coming of St. Augustine is shrouded in the deepest mystery. The Jutes, the Saxons and the Angles (whose gods Twi, Woden, Thunor and Frigg are commemorated in "Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday ") were converted to Christianity by a mission under Augustine (dispatched by Pope Gregory in 597), which established Archbishoprics at Canterbury and York, and England appears to have been again converted by the end of the 7 th century. In the 8 th century Offa, King of Mercia, is stated to have built wall and rampart, afterwards known as Offa's Dike, from the mouth of the Dee to that of the Wye, as a protection against the Welsh.

The greatest of the Englisn kingdoms was Wessex, with its capital at Winchester, and the greatest of the Wessex kings was Alfred the Gireal ( $87 \mathrm{x}-899$ ), who resisted the incursions of the Northmen (Danes) and fixed limit to their advance by the Treaty of Wedmore ( 878 ). In the roth century the Kings of Wessex recovered the whole of England from the Danes, but subsequent rulers were unable to resist the invaders, and England paid tribute (Danegelt) for many years, and was ruled by Danish Kings from ror6 to 1042, when Edward the Confessor was recalled from exile. In 1066 Harold (brother-in-law of Edward and son of Earl Godwin of Wessex) was chosen King of England, but after defeating (at Stamford Bridge, Yorkshire, Sept. 25) an invading army under Harald Hadraada, King of Norway (aided by the outlawed Earl Tostig, of Northumbria, younger son of Earl Godwin), he was himself defeated at the Battle of Hastings on Oct. 14, x066, and the Norman Conquest secured the throne of England for Duke William of Normandy.

GREATER LONDON COUNCIL

The Greater London Council and 32 London Borough Councils were constituted under the London Government Act, 1963. They replaced, on April I, 1965, the London County Council, the Middlesex County Council, the County Borough Councils of Croydon, East Ham and West Ham, 28 metropolitan borough, 39 non-county borough and 15 urban district councils. The boundaries and constitution of the Corporation of the City of London were not affected.

Under the Act, Greater London became for the first time $\quad$ clearly defined local government area including, in addition to the former counties of London and the greater part of Middlesex, parts of Metropolitan Essex, Kent, Surrey and Hertfordshire.

The Greater London Council at present consists of 92 councillors. Councillors are elected for single-member electoral divisions which are coterminous with the parliamentary constituencies. Councillors hold office for four years. The Chairman, Vice-Chairman and Deputy Chairman are elected annually by the councillors. The political head of the administration is the Leader of the Council, elected by the majority party. The Council meets at two weekly intervals at $2,30 \mathrm{p}, \mathrm{m}$. on Tuesdays except in holiday periods. Most committees and sub-committees meet at fourweekly intervals.

Greater London Council  (Elected May 5, 1977)

Greater London comprises an area of 6 ro sq. miles and has population of $7,1 \times 1,500$ ( 1975 midyear estimates).

$\star$ Denotes members of the last Council.

The services provided by the G.L.C. include planning, roads, traffic management and control, fire services, refuse disposal, housing, parks and licensing. For certain services it shares responsibility with the London Borough Councils and the City Corporation.
Education.-The local education authority for an area corresponding with the area of the twelve inner London boroughs and the City of London is the Inner London Education Authority, a special committee of the G.L.C. consisting of the members of the Council elected for the inner London boroughs together with a representative of each inner London Borough Council and of the Common Council. The Council charges to the rating authorities in the Inner London Education Area the expenditure of the I.L.E.A., the amount being determined by the Authority. This unique arrangement preserves the continuity of the service which has developed since 1870 픈 unity without regard to local boundary divisions.

The total number of pupils on the rolls of the Authority's nursery, primary and secondary schools (including special schools for handicapped children) is 400,958 . There are 42 nursery, 710 county (including 3 at Children's homes), 339 voluntary and $x x_{7}$ special schools, staffed by the equivalent of 24, 133 full-time teachers. Vocational instruction, cultural studies and recreational activities for persons over compulsory school age are arranged at the various establishments for further education. The Authority maintains 24 colleges and makes grants to 5 polytechnics and 1 other institutions. Nonvocational classes are offered at $3 x$ evening and literary institutes, I recreational institute and 77 youth centres, including I drama centres. Eight colleges for the training of teachers are also managed by the Authority. The 20 outer London Borough Councils are the education authorities for their Boroughs.
Housing. -The Council shares with the London Borough Councils responsibility for housing in London and it has accommodated about 18,000 families a year, 2,650 of them in expanding towns many miles from London. The G.L.C. has about 218,000 homes, nearly 50,000 homes having been transferred to the London Borough Councils since 1971.

Planning and Transportation.-The Council as planning authority for Greater London as a whole has prepared a strategic development plan which lays down basic planning policies and principles for the whole area. The Greater London Development Plan has recently been modified by the Secretary of State for the Environment in the light of findings of a Public Inquiry. The Secretary of State is now considering objections to the modified plan. Since the submission of the original plan, the Transport (London) Act, 1969 , has given the G.L.C. responsibility for preparing more detailed transport plans, and, through $I$ London Transport Executive appointed by the Council, for London Transport policies and finance. It is thus now able to consider and co-ordinate priorities for investment in all forms of transport in London.

Within the framework of the Development plan, the London Borough Councils and the City Corporation will prepare their own detailed local development plans. Town planning control of private development proposals is mainly the concern of the London Boroughs but the G.L.C. has some responsibilities in this field. As planner and developer the Council is involved in many major schemes. Notable examples are the Thamesmead project and the Covent Garden area.

The Council is responsible for the construction, improvement and maintenance of principal roads. As the traffic authority for all roads in Greater London it prepares or approves schemes for one-way working, traffic signals, clearways, busonly lanes, waiting and loading restrictions and speed limits and makes the orders which enforce them. It maintains the Thames tunnels, the Woolwich Free Ferry, and all but four of the Thames bridges (London, Tower, Blackfriars and Southwark, which are maintained by the Corporation of London).
The Transport (London) Act. 1969, gives the Council the primary responsibility for overall transport planning, including the fullest possible integration of all forms of public transport, traffic measures and the development of the most important roads, in close association with land use planning.
Expanding towns.- One aspect of the Council's policy is the provision of homes for people in housing need from London, willing to move to jobs in towns expanding under agreements with the G.L.C. made under the Town Development Act 1952. The Council has such agreements with over 11 towns.
Parks.-The Council maintains some 5,500 acres of parks and open spaces. The London Borough Councils and the City Corporation between them provide $£$ further 26,500 acres. Up to $x, 000$ openair entertainments are arranged in G.L.C. parks each summer and almost all games and sports are provided for. At Crystal Palace, in addition to the Council's 70 acre park is the Crystal Palace National Sports Centre, owned by the Council and managed by the Sports Council.

Other features of the G.L.C.'s administration include its responsibility for the Royal Festival Hall, Queen Elizabeth Hall and Purcell Room and the Hayward Gallery; the maintenance of the Iveagh Bequest, Kenwood, several other buildings of historic interest and two museums. The Greater London Record Office and Library house official records and other manuscripts, books, maps, drawings and photographs relating to London and are open to the public for reference purposes. The Research and Intelligence unit is concerned with information and research on any matters concerning Greater London. The results of its work will be available to government departments, local authorities and the public.

Solid waste disposal. -The Council is responsible for the disposal of refuse throughout Greater London-some $2,750,000$ tons currently being handled each year. It operates twenty-five transfer stations (where refuse is transferred into bulk road vehicles or barges) and two incinerators. Refuse is used for infilling at some twenty land reclamation sites. The Boroughs continue to be responsible for refuse collection. Well over $\mathbf{1 8 , 0 0 0}$ old vehicles and more than $\mathbf{2 0 0 , 0 0 0}$ tons of bulky household refuse (the latter deposited direct by members of the public but included in the total of $2,750,000$ tons) are also dealt with as $\quad$ means of improving the environment under the Civic Amenities Act, 1967.
Land Drainage and Flood Prevention.-The G.L.C. and the Borough Councils exercise land drainage functions on certain watercourses within a 4do sq. mile area in and adjoining Greater London known as the London Excluded Area. The G.L.C. undertakes flood prevention works and maintains unobstructed flows in main metropolitan watercourses including the Ravensbourne, Beverley Brook, Wandle, Crane and Brent rivers. The Council also has flood prevention functions along some 120 miles of riverbank of the Thames and its tidal tributaries. Work has started, and will continue over the next four years, on the construction of barrier across the Thames at Silvertown which, with associated bank raising schemes, will provide flood protection against surge tides.
Licensing. - The Council is the licensing authority in Greater London for certain places of entertainment, greyhound race tracks and petroleum installations and, as agent for the Department of the Environment, licenses motor vehicles and drivers.

Fire Services.-The Council runs the fire service for its whole area.

The London Fire Brigade set up on April x, 1965, under the London Government Act, 1963, consists of the Brigades of the former counties of London and Middlesex (excluding the districts of Staines, Sunbury and Potters Bar), the former county boroughs of East Ham, West Ham and Croydon and of parts of Essex, Herts., Kent and Surrey. Headquarters, 8 Albert Embankment, S.E.I.
The Brigade has 114 land and a river stations. Wholetime authorized establishment, $6,45^{8}$. There are 605 fire-fighting appliance vehicles and three fire boats in commission. In 1976, there were 111,520 calls to fires and other emergencies. Chief Officer, P. H. Darby, C.B.E., Q.F.S.M.
Deputy Chief Officer, D. R. Burrell, Q.F.S.M.
Finance.-The Greater London Council's budget for x977-78 (including London Transport Executive) amounts to $& 2,063,000,000$ of which $£ 1,627,000,000$ is revenue expenditure (including E $503,000,000$ for the Inner London Education Authority) and $£ 436,000,000$ capital expenditure ( $£ 22,000,000$ for the Inner London Education Authority).
Revenue expenditure during the year will be met by precept on the London Borough Councils ( $£ 773,000,000$ ); income from loan repayments, rents, reimbursements for town developments, fees etc. ( $£ 360,000,000$ ); London Transport fares etc. ( $£^{3} 6,000,000$ ) and by Exchequer grants for certain works and services ( $£ 178,000,000$ ). The Inner London Education Authority determines the amount the Council must precept on the rating authorities in Inner London for education purposes.

Capital expenditure is met principally by external borrowing.

THE CORPORATION OF LONDON

The City of London is the historic centre at the heart of London known as "the square mile" around which the vast metropolis has grown over the centuries. The City's population is 4,232 ( 1971 Census, preliminary). The civic government is carried on by the Corporation of London through the Court of Common Council, a body consisting of the Lord Mayor, 25 other Aldermen and 141 Common Councilmen. The legal title of the Corporation is "the Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of London."

The City is the financial and business centre of London and includes the head offices of the principal banks, insurance companies and mercantile houses, in addition to buildings ranging from the historic interest of the Roman Wall and the Isth century Guildhall, to the massive splendour of St. Paul's Cathedral and the architectural beauty of Wren's spires.

The City of London was described by Tacitus in A.D. 62 as "a busy emporium for trade and traders". Under the Romans it became an important administration centre and hub of the road system. Little is known of London in Saxon times when it formed part of the kingdom of the East Saxons. In 886 Alfred recovered London from the Danes and reconstituted it a burgh under his son-in-law. In ro66 the citizens submitted to William the Conqueror who in 1067 granted them a charter, which is still preserved, establishing them in the rights and privileges they had hitherto enjoyed. The mayoralty was established on the recognition of the corporate unity of the citizens by Prince John in x191, the first Mayor being Henry Fitz Ailwyn who filled the office for 21 years and was succeeded by Fitz Alan ( $1212-15$ ). A new charter was granted by King John in 1215 , directing the Mayor to be chosen annually, which has ever since been done, though in early times the same individual often held the office more than once. A familiar instance is that of "Whittington, thrice Lord Mayor of London " (in reality four times, A.D. 1397, 1398, 1406, 1419); and many modern cases have occurred. The earliest instance of the phrase "Lord Mayor" in English is in $\mathbf{x 4 2 4}$. It is used more generally in the latter part of the rsth century and becomes invariable from 1535 onwards. At Michaelmas the Liverymen in Common Hall choose two Aldermen who have served the office of Sheriff for presentation to the Court of Aldermen, and one is chosen to be Lord Mayor for the ensuing mayoral yearThe Lord Mayor is presented to the Lord Chief Justice at the Royal Courts of Justice on the second Saturday in November to make the final declaration of office, having been sworn in at Guildhall on the preceding day. The procession to the Royal Courts of Justice is popularly known E the Lord Mayor's Show.
Aldermen are mentioned in the xith century and their office is of Saxon origin. They were elected annually between $\mathbf{3 7 7}$ and $\pm 394$, when - charter of Richard Il directed them to be chosen for life. The Common Council, elected annually on December $\mathbf{3 7}$, was, at early date, substituted for a popular assembly called the Folkmote. At first only two representatives were sent from each ward, but the number has since been greatly increased.

Sheriffs were Saxon officers: their predecessors were the wic-reeves and portreeves of London and Middlesex. At first they were officers of the Crown, and were named by the Barons of the Exchequer; but Henry I (in Ir32) gave the citizens permission to choose their own Sheriffs, and the annual election of Sheriffs became fully operative under King John's charter of 1199 . The citizens lost this privilege, as far as the election of Sheriff of Middlesex is concerned, by the Local Government Act, 1888 ; but the Liverymen continue, as heretofore, to choose two Sheriffs of the City of London, who are appointed on Midsummer Day, and take office at Michaelmas.

Officers.-The Recorder was first appointed in 1298. The office of Chamberlain is an ancient one, the first contemporary record of which is 5376 . The Town Clerk (or Common Clerk) is mentioned in 1274 and the Common Serjeant in 129 I.

Activities. - The work is assigned to $\square$ number of committees which present reports to the Court of Common Council. These Committees are:City Lands and Bridge House Estates, Coal, Corn and Rates Finance, Planning and Communications, Central Markets, Billingsgate and Leadenhall Markets, Spitalfields Market, Police, Port and City of London Health, Library (Library, Records, Art Gallery and Museum), Schools, Music (Guildhall School of Music and Drama), General Purposes, Establishment, Housing, Gresham (City side), Epping Forest and Open Spaces, West Ham Park, Policy and Parliamentary, Privileges, Social Services, Guildhall Reconstruction, Barbican Development, Barbican Management and Central Criminal Court (Extension).

The Honourable the Irish Society, which manages the Corporation's Estates in Ulster, consists of Governor and 5 other Aldermen, the Recorder, and is Common Counclimen, of whom one is elected Deputy Governor.

The City's Estate, in the possession of which the Corporation of London differs from other municipalities, is managed by the City Lands and Bridge House Estates Committee, the Chairmanship of which carries with it the title of "Chief Commoner."

The Right Honourable the Lord Mayor 1976-1977*

Cdr. Sir Robin Danvers Penrose Gillitt, Bt., G.B.e., R.D., R.N.R.; born 1925; Alderman of Bassishaw, 1969 ; Sheriff of London, 1973 ; Lord Mayor, 1976.
Secretary, Rear-Admiral E. W. Ellis, C.B., C.b.E.
Recorder, James William Miskin, Q.C., I975; Chamberlain, John Percival Griggs, M.C., 1974; Town Clerk, Stanley James Clayton, 1974; Common Serjeant, John Mervyn Guthrie Griffith-Jones, C.B.E., M.C., 1964.

The Sheriffs 1977-1978

Alderman Michael Herbert Hinton (see äbove) and Bernard Joseph Brown, elected June 29; assumed office September 28, 1977.

Public and perivate Buildings in London

ADELPHI, Strand, W.C.z.-Adelphi Terrace and district commemorate the four architect brothers, James, John, Robert and William ADAM, who laid out the district (formerly Durham House) at the close of the 18 th century. Four of the streets in the Adelphi were formerly called James, John, Robert, and William Streets to commemorate these founders of the Adam style of architecture and internal decoration. They are now Adam Street, John Adam Street, Robert Street and Durham House Street. Extensive rebuilding took place between the two World Wars, and there are now few r8th-century houses left in the district. In the neighbourhood of the Adelphi was York House, built by the Duke of Buckingham in 1625 (the Water Gate of which still stands in Embankment Gardens), the commemorative streets being Charles Street, Villiers Street, Duke Street, Of Lane, Buckingham Street (Of Lane is now "York Buildings ").

Australia House, Strand, W.C.2.-A handsome and imposing building, erected $1913-18$ by the Commonwealth of Australia as the offices of the High Commissioner for the Commonwealth. NEw South Wales, Queensland, Victoria and Western Australia have separate offices in the Strand; Tasmania at Golden Cross House, Charing Cross, and South Australia at S.A. House, 50 Strand, W.C.z.

Canada House, Trafalgar Square, S.W.r.-A conspicuous building on the Western side of the Square, housing the Office of the High Commissioner for Canada in the United Kingdom. Designed by Sir Robert Smirke and built in 1824 7, it was renovated and embellished when acquired from the Union Club in 1924. Further major alterations have been completed to incorporate the former Royal College of Physicians building, also designed by Sir Robert Smirke, which was acquired in 1964. The renovated building was re-opened in March, 1967. The exteriors of the two buildings were originally designed to create the appearance of a single building by presenting a common façade facing Trafalgar Square. Certain interior features of the original building are preserved and the spacious, richly furnished room now occupied by the High Commissioner is much admired. Surrounded by Offices of Canadian Banks, Steamship, Railway and other Companies, the Canadian Building is one of London's landmarks. It was opened by King George V. in June, 1925.

Canonbury Tower, Canonbury, N.x.-The largest remaining part of 16 th-century house originally built by the Priors of St. Bartholomew, and since $195^{2}$ used as the headquarters of a nonprofessional theatre company. Contains the "Spencer" and "Compton" oak-panelled rooms. Other relics of Canonbury House can be seen nearby.

ROMAN LONDON.-Though visible remains are very few, almost every excavation for the foundations of lww buildings in the City reveals Roman remains. Sections of the City wall, often however merely a medixval re-build on the Roman foundations, we the most striking remains still to be seen. Fragments may be seen near the White Tower in the Tower of London, Trinity Square, No. Crutched Friars, All Hallows, London Wallits semi-circular vestry being built on the remains of 1 round bastion-St. Alphage, London Wall, recently restored by the Corporation of London and showing astriking succession of building and repairs from Roman till later mediaval times, St. Giles, Cripplegate and, by permission only, the great bastion beneath the pavement of the yard of the G.P.O. in Giltspur Street. Recent excavations in the Cripplegate area have revealed that I fort was built in this area and later incorporated in the town wall in this north-west corner of the City. Evidence from these excavations proves that the fort not built until about A.D. 100-120 and the date of the town wall must therefore be considerably later. Remains of a bath building are preserved beneath the Coal Exchange in Lower Thames Street and other foundations may be seen in the Crypt of All Hallows Barking by the Tower. The governmental headquarters of the town wnis great basilica, more than 400 ft . long from east to west, the massive walls of which have been encountered, extending from Leadenhall Market across Gracechurch Street as far as St. Michael's, Cornhill. Excavations during the past few years have shown that buildings over the river front were erected on huge oaken piles and a framework of timber for 1 considerable distance both east and west of the present London Bridge. The "Roman Bath"', in Strand Lane approached via Surrey Street, which is not now held by most authorities to be of Roman origin, is maintained by the G.L.C. behalf of the National Trust, and is open to the public on weekdays from $10 \mathrm{a} . \mathrm{m}$. to $\mathbf{1 2 . 3 0} \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$. (Admission, 5P). Excavations since 1948 on a bombed site in Walbrook, on the banks of the old Wall Brook, produced interesting discoveries, including $\quad$ Temple of Mithras, from which the splendid marble statues have been placed in Guildhall Museum, now in the Royal Exchange, where many other relics from the Roman City may be seen.

THE PRINCIPAL ENGLISH CITIES

BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham (West Midlands) is the second largest City in Britain and the chief centre of the hardware trade. In local government reorganization effective from April x, 3974, Birmingham is merged with Sutton Coldfield as a Metropolitan District in the West Midlands Metropolitan County. II is estimated that over $x, 500$ distinct trades are carried on in the city, the chief industries being the manufacture of buttons, plastic goods, chocolate, chemicals, electroplate, guns, machine tools, glass, motor-cars and motor cycles, motor tyres, nuts and bolts, pens and nibs, tubes, paint and enamels, tools, toys, electrical apparatus, wire, jewellery and brass working, etc.

The first section of Birmingham's Queen Elizabeth Hospital, erected at Edgbaston ${ }^{\text {Wa}}$ a cost of approximately $£ x, 000,000$, is claimed to be the IIL $=$ of its type in Europe. A new maternity hospital adjoining was opened in 1969. The construction of an inner ring road round the centre was completed in 197x, hotel accommodation has been increased and there have been many improvements in the shopping centre including the redevelopment of the old market centre in the Bull Ring at a cost of $£ 8,000,000$. A new complex of buildings near the Town Hail includes a School of Music, Central Library, a shopping precinct and Corporation offices. A new television centre is in being and the City's new repertory theatre was opened in October, 197x. The National Exhibition Centre at Bickenhill opened in 1976 .

The principal buildings are the Town Hall, built in $188_{2}-1834$; the Council House and Corporation Museum and Art Gallery ( 5878 ); Victoria Law Courts ( I 89 I ); the University ( I 909 ); the Central Library; the $\mathrm{x}^{\text {th }}$ century Church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1873 ); the Cathedral (formerly St. Philip's Church); the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Chad (Pugin) and the Methodist Central Hall. Birmingham was incorporated as a borough in $\mathbf{x 8 3 8}$, and was created a city in $\mathbf{1 8 8 9}$. The generally accepted derivation of "Birmingham" is the ham or dwelling-place of the ing or the family of Beorma presumed to have been $\quad$ Saxon. Between the rxth and 16 th centuries the de Berminghams were Lords of the Manor.
The Lord Mayor (1977-78), Mrs. F. M. Cocks, O.B.E. Stipendiary Magistrate, J. F. Milward (1951).

BRADFORD

Bradpord (West Yorkshire), the principal town in the Metropolitan District of Bradford, is 192 miles N.N.W. of London and miles W. of Leeds. The metropolitan area is $9 x, 444$ acres with a population estimated at 460,000 .

Although the area has always been associated with wool and textiles, industrial activity now covers a much wider range, Together with Keighley and Shipley in the Aire valley it is well known for its engineering and electrical industries, high quality machine tools, mail order firms, iron and printing works and quarries.

The chief public buildings of Bradford in addition to the 1 $^{\text {th }}$ century Cathedral (formerly the Parish Church) and Bolling Hail ( 14 th century), are the City Hall ( $\mathrm{I}_{773}$ ), the tower of which contains clock with dials, chimes and a carillon, Cartwright Hall ( 1904 ) commemorating the inventor of the power loom, Grammar School (Charter 1662), St. George's Hall (Concert Hall, 1853 ), Technical College ( 1882 ), Wool Exchange ( $\mathbf{x} 867$ ), Britannia House (1933) and Bradford University. A new Central Library, planned on the "subject department "principle opened in 1967 and the new Magistrates' Courts were opened in 1972. The Civic Precinct was opened in 1974.

The Saxon township of Bradford was created a parliamentary borough in 1832 , a borough in $\times 847$, a county borough in 1889, and a city in 1897. The office of Lord Mayor was created in 1907. The Council consists of a Lord Mayor and 92 Councillors.
The Lord Mayor ( $1977-78$ ), P. Hockney.
Chief Executive, G. C. Moore.

BRISTOL

Bristol, situated in the new county of Avon, is the largest non-metropolitan district in population in the country, and is 199 miles W. of London. The present municipal area is 27,068 acres, with - population ( 1976 estimate) of 416,300 .

Among the various industries are aircraft and aeroengine construction, general and nuclear engineering, boot and shoe manufacture, chocolate and cocoa, tobacco, paper bags, cardboard and allied products, printing, chemical industry and shipbuilding and repairing. The principal imports are grain, flour and other cereal products, cocoa, tea, coffee, molasses, feeding stuffs, fruit, provisions, frozen meat, metals, ores, phosphates, paper, petroleum and chemicals, fertilizers, timber, tobacco, wood pulp and other goods, and the chief exports are metals and machinery, chemicals, unmanufactured clay, motor vehicles and parts, carbon black, electrical apparatus, tea, wines and spirits and manufactured goods.

The chief buildings, in addition to the 22 th century Cathedral (with later additions), with Norman Chapter House and gateway, the 34th century Church of St. Mary, Redeliffe (described by Queen Elizabeth I as "the fairest, goodliest, and most famous parish church in England ${ }^{"}$ ), and Wesley's Chapel, Broadmead, are the Merchant Venturers' Almshouses, the Council House (opened by H.M. the Queen in April, 1956), Guildhall, Exchange (erected from the designs of John Wood in 1743), City Museum and Art Gallery, Central Library, Cabot Tower, the University and Clifton College, Red Lodge (Tudor), Georgian House, and Blaise Castle and Mansion with Folk Museum. The Clifton Suspension Bridge, with a span of 702 feet over the Avon, was projected by Brunel in 1836 but was not completed until 1864 . Brunel's SS Great Britain, the first ocean going propeller driven ship, is now being restored in the City Docks from where she was launched in 1843 . The new Roman Catholic Cathedral at Clifton was opened in 1973.

Bristol was 1 Royal Borough before the Norman Conquest. In 1373 it received from Edward III I charter granting it county statutes and in 1899 its Mayor became a Lord Mayor. The Corporation includes 84 Councillors. The earliest forms of the name are Brigstowe and Bristow.
The Lord Mayor (x977-78), E. J. Wright. Chief Executive, P. M. McCarthy.

CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE, a settlement far older than its ancient University, lies on the Cam or Granta, 5 I miles north of London and 65 miles south-west of Norwich. It has an area of 10,060 acres and population (est., 1974) of 104,000.

The city is a parliamentary borough, county town and regional headquarters. Its industries, which include radio and electronics, flour milling, cement making and the manufacture of scientific instruments are extensive but nowhere obtrusive. Among its open spaces II Jesus Green, Sheep's Green, Coe Fen, Parker's Piece, Christ's Pieces, the University Botanic Garden, and the Backs, or lawns and gardens through which the Cam winds behind the principal line of college buildings. East of the Cam, King's Parade, upon which stand Great St. Mary's Church, Gibbs' Senate House and King's College Chapel with Wilkins' screen, joins Trumpington Street to form one of the most beautiful throughfares in Europe.

University and College buildings provide the outstanding features of Cambridge architecture but several churches (especially St. Benet's, the oldest building in the City, and St. Sepulchre's the Round Church) also make notable contributions. The modern Guildhall (x939) stands on a site of which at least part has held municipal buildIngs since 1224.
The City Council has 42 members. The District - granted Borough status and reaccorded the style of City from April 1974.
Mayor ( $\mathbf{1 9 7 7}-7^{8)}$, M. J. Garner.
Chief Executive, G. G. Datson.

CANTERBURY

Cantrebury, the Metropolitan City of the Anglican Communion, has an unbroken history going back to prehistoric times. It was the Roman Durovernum and the Saxon Cant-wara-byrig (stronghoid of the men of Kent). Here in 597 St. Augustine began the re-conversion of the English to Christianity, when Etheibert, King of Kent, 111 baptized. In $1 \times 70$ the rivalry of Church and State culminated in the murder in Canterbury Cathedral, by Henry II.'s knights, of Archbishop Thomas Becket, whose shrine became a great centre of pilgrimage as described by Chaucer in his Canterbury Tales. After the Reformation pilgrimages ceased, but the prosperity of the City Thin strengthened by an influx of Huguenot refugees, who introduced weaving. In the first Elizabethan W1 Christopher Marlowe, the poetic genius and precursor of Shakespeare, was born and reared in Canterbury, and there are literary associations also with Defoe, Dickens and Barham, author of the Ingoldsby Legends, and Somerset Maugham.
The Cathedral, with its glorious architecture ranging from the eleventh to the fifteenth centuries, is world-famous. Modern pilgrims are attracted particularly to the Martyrdom, the Black Prince's Tomb and other historic monuments, the Warriors' Chapel and the many examples of medixval stained glass.
Of the Benedictine St. Augustine's Abbey, burial place of the Jutish Kings of Kent (whose capital Canterbury was) only extensive ruins remain. St. Martin's Church, on the eastern outskirts of the City, is stated by Bede to have been the place of worship of Queen Bertha, the Christian wife of King Ethelbert, before the advent of St. Augustine.
The medirval City Walls are built Roman foundations and the fourteenth century West Gate is one of the finest buildings of its kind in the country.
The University of Kent at Canterbury admitted first students in 1965.
The city has marea of 120 square miles, and population of $x 55,000$. Before the institution of the Mayoralty in 1448 it w. governed by balliffs and earlier still by prefects or provosts.

Sheriff (1977-78), S. G. Donnithorne.
Chief Executive, C. C. Gay.

COVENTRY

Coventry (West Midlands) is in city 9 a miles N.W. of London, and important industrial centre. It has a population (estimated, 1977) of 337,000.

Coventry owes its beginning to Leofric, Earl of Mercia and his wife Godiva in ro43, when they founded a Benedictine Monastery. The beautiful guildhall of St. Mary dates from the 34 th century, three of its churches date from the x4th and 15 th centuries. Sixteenth century almshouses may still be seen. Coventry's first cathedral was destroyed at the Reformation, its second in the 1940 blitz (its walls and spire remain) and the great new cathedral designed by Sir Basil Spence, consecrated in 1962, now draws innumerable visitors.

Post-war public buildings include the Art Gallery and Museum, Lanchester Polytechnic, the Civic Theatre, new swimming baths and sports centre.

Coventry returns four M.P.'s. It is governed by a Lord Mayor and I Council of 54. Coventry produces cars, agricultural machinery, machine tools and telecommunications.

NORWICH

NORWICH (Norfolk) is an ancient City 110 miles N.E. of London. It grew from an early Anglo-Saxon settlement near the confluence of the Rivers Yare and Wensum, and now serves as provincial capital for the predominantly agricultural region of East Anglia. The name is thought to relate to the most northerly of a group of Anglo-Saxon villages or "wics". The present City comprises an area of 9,655 acres, with a population ( $197 \times$ Census, preliminary) of 121,688 .

Norwich serves its surrounding area as market town and commercial centre, banking and insurance being prominent among the City's businesses. Continuously from the fourteenth century, however (when Flemish immigrants helped to establish Norwich as the centre of the woollen industry until the Industrial Revolution) it has combined industry with commerce, and manufactures of a wide variety are now produced in the City. The biggest single industry is the manufacture of shoes and other principal trades are engineering, printing, and the production of chemicals, clothing, confectionery and other foodstuffs. Norwich is accessible to seagoing vessels by means of the River Yare, entered at Great Yarmouth, 20 miles to the east.

Among many historic buildings are the Cathedral (completed in the twelfth century and surmounted by $\quad$ fifteenth century spire 315 feet in height), the Keep of the Norman Castle (now serving as a museum and also housing the Colman Collection of works by the Norwich School of painters), the fifteenth century flint-walled Guildhall, some thirty medixval parish churches, St. Andrew's and Blackfriars' Halls, the Tudor houses preserved in Elm Hill and the Georgian Assembly House. The administrative centre of the City is the City Hall, built in 1938. A new central library, opened in r963, is adjacent to the City Hall. The University of East Anglia has been established in Norwich and received its first students in 1963 . The buildings of the University occupy spacious site at Earlham on the City's western boundary.

The City's first known Charter was granted in Ix 58 by Henry II and its privileges and form of self government were prescribed successively by later Charters until the enactment of the Municipal Corporations Act, 2835 . The City Council consists of 48 Councillors.

OXFORD

OXFORD is a University City, uI important industrial centre, and market town. A City from time immemorial, it has -1 area of 8,785 acres and a population of $1 \times 5,100$. Oxford is a parliamentary constituency returning one member and is governed by - Council of 45 members. Industry played - minor part in Oxford until the motor industry was established in 1912.

It is for its architecture that Oxford is of most interest to the visitor, its oldest specimens being the reputed Saxon tower of St. Michael's church, the remains of the Norman castle and city walls and the Norman church at Iffley. It is chiefly famous however, for its Gothic buildings, such as the Divinity Schools, the Old Library at Merton College, William of Wykeham's New College, Magdalen College and Christ Church and many other college buildings. Later centuries are not represented by so many examples, but mention can be made of the exquisite Laudian quadrangle at St. John's College, the Renaissance Sheldonian Theatre by Wren, Trinity College Chapel, and All Saints Church; Hawksmoor's mock-Gothic at All Souls College, and the superb example of eighteenth century architecture afforded by Queen's College. In addition to individual buildings, High Street and Radcliffe Square, just off it, both form architectural compositions of great beauty. Most of the Colleges have gardens, those of Magdalen, New College, St. John's (designed by "Capability" Brown) and Worcester being the largest.

The visitor will always find some of the college chapels, halls and gardens open for public inspection between xo a.m. and 5 p.m.
Lord Mayor (x977 78 ), Mrs. D. M. Carr.

WINCHESTER

WINCHESTER, the ancient capital of England, is situated on the River Itchen 65 miles S.W. of London and 12 miles north of Southampton. Since local government reorganisation in 1974, the style of City has been accorded to the whole of the new district of Winchester. The new City embraces an area of 162,921 acres of Mid-Hampshire and has a population of 88,900 .

Winchester is rich in architecture of all types but the cathedral takes first place. The longest Gothic cathedral in the world, it was built in 1079-1093 and exhibits splendid examples of Norman, Early English and Perpendicular styles. Winchester College, founded in 1382, is one of the most famous public schools, the original building (of 1393 ) remaining unaltered. St. Cross Hospital, another great medieval foundation, lies I mile south of the city. Founded in 1136 by Bishop Henry de Blois, the Almshouses were re-established in 1445 by Cardinal Hendry Beaufort. The Chapel and dwellings are of great architectural interest, and visitors may still receive the "Wayfarer's Dole" of bread and ale.

Recent excavations on many sites in the city have done much to clarify the origins and subsequent development of Winchester. Excavations in the Cathedral Close have uncovered the entire site of the Anglo-Saxon cathedral, known as the Old Minster, and parts of the New Minster, built by Alfred's son Edward the Elder, and the burial place of the Alfredian dynasty. The original burial place of St. Swithun, before his remains were translated to a site in the present cathedral, was also uncovered.
Excavations in other parts of the City have thrown much light on Norman Winchester, notably on the site of the Royal Castle, adjacent to which the new Law Courts have been built and in the grounds of the Bishop's Palace at Wolvesey, where the great house built by Bishops Walkelin and Henry of Blois in the early $x$ th century has been uncovered. Mayor (1977-78), D. G. Ball.
Chief Executive, E. M. E. White.

YORK

The City of York is $\quad$ District in the County of North Yorkshire, and is an archiepiscopal seat. The City has an area of 7,295 acres and a population of rox,900. It returns one member to Parliament and is governed by 39 Councillors.

The recorded history of York dates from A.D. 7x, when the Roman Ninth Legion established $\quad$ base under Petilius Cerealis which later became the fortress of Eboracum. By the 14th century the city had become prosperous and was used as the chief base against the Scots. It became agreat mercantile centre, chiefly owing to its control of the wool trade, but under the Tudors its fortunes declined, though Henry VIII made it the headquarters of the Council of the North.
With its development as a railway centre in the 19th century the commercial life of York expanded and it is now a flourishing modern city. The principal industries are the manufacture of chocolate, railway coaches, scientific instruments, glass containers and sugar. The City is also an important tourist centre.

It is rich in examples of architecture of all periods. The earliest church (built, 627 ) was succeeded by several others until, in the rath to the 15 th centuries, the present Minster was built in a succession of styles. The finest features are the West front with its two towers, the spacious transepts and the stained glass. Other examples within the city are the mediaeval city walls and gateways, churches and guildhalls. Domestic architecture includes the Georgian mansions of The Mount, Micklegate and Bootham. Its museums are world-famous and include the Castle Museum which is one of the bestknown folk museums in Great Britain and the new National Railway Museum.
Rt. Hon. Lord Mayor (r977-78), T. Hibbert.
Sheriff ( $977-78$ ), M. J. Heppell.

AERODROMES AND AIRPORTS

There are $\mathbf{x} 6 \mathrm{x}$ aerodromes in Great Britain, Northern Ireland, the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands which are either State owned, operated by the Civil Aviation Authority or licensed for use by civil aircraft. A number of unlicensed airfields not included in this list are also available for private use by permission of the owner or controlling authority.

> S= Aerodrome owned and operated by the State.
> CAA = Aerodrome operated by the Civil Aviation Authority.
> BAA = Aerodrome operated by the British Airports Authority.
> M = Aerodrome owned or operated by Municipal Authority.
> J= Military airfield available for civil use by prior permission.
> H=Licensed helicopter station.

Those aerodromes which are designated as Customs airports are printed in bold type. Customs facilities w available at certain other aerodromes by special arrangement.

THE PRINCIPALITY OF WALES

Position and extent.-Wales occupies the extreme west of the central southern portion of the island of Great Britain, with a total area of $8,017 \mathrm{sq}$. miles ( $5,130,880$ acres); it is bounded on the N. by the Irish Sea, on the S. by the Bristol Channel, on the E. by the English counties of Cheshire, Salop, Hereford and Worcester and Cloucester, and on the W. by St. George's Channel. Across the Menai Straits is the Welsh island of Anglesey or Ynys Mōn ( 276 sq. miles), communication with which is facilitated by the Menai Suspension Bridge ( $x, 000$ ft. long), built by Telford in 1826 (freed from toll as from Jan. I, 194I) and by the tubular railway bridge ( $1,100 \mathrm{ft}$. long) of the former L.M. \& S. Railway, built by Stephenson in 1850 . Holyheadharbour, on Holy Isle (N.W. of Anglesey), provides accommodation for a fast steam packet service to Dun Laoghaire and Dublin ( 70 miles).

Population.-The population at the Census of x97x was $2,723,596$ (preliminary figures), compared with $2,644,023$ at the $196 x$ Census.

Relief.-Wales is mostly mountainous, the chief systems being those of North Wales (Snowdon 3.560 ft ., Carnedd Llywelyn $3,484 \mathrm{ft}$., Carnedd Dafydd 3,426 ft.); Berwyn (Aran-mawddwy 2,970 ft.); Powys (Plinlimmon 2,468 ft., Drygan Fawr 2,II5 ft ., Radnor $2,163 \mathrm{ft}$.); and the Black Mountain, Brecknock Beacons and Black Forest ranges (Carmarthen Van 2,632 ft., Brecon Beacon 2,906 ft., Pen-y-gader fawr $2,660 \mathrm{ft}$.).

Hydrography. - The principal river of those rising in Wales is the Severn (see England), which flows from the slopes of Plinlimmon to the English border. The Wye ( 130 miles) also rises in the slopes of Plinlimmon. The Usk ( 56 miles) flows into the Bristol Channel, through Gwent. The Dee ( 70 miles) rises in Bala Lake and flows through the Vale of Llangollen, where an aqueduct (built by Telford in 1805) carries the Pontcysyllte branch of the Shropshire Union Canal across the valley. The estuary of the Dee is the navigable portion, i4 miles in length and about 5 miles in breadth, and the tide rushes in with dangerous speed over the "Sands of Dec". The Towy ( 68 miles), Teifi ( 50 miles), Taff ( 40 miles), Dovey ( 30 miles), Taf ( 25 miles), and Conway ( 24 miles), the last named broad and navigable, are wholly Welsh rivers.

The largest natural lake in Wales is Bala (Llyn Tegid) in Gwynedd, 4 miles long and about mile wide; Lake Vyrnwy is an artificial reservoir, about the size of Bala, and forms the water supply of Liverpool, and Birmingham is supplied from a chain of reservoirs in the Elan and Clærwen valleys.

The Welsh Language.-Statistics published Oct. 1, 1973, show that only 542,400 persons (of three years and over) in Wales were able to speak Welsh at the time of the 197x Census, compared with 656,000 at the 196 I Census and 715,000 at the 1951 Census. One per cent. of the population could speak Welsh only, compared with 4 per cent. iu 1931. The proportion of people speaking Welsh fell from 28.9 per cent. in $195 \times$ to 20.8 per cent. in 197x. As in 196r, the Western Counties ( $75^{\circ} 9$ per cent.), had the highest proportion of Welsh speakers.

Flag.-A red dragon on a green and white field (per fess argent and vert a dragon passant gules). The flag was augmented in 1953 by royal badge on a shield encircled with $I$ riband bearing the words Ddraig Goch Ddyry Cychwyn and imperially crowned. Only the unaugmented flag is flown on Government offices in Wales and, where appropriate, in London. Both flags continue to be used elsewhere.

EARLY HISTORY

Celts and Romans.-The earliest inhabitants of whom there is any record appear to have been subdued or exterminated by the Goidels (a people of Celtic race) in the Bronze Age, and further invasion of Ceitic Brythons and Belgae followed in the ensuing Iron Age. The Roman conquest of South Britain and Wales was for some time successfully opposed by Caratacus (Caractacus or Caradog), Chieftain of the Catuvellauni and om of Cunobelinus (Cymbeline) King of the Trinobantes. In A.D. $7^{8}$ the conquest of Wales was completed under Julius Frontinus, and communications were opened up by the construction of military roads from Chester to Caerleon-on-Usk and Caerwent, and from Chester to Conway (and thence to Carmarthen and Neath). Christianity was introduced (during the Roman occupation) in the 4th century.

The Anglo-Saxon Attacks.-The Anglo-Saxon invaders of South Britain drove the Celtic Goidels and Brythons into the mountain fastnesses of Wales, and into Strathclyde (Cumberland and S.W. Scotland) and Cornwall giving them the name of Waelisc, or Welsh (=Foreign). The West Saxons' victory of Deorham (577) isolated Wales from Cornwall and the battle of Chester ( $6 \mathrm{I}_{3}$ ) cut off communication with Strathclyde. In the 8th century the boundaries of the Welsh were further restricted by the annexations of Offa, King of Mercia, and counter-attacks were largely prevented by the construction of an artificial boundary from the Dee to the Wye (Offa's Dike). In the gth century Rhodri Mawr united the country against further incursions of the Saxons by land and against the raids of Norse and Danish pirates by sea, but at his death his three provinces of Gwynedd (N.), Pouys (Mid.) and Dehenbarth (S.) were divided among his three sons-Anarawd, Mervyn and Cadell-the son of the last named being Howel Dda, who codified the laws of the country, while Llewelyn ap Sitsyhlt (husband of the heiress of Gwynedd) again united the provinces and reigned as Prince from ror 8 to roz3.

The Norman Conquest.-After the Norman conquest of England, William I created Palatine counties along the Welsh frontier, and Robert FitzHamon, the Norman Earl of Gloucester, raided South Wales and erected fortresses from the Wye to Milford Haven. Henry I introduced Flemish settlers into South Wales, but after his death the Welsh rose under the leadership of Griffith ap Rhys and routed the Norman-Flemish forces at the fords of the Teifi (Cardigan) in Ir36. From the early years of the $33^{\text {th }}$ century the house of Gwynedd, in the north, gained an ascendancy over the whole of Wales, and Llywelyn Iorwerth was in constant strife with England for recognition as independent sovereign. Llywelyn ap Gruffydd (grandson of Llywelyn ap lorwerth), the last native prince, was killed in 1282 during hostilities between the Welsh and English. On Feb. 7, z30x, Edward of Caernarvon, son of Edward I, was created Prince of Wales.

The Welsh are a distinct nationality, with language and literature of their own, and the national bardic festival (Eisteddfod), instituted by Prince Rhys ap Griffith in $x 176$, is annually maintained. These Eisteddfodau (sessions) form part of the Gorsedd (assembly), which is believed to date from the time of Prydian, a ruling prince in an many centuries before the Christian era.

CARDIFF

CARDIFF (South Glamorgan) at the mouth of the rivers Taff, Rhymney and Ely, is the capital City of Wales and one of Britain's major administrative, commercial and office centres. It has many industries including steel works, car component manufacturing, cigars and a flourishing port with a substantial and varied trade, including citrus fruits and timber. There are many fine buildings in the civic centre started early this century which includes the City Hall, the National Museum of Wales, University Buildings, Law Courts, Welsh Office, County Hall, Police Headquarters and the Temple of Peace and Health. Also in the city are Llandaff Cathedral, the Welsh National Folk Museum at St. Fagans and Cardiff Castle.

New buildings include the Sherman Theatre and the Cardiff College of Music and Drama. The City returns four Members to Parliament. Population, 287,000.
Rt. Hon. Lord Mayor (1977-78), D. Purnell. Stipendiary Magistrate, Sir Lincoln Hallinan. Chief Executive, H. Mansfield, O.B.E.

SWANSEA

SWANSEA (in Welsh, Abertawe), is $=$ City and a seaport of West Glamorgan with its own municipal airport. The beautiful Gower Peninsula was brought within the City boundary under local Government reform on April x, 1974. The trade of the port includes coal, patent fuel, ores, and the import and export of oil. The municipal area is 60,5 II acres, with population ( 1976 est.) of 192,500.

The principal buildings are the Norman Castle (rebuilt in 1330), the Royal Institution of South Wales, founded in 1835 (containing Museum and Library), the University College at Singleton and the Guildhall, containing the Brangwyn panels. Swansea was chartered by the Earl of Warwick, circa $1155^{8-1184}$, and further charters were granted by King John, Henry III., Edward II., Edward III. and James II., $\quad$ from Cromwell and $=$ Lord Marcher. Mayor ( $9977-78$ ), Mrs, P. L. Jenkins.
Chief Exceutive, A. N. F. Rees.

THE KINGDOM OR SCOTLAND

Position and Extent.-The Kingdom of Scotland occupies the northern portion of the main island of Great Britain and includes the Inner and Outer Hebrides, and the Orkney, Shetland, and many other islands. The Kingdom lies between $60^{\circ} 5 I^{\prime} 30^{\prime \prime}$ and $54^{\circ} 38^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. latitude and between $x^{\circ} 45^{\prime} 3 z^{\prime \prime}$ and $6^{\circ} 14^{4} \mathrm{~W}$. longitude, its southern neighbour being the Kingdom of England, with the Atlantic Ocean on the N. and W., and the North Sea on the E. The greatest length of the mainland (Cape Wrath to the Mull of Galloway) is 274 miles, and the greatest breadth (Buchan Ness to Applecross) is 154 miles. The total area of the Kingdom is 29,798 square miles (or $19,068,724$ actes) exclusive of inland water, tidal water and foreshore. The population (x97x Census, prelim.) was $5,327,706$, an increase of 48,362 n 0.09 per cent. annually since the census of 196 r . The average density of the population in 1972 was 175 persons per square mile, compared with $17 x$ persons per square mile in $195 x$.
Land's End to John o' Groats.-The customary measurement of the Island of Great Britain is from the site of John $0^{\circ}$ Groat's house, II. Duncansby Head, Caithness (at the N.E. extremity of IIE island) to Land's End, Cornwall (at the S.W. extremity), a total distance of 603 miles in a straight line and (approximately) 900 by road. But the site of the house of John de Groot (with its 8 doors and octagonal table, to solve the question of precedence between John and his $\eta$ brothers) is about 4 miles S.W. of Duncansby Head, while Dunnet Head (also in Caithness) extends farther N. than Duncansby. John de Groot is believed to have obtained permission to settle in Caithness (from the Netherlands) in the reign of James IV ( $3488-\times 5 \times 3$ ).

Relief.-There are three natural orographic divisions of Scotland. The Souther Uplands have their highest points in Merrick ( 2,764 feet), Rinns of Kells ( 2,668 feet), and Cairnsmuir of Carsphairn ( 2,612 feet), in Kirkcudbright; Hartfell ( $2,65 \mathrm{f}$ feet) in Dumfries; and Broad Law ( 2,754 feet) in Peebles. The Central Lowlands inciude the valleys of the Tay, Forth and Clyde, and the cities of Edinburgh, the capital of the Kingdom, and Glasgow, its principal seaport. The heather-clad Northerm Highlands extend almost from the extreme north of the mainland to the central lowlands, and divided into a northern and southern system by the Great Glen; they contain, in the central Grampian Hills, Ben Nevis ( 4,406 feet), the highest point in the British Isles, and Ben Mulch Dhui ( 4,296 feet). The Cheviot Hills form natural boundary between Scotland and England, their highest point being The Cheviot ( 2,676 feet).

Hydrography. -The principal river of Scotland is the Clyde (ro6 miles), one of the most important rivers in the world, with the greatest commercial estuary in Scotland. The Clyde is formed by the junction of Daer and Portrail water, and flows through the eity and port of Glasgow to the Firth of Clyde. During its course it passes over the picturesque Falls of Clyde, Bonnington Linn ( 30 feet), Corra Linn ( 84 feet), Dundaff Linn (so feet) and Stonebyres Linn ( 80 feet), above and below Lanark. The Tweed ( 96 miles) has important woollen industries in its valley. The Tay, noted for its salmon, and the longest river in Scotland ( II 7 miles, flows into the North Sea, with Dundee (the centre of the jute industry) on the estuary, which is spanned by the Tay Bridge ( $\mathbf{x 0}, 289 \mathrm{ft}$.), opened IiI 1887 , and the Tay Road Bridge ( $7,365 \mathrm{ft}$.), opened by H.M. Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother III Aug. 18, 1966. The Dee ( 90 miles), $\quad$ noted salmon river. lows through scenery of unequalled beauty to the North Aberdeen. The Spey (iso miles), the swiftest flowing river in the British Isles, and also noted for its salmon and its scenery, flows into the Moray Firth. The Forth ( 66 miles), navigable to Stirling, is spanned by the Forth (Railway) Bridge ( 8890 ), constructed at a cost of $£ 3,000,000$, with II length of $5,330 \mathrm{ft}$., and the Forth (Road) Bridge, with a total length of $6,156 \mathrm{ft}$. (over water) and $\square$ single span of $3,300 \mathrm{ft}$. The latter was completed in 1964 at $I$ cost of $£ 20,000,000$.

The waterfall, Eas-Coul-Aulin in Sutherland with Ital height of 658 ft . and the Falls of Glomach in Ross-shire, with a drop of 370 feet, wa the highest in the British Isles; the Grey Mare's Tail (Dumfriesshire) is 200 feet.
The lochs the principal hydrographic feature of the Kingdom, both on the mainland and in many of the Islands. The largest in the Kingdom and in Great Britain is Loch Lomond ( 24 miles long), with Lochs Awe, Tay, Rannoch and Ericht in the Grampian valleys; Loch Ness ( 24 miles long and 800 feet deep), with Lochs Oich and Lochy, in the Great Glen; and Lochs Shin ( 20 miles) and Maree in the northern Highlands.
Climate. - The general climatic values for Scotland are given below, together with the corresponding values for England and Wales within brackets-mean air temperature reduced to sea level $47 \cdot x^{\circ}$ F. ( $49 \cdot 7$ ); rainfall, $50 \cdot 3$ incies ( $35 \cdot z$ ); number of days with rain 217 ( $\mathbf{2 8 8}$ ); mean hours per day of bright sunshine, $3 \cdot 36$ ( $3 \cdot 96$ ).

Gaelic Language. - The preliminary report on the 196x Census of Scotland showed that 76,587 persons were Gaelic speakers, compared with 95,447 in x951. 1,079 persons spoke Gaelic only and not English (compared with $2,17^{8}$ in 1951). The majority of Gaelic speakers lived in the counties of Ross and Cromarty ( 38.29 per cent.) and Inverness (24:44 per cent.). 75,508 persons spoke both Gaelic and English, compared with 93,269 in 195 .

Commerce.-The principal exports are machinery, ships and vehicles, iron and steel manufacturers, non-ferrous metals, woollen and worsted yarns and products, food and drink and textile materials. Whisky continues to be the leading export to dollar countries.

THE SCOTTISH ISLANDS

The preliminary report on the 1971 Census of Scotland showed a continued decline in the population of the islands. The populations at April 25, 197x, with 1963 populations in parenthesis, included: Islay, 3,825 (1965, 3,871); Mull (including lona, etc.), 1,560 ( 1,635 ); Coll and Tiree, 1,021 ( 1,173 ); Skye 7,372 ( 7,772 ); Barra, 1,087 ( 1,564 ); North Uist, 1,732 ( 1,982 ); South Uist, $3,78 \mathrm{I}(4,000)$.

Orkney.-About 6 miles N. of the Caithness coast, separated from the mainland by the Pentland Fith, is the island county of Orkney, I group of 90 islands and islets ("holms" and "skerries "). of which one-third inhabited. The total of the group is $375 \frac{1}{2}$ square miles, with a population (x978 Census, preliminary) of 17,075 ( $x 961$, 18,888). r97x populations of the islands (with 1961 ngures in italic) are: Eday, 179 (202); Hoy and Walls, 53 ( 699 ); Mainland, 6,502 ( 7,764 ); N Ronaldsay, 134 (166); Rousay, 256 (350); Sanday, 592 (682); Shapinsay, 346 (432); S. Ronaldsay, 990 $(1,275)$; Stronsay, 440 (497); Westray $841(1,015)$, Kirkwall ( 4,618 ), in Mainland (Pomona), the largest island of the group, is the capital of the county Many of the Orkney (and Shetland) Islands contain brochs (Pictish towers) and other Pictish and Scandinavian remains. Scapa Flow, between Mainland and Hoy, was the war station of the Grand Fleet from 1914-19 and the scene of the scuttling of the surrendered German (yin Seas Fleet (June ax, 1939.)

Zetland.-About 50 miles N. of Orkney (with the detached Fair isle at 25 miles N.) tive island county of Zetland or Shetland, group of about 100 islands and islets, of which one-fifth are inhabited. The total area of the group is 551 square miles, with population (x97x Census, prelim.) of ${ }^{17,298}$ ( $196 x, 17,978$ ). Lerwick ( 6,107 ), in Mainland (the largest and principal island), is the capital of the county. Fair Isle, the southernmost of the group is famous for handknitted hosiery, and Unst (with Fair Isle, 1, 129) for the finest of the Shetland woollen work for which the county is famous. Muckle Flugga, about I mile N. of Unst, the most northerly of the group and of the British Isles $\left(60^{\circ} 57^{\prime} 30^{\prime \prime} \mathrm{N}\right.$. lat.).

Western Islands.- Off the W. coast, at varying distances, and extending from Sutherland to Argyll, mu over 500 islands and islets, of which min are inhabited. The total area of these Western Islands 2,812 square miles, but owing to the mountainous surface of the land only about 300 square miles are under cultivation. The Hebrides.Until the closing years of the 13 th century "The Hebrides "included other Scottish islands in the Firth of Clyde, the peninsula of Kintyre (Argyllshire), the Isle of Man, and the (Irish) Isle of Rathlin. The orisin of the name is stated to be the Greek Eboudai, latinized = Hebudes by Pliny, and corrupted to its present form. The Norwegian name Sudreyjar (Southern Islands) was latinized $\quad$ Sodoreness, a name that survives in the Anglican bishopric of "Sodor and Man." The Inner Hebrides include the island of Skye ( 643 square miles-capital, Portree, famous as a refuge of Prince Charlie after his defeat $:$ Culloden, Inverness-shire, in 1746), which contains the Cuillins (Sgurr Alasdair 3,309 feet), Red Hills (Ben Caillich, 2,403 feet), and many other picturesque mountains; Mull ( 367 square miles), containing Ben More (3,169 feet), Ben Buy ( 2,354 feet), and Ben Creach ( 2,289 feet $)$; Jura ( $\mathbf{x} 60$ square miles), with a chain of hills culminating in the Paps of Jura (Beinn-an-Oir, 2,57x feet and Beinn Chaolais, 2,407 feet); Islay ( 235 square miles), and many smaller islands. The Outer Hebrides, separated from the mainland by the Minch, include Lewis with Harris (77o square miles), celebrated for its homespun Tweeds," North Uist, South Uist, Barra and other islands. Thirteen miles W. of Stomoway (the largest town of Lewis and of the Hebrides) in the "Druidical" remains of Callanish, a well-preserved series of monolithic circles, cruciform in general arrangement, but usually regarded as $=$ heathen montrment of the remote Stone Age.

EARLY HSTORY

Prehistoric Man.-The Picts, believed to be of non-Aryan origin, and stated to have been named picti by the Romans uil account of the tribal habit of painting the body, seem to have inhabited the whole of North Britain and to have spread over the north of Ireland. Picts' Houses are most frequent in the northern counties of Caithness and Sutherland and in the Orkney Islands. Celtic Goidels, Brythons and Belgae arrived from Belgic Gaul during the latter part of the Bronze Age and in the early Iron Age, and except in the extreme north of the mainland and in the islands the civilization and speech of the people were definitely Celtic at the time of the Roman Invasion of Britain.

The Roman Invasion.-In A.D. 80 Julius Agricola extended the Roman conquests in Britain by advancing into Caledonia as far as the " Grampian " Hills, but after a victory at Mons Graupius (since corrupted to "Grampius ") he was recalled, and further advance made for about 60 years, when the Roman frontier was carried to the isthmus between the Forth and Clyde and marked by the Wall of Pius, towards which military roads from the Cheviots. The Roman occupation of Southern Caledonia was not so effective as that of South Britain, and before the close of the second century the northern limit of Roman Britain had receded to Hadrian's Wall (Tyne to Solway Firth).

The Scots.-During the later years of the Roman occupation the garrison was continually harassed by Pictish tribes north of the Wall, aided by Scots (the Gaelic tribe then dominant in Ireland), and when the garrison withdrawn these Picts and Scots were the principal enemies of the Celtic Brythons, who are believed to have called in the Saxons to protect them from the invasions of their neighbours. A relic of the struggle between Pict and Brython is still to be seen in the Catrail, or Picts' Work Dyke, of Roxburgh (from Torwoodlee, near Galashiels, to Peel Fell in the Cheviots). Christianity was introduced into Southern Caledonia about 380 by missionaries from Romanized Britain, who penetrated to the northern districts and islands. After the withdrawal (or absorption) of the Roman garrison of Britain there were many years of tribal warfare between the Picts and Scots, the Brythonic Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde (South-west Scotland and Cumberland), and the Anglo-Saxons of the Lothians. The Waelisc were isolated from their kinsmen in Wales by the victory of the West Saxons at Chester ( $6 \times 3$ ), and towards the close of the gth century the Scots under Kenneth Macalpine became the dominant power in Caledonia. In thie reign of Malcolm I (943-954) the Brythons of Waelisc (Welsh) of Strathclyde were brought into subjection, the lowland kingdom of the English (Lothian) being conquered by Malcolm II ( 2005 - zO 34 ). From the close of the x ith century until the middle of the 16 th there were constant wars between Scotland and England, the outstanding figures in the struggle being William Wallace, who defeated the English at Stirling Bridge ( $\mathbf{1 2 9 7}$ ) and Robert Bruce, who won the victory of Bannockburn ( $\mathbf{x} 314$ ). James IV and many of his nobles fell at the disastrous battle of Flodden ( $15 \times 3$ ), and in 1603 James VI, the Stuart King of Scotland and the heir to the Tudor line of England (his mother, Mary Queen of Scots, was the great-granddaughter of Henry VII), succeeded Queen Elizabeth I on the throne, his successors reigning as Sovereigns of Great Britain. After the abdication (by flight) of James VII and II, the crown devolved upon William III (grandson of Charles I) and Mary (daughter of James VII and II) and, their issue failing, upon Anne (second daughter of James VII and II). Anne's children died young, and the throne developed upon George I (great-grandson of James VI and I). In 3689 Graham of Claverhouse "roused the Highlands" on behalf of James VII and II, but died after a military success at Killiecrankie. In 1725 . armed risings led to the indecisive battle of Sherifimuir, but the movement died down until 1745 , when Prince Charles Edward defeated the Royalist troops under Sir John Cope at Prestonpans and advanced to Derby in England (1746). From Derby, the adherents of "James VIII and III" (the title claimed for his father by Prince Charles Edward) fell back on the defensive, and the Jacobite movement was finally crushed by the Royalist troops under the Duke of Cumberland at Culloden (April r6, 1746).

The Hebrides did not become part of the Kingdom of Scotland until 1266, when they were ceded to Alexander III by Magnus of Norway. Orkney and Shetland fell to the Scottish Crown as 1 pledge for the unpaid dowry of Margaret of Denmark, wife of James III, in 1468 , the Danish suzerainty being formally relinquished in $\mathbf{5 5 9 0}$.

The population of Northern Ireland in 1976 was $x, 538,049$ (males, 761,$556 ;$ females, 776,493 ) compared with intal population of $x, 484,775$ at the Census of 1966 . In I97x the number of persons in the various religious denominations (expressed as percentages of the total population) were: Roman Catholic, $3 \mathbf{1}^{1.4}$; Presbyterian, $26 \cdot 7$; Church of Ireland, 22 ; Methodist, 4.7 ; others $5 \cdot 8 ;$ not stated, $9 \cdot 4$. Northern Ireland has total area of $5,452 \mathrm{sq}$. miles (land, $5,206 \mathrm{sq}$. miles; inland water and tideways, 246 sq . miles) with $\begin{aligned} & \text { density }\end{aligned}$ population of 282 persons per sq. mile in 197 I .

Constitution and Government. A separate parliament and executive Government was established for Northern Ireland in 1925 by the Government of Ireland Act. The Northern Ireland Constitution Act, 1973 , abolished the post of Governor and Parliament of Northern Ireland and provided for the transfer of certain legislative functions to a Northern Ireland Assembly and Executive. Elections for a Northern Ireland Assembly took place on June 28, x973. Devolved Government came into operation with effect from January I, 1974 but when the Executive collapsed the Northern Ireland Assembly was prorogued on May 29 1974. The Northern Ireland Constitution Act, 1974, which became law in July 1974, made provision for temporary arrangements for the government of Northern Ireland by the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland and also provided for the holding of elections and II Constitutional Convention. The Convention which had the purpose of considering what provision for the government of Northern Ireland was likely to command the most widespread acceptance throughout the community there, reported on November 8 , x975. The Convention was reconvened on February 3, 1976 so that it might be determined whether agreement could be reached me the specific and crucial issue of system of Government within Northern Ireland which provided for 1 form of partnership and participation. No further report was made and the Convention was dissolved on March 5, 1976. Direct Rule continues in being under the terms of the Northern Ireland Act 1974 -

BELFAST
Belfast, a City, the seat of Government of Northern Ireland, situated at the mouth of the River Lagan at its entrance to Belfast Lough, has a municipal area of 16,017 acres, exclusive of tidal water ( $2,0,34$ ) and a population ( 1977 ) of 363,000 . The city received its first charter of incorporation in $16 \pm 3$ and has since grown, owing to its easy access by sea to Scottish coal and iron, to be a great industrial centre. The chief industries are ship-building and the manufacture of aircraft, machinery, textiles, ropes and tobacco. Belfast is an important seaport with extensive docks.

The principal buildings are of $I$ relatively recent date and include the Parliament Buildings at Stormont, the City Hall, the Law Courts, the Public Library and the Museum and Art Gallery. The Queen's University (previously Queen's College) was chartered in 1908.

The city returns 4 members to the House of Commons at Westminster. Belfast was created city in 1888 and the title of Lord Mayor was conferred in 1892.
Lord Mayor, J. Stewart.
Town Clerk, W. Johnston.

LONDONDERRY

Londonderry, a City situated on the River Foyle, has a population (estimated, 1973) of 51,200 and was reputedly founded in 546 by St. Columba. Londonderry (formerly Derry) has important associations with the City of London. The Irish Society, under its royal charter of 1613 , fortified the city and was for long closely associated with its administration. On April 2, 1969, the Corporation of Londonderry and Londonderry R.D.C. were dissolved and replaced by the Londonderry Development Commission. The Development Commission was dissolved in Sept. 1973, and its functions were taken over by a Local District Council and various Government departments and Area Boards.

Famous for the great siege of $1688-89$, when for ro5 days the town held out against the forces of James II until relieved by sea, Londonderry was an important naval base throughout the Second World War. Interesting buildings are the Protestant Cathedral of St. Columb's ( 5633 ) and the Guildhall reconstructed in 1912 and containing a number of beautiful stained glass windows, many of which were presented by the livery companies of London. The famous Walls are still intact and form a circuit of almost a mile around the old city. The manufacture of shirts and collars is the staple industry. Other industries include motor and mechanical engineering and fancy box making. New industries established in Londonderry in the post-war period include the manufacture of synthetic fibre and rubber, tyre cord and light engineering. A large part of Ulster's agricultural export trade passes through the port.

FINANCE

Taxation in Northern Ireland is largely imposed and collected by the United Kingdom Government. After deducting the cost of collections and of Northern Ireland's contributions to the European Economic Community the balance, known the Attributed Share of Taxation, is paid over to the Northern Ireland Consolidated Fund. Northern Ireland's revenue is insufficient to meet its expenditure and is supplemented by in grant in aid.

COMMUNICATIONS

Seaports.- The total number of ships using the principal ports in 1976 was Ix,236. Belfast.Regular services operate to and from ports on the Western coast of Great Britain and the Continent of Europe. In addition there are frequent, though less regular, calls by many other coastal and foreigngoing ships. There are roll on/roll off services to Liverpool, Ardrossan and Heysham. Container services-with adequate cranage available-operate to Liverpool, Heysham, Holyhead, Garston and Preston and there are weekly sailings catering for palletised and container traffic to ports in France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. A new roll on/roll off heavy load landing pad devised to take indivisible loads is the latest facility to be provided. Lame.-Roll on/roll off ferry services carrying passengers, cars and commercial vehicles operate nine times daily to Stranraer and five times daily to Cairnryan, also $\quad$ I roll on/roll off service for commercial vehicles operates twelve times weekly to Fleetwood. Warren-point.-Container services operate to Garston and Preston three times weekly and to Rotterdam, bi-weekly. A roll on/roll off berth has been provided.
Road and Rail Transport.-The Northern Ireland Transport Holding Company is responsible for the supervision of the subsidiary companies, Northern Ireland Carriers, owned jointly with the National Freight Corporation, which operates road freight services, Ulsterbus and Citybus, which operate the public road passenger services, Northern Ireland Railways, which provides the railway services, and Northern Ireland Airports, which is responsible for running the main airport at Aldergrove, near Belfast. A few privately operated bus services are provided in rural areas under licence. Road freight services are also provided by a large number of hauliers operating competitively under licence.
Air Transport.-Passenger and freight services operate between Belfast Airport and airports throughout Great Britain. In 2976 , $x, 000,000$ passengers, and 10,000 metric tons of freight, including mail, were carried, making the Airport the sixth busiest in the United Kingdom. Plans for the improvement of facilities have recently been agreed and major development programme was due to begin in 1977.

THE ISLE OF MAN (MONA)

An island in the Irish Sea, in lat. $54^{\circ} 3^{\prime}-54^{\circ} 25^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. and long. $4^{\circ} 18^{\prime}-4^{\circ} 47^{\prime}$ W., nearly equidistant from England, Scotland, and Ireland. The total land area is $14 \mathrm{r}, 263$ acres ( $22 x$ sq. miles), of which $7^{6,70 r}$ acres are under cultivation. The report on the 1976 Census showed a resident population of 60,496 (males, 28,735 ; females, $3 \mathrm{x}, 76 \mathrm{x}$ ). In $\mathbf{1 9 7 6}$ bitths numbered 72 z and deaths 977 . 284 persons were returned at the Census of x97x as able to speak the Manx language, compared with 4,657 in r901, 355 in 295 I and 165 in 2961. The principal sectors of the Island's economy in terms of income generated and in order of importance ( $1975 / 76$ figures) are Finance, Tourism and Manufacturing Industry.

Government.- The Isle of Man is governed by a Legislature, called the Tynwald, consisting of two branches-the Legislative Council and the House of Keys. The Council consists of the LieutenantGovernor, the Bishop of Sodor and Man, the Attorney-General and members appointed by the House of Keys. The House of Keys (possibly from the Scandinavian keise $=$ chosen) is one of the most ancient legislative assemblies in the world. It consists of 24 members, elected by the adult male and female population, 13 from the six sheadings, 7 from Douglas, 2 from Ramsey, and i each from Castletown and Peel. Bills after having passed both Houses are signed by the members, and then sent for the Royal Assent. After receiving the Royal Assent, a Bill does not become law unless promulgated within the ensuing twelve months, and on the first "Tynwald Day" (July 5) following it is announced in the English and Manx languages on the Tynwald Hill. On the promulgation taking place a certificate thereof is signed by the LieutenantGovernor and the Speaker of the House of Keys. The Isle of Man is associated for certain purposes with the Common Market under Protocol 3 of the Treaty of Accession. Community rules on agricultural trade, customs duties etc., apply to the Island.

Finance.-The Island's Budget for 1977/78 provided for revenue and capital expenditure of £42,762,930. The principal sources of Government revenue are a) Income Tax, charged at the rate of $2 \mathrm{I} \cdot 25$ per cent of all taxable income and b) Customs and Excise Duties, collected on behalf of the Island under the "Common Purse Agreement" by
H. M. Customs and Excise. There are no surtax or death duties, although there is a Company Registration Tax, which is levied at the flat rate of $\mathcal{\chi} 200$ on every company incorporated in the Isle of Man which trades, and there is a Land Speculation Tax payable at the rate of $21 \cdot 25$ per cent.

An annual contribution of 5 per cent of the net " Common Purse" receipts is made towards the cost of defence and other common services provided by the United Kingdom Government.

There are also reciprocal Social Security arrangements with the U.K.

There are 37 primary, 4 secondary schools, one special school and a college of further education, in addition to King William's College and the Buchan School for Girls.

CAPITAL, $\Psi$ Douglas. Population ( $\mathbf{1 9 7 6}$ ), 19,897 ; $\Psi$ Castletown $(2,788)$ is the ancient capital; the other towns are $\Psi$ Peel ( 3,295 ), and $\Psi$ Ramsey ( 5,372 ).

Lieutenant-Governor, His Excellency Sir John Paul, G.C.M.G., O.B.E., M.C. (1973). Government Secretary, T. Kelly.
Speaker, House of Keys, H. C. Kerruish, O.B.e.

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

Situated off the north-west coast of France (at distances of from ten to thirty miles), are the only portions of the Dukedom of Normandy now belonging to the Crown, to which they have been attached ever since the Conquest. They consist of Jersey ( 28,717 acres) Guernsey ( 15,654 acres), Alderney ( 1,962 acres), Brechou (74), Great Sark ( 1,035 ), Little Sark (239), Herm (320), Jethou (44) and Lihou ( 38 ), a total of 48,083 acres, or 75 square miles. In 1971 the population of Jersey was 72,532; and of Guernsey, etc. (1975) (Guernsey, 51,620; Alderney, 1,785 ; Sark, 604).
The climate is mild, and the soil exceptionally productive. The land under cultivation is about 38,765 vergées ( $2 \frac{1}{4}$ vergées $=1$ acre) in Jersey, and about 16,500 vergées ( $2 \frac{1}{2}$ vergées $=1$ acre) in Guernsey, the principal product of the soil of Jersey being potatoes, tomatoes and flowers, and of Guernsey, tomatoes, flowers and fern. The famous Jersey and Guernsey breed of cows have earned well-deserved celebrity. The Lieutenant-Governors and Commanders-in-Chief of Jersey and Guernsey are the Personal Representatives of the Sovereign and the channel of communication between H.M. Government and the Insular Governments. The Bailiffs of Jersey and Guernsey, appointed by the Crown, are Presidents both of the Assembly of the States (the Insular Legislature) and of the Royal Courts respectively.

The official language is English and a NormanFrench patois is also in use (except in Alderney). The principal imports are food, beverages, tobacco, manufactured goods, fuels and chemicals, and the chief exports potatoes, tomatoes, grapes, flowers and cattle. The chief town of Jersey is $\psi \mathrm{St}$. Helier on the south coast: the principal town of Guernsey is $\Psi S t$. Peter Port, nil the east coast, and of Alderney is St. Anne's.

the Imperial Conference of 1926 and given legal substance by the Statute of Westminster, 1931, in which the Commonwealth nations were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another, but united by 1 common allegiance to the Crown and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations." Other parts of the Commonwealth, such the Dependent Territories and Associated States, are regarded forming part of the Commonwealth by virtue of their relationship with member states of the Commonwealth.
Consultation.-The most important means of consultation between Governments ere Heads of Government Meetings. These Meetings, which replaced the more formal pre-war Imperial Conferences, have been held at frequent intervals since 1944. They are a useful II il whereby Commonwealth Heads of Government consult together on major issues of international affairs and other matters which affect them all. It is not their practice to pass Resolutions or to seek to formulate common and binding policies international issues; but they have on occasion made general statements of principle to which they all subscribesuch in the Commonwealth Declaration agreed at Singapore in January $197 x$ and the statement an Nuclear Weapon Tests issued during the meeting held at Ottawa in August 1973 -and the policies of individual Governments are clearly often influenced by the information and ideas exchanged at these Meetings. In addition to meetings of Heads of Government, there are annual meetings of Finance Ministers, as well as less frequent meetings between Ministers or officials responsible for subjects such a trade, education, medicine and law.

RHODESIA.-Southern Rhodesia was united with Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland in I federation which lasted from 1953 until 1963 , since when Nyasaland (as Malawi, 1964) and Northern Rhodesia (as Zambia, 1964) have become independent. Southern Rhodesia made $\quad$ unilateral declaration of independence on Nov. 1x, 1965 . Its present constitutional status is as set out in the Southern R hodesia Act, 1965.

CTIIzenship and Nationality.-Each member of the Commonwealth of Nations defines the citizenship and nationality of its own people and determines the status of other Commonwealth nationals within its own boundaries. In most cases, though not in all, they possess a common status British subjects (or Commonwealth citizens). Even where there is no such provision for a common status, the Members of the Commonwealth differentiate, in greater or lesser degree, as regards the grant of privileges, between citizens of the Commonwealth and aliens. The Republic of Ireland, which in 2949 ceased to be a member of the Commonwealth, is not regarded by the other Commonwealth nations as a foreign country or her citizens as foreigners.
The Judicature.-The Supreme Judicial Authority for certain parts of the Commonwealth is the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Appeals may be brought to it from the Courts of the dependencies and also from the Courts of certain independent members of the Commonwealth which have not abrogated the right of appeal (i.e. Australlan States, New Zealand, Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago, Malaysia, Singapore, The Gambia, Barbados, Mauritius, Fiji, The Bahamas and Grenada). The Committee consists of such members of the Privy Council a have held or are holding high judicial office in Great Britain or are or have been judges in certain Commonwealth countries. The Supreme Judicial Authority for Great Britain and Northern Ireland is the House of Lords.
DEFENCE.-Each of the independent members of the Commonwealth is completely responsible for its own defence and all are members of the United Nations. The United Kingdom and Canada belong to N.A.T.O.; Australia and New Zealand are signatories of the Pacific Security Treaty. The United Kingdom has a defence agreement with Malta, and is signatory to the Treaty of Guarantee of Cyprus. With Australia and New Zealand, the United Kingdom is also a partner in joint defence agreements with Malaysia and Singapore.

The Associated States.-Early in 1967 the former colonies of Antigua, Dominica, Grenada, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla and St. Lucia became "nondependent "States in association with Great Britain. Legal effect was given to this status by the West Indies Act, 1967 . In October, 1969, St. Vincent also became $n$ Associated State. The main features of the association are that each State is responsible for its own internal affairs, may amend its own Constitution and may sever the association by unilateral declaration, subject to the observance of procedures contained in the Constitution of each State. Her Majesty's Government retains responsibility for the external affairs and defence of each territory. On February 7, 1974, Grenada left the association on becoming an independent member of the Commonwealth.

Overseas Dependencies.-The United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand have dependencies for which they are independently responsible. (See following sections.)

Colony (or Settlement): I territory belonging by settlement, conquest or annexation to the British Crown.
Protectorate: a territory not formally annexed, but in respect of which, by treaty, grant, usage, sufferance, and other lawful means, Her Majesty has power and jurisdiction.
Protected State: a territory under $I$ r ruler which enjoys Her Majesty's protection, over whose foreign affairs she exercises control but in respect of whose internal affairs she does not exercise jurisdiction.

Condominium: $\quad$ territory for which responsibility is shared by two administering powers.
Leased Territories: this term applies only to that part of the mainland of China which was in 1898 leased to Great Britain for 99 years and is administered by the Government of Hong Kong.

Other Commonwealth Dependencies.-Australia and New Zealand administer a number of island territories and extensive Antarctic areas.
Development and Finance.-Complete financial autonomy is enjoyed by all members of the Commonwealth. In some countries, customs tariffs are lower for merchandise of Commonwealth origin than for imports from foreign countries. The British Government provides guarantees for the capital issues made by dependent territories and also provides budgetary assistance in many r as well as direct loans and grants to assist development.

Under the Colonial Development and Welfare Act, 1940, annual sums of $£ 5,000,000$ were made available for developments and $£ 500,000$ for research for a ten-year period. Succeeding Acts increased the total um to be made available and extended the period to be covered. In 1965 the Act was extended for $=$ final 5 years. It authorized Exchequer Loans towards the cost of approved development programmes amounting to £ $125,000,000$ and a ceiling of $\mathcal{L} 390,000,000$ for development and welfare assistance in the period 1941-x970. Thereafter the development needs of the remaining dependencies have been dealt with under the provisions of the Overseas Aid Act, 1966.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

Canada was originally discovered by Cabot in 1497, but its history dates only from 1534, when the French took possession of the country. The first permanent settlement at Port Royal (now Annapolis), Nova Scotia, was founded in 1605, and Quebec was founded in 1608 . In 1759 Quebec was captured by the British forces under General Wolfe, and in 1763 the whole territory of Canada became a possession of Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of that year. Nova Scotia was ceded in 3753 by the Treaty of Utrecht, the Provinces of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island being subsequently formed out of it. British Columbia was formed into a Crown colony in 8858 , having previously been - part of the Hudson Bay Territory, and was united to Vancouver Island in 1866.

Canada occupies the whole of the northern part of the North American Continent (with the exception of Alaska), from $49^{\circ}$ North latitude to the North Pole, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean. In Eastern Canada, the southernmost point is Middle Island in Lake Erie, at $4 x^{\circ} 4 x^{\prime}$.

Relief.-The relief of Canada is dominated by the mountain ranges running north and south on the west side of the Continent, by the pre-Cambrian shield on the east, with, in between, the northern extension of the North American Plain. From the physiographic point of view Canada has six main divisions. These are: ( $\Sigma$ ) Appalachian-Acadian Region, (2) the Canadian Shield, (3) the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Lowland, (4) the Interior Plains, (5) the Cordilleran Region and (6) the Arctic Archipelago. The first region occupies all that part of Canada lying southeast of the St. Lawrence. In general, the relief is an alternation of highlands and lowlands, and is hilly rather than mountainous. The lowlands area seldom rises over 600 feet above sea level. The great Canadian Shield comprises more than half the area. The interior as a whole is an undulating, low plateau (general level 1,000 to $x, 500$ feet), with the more rugged relief lying along the border between Northern Quebec and Labrador. Throughout the whole area water or muskegfilled depressions separate irregular hills and ridges, 350 to 200 feet in elevation. Newfoundland, an outlying portion of the shield, consists of glaciated, low rolling terrain broken here and there by mountains. The flat relief of the St. LawrenceGreat Lakes lowland varies from 500 feet in the east to $x, 700$ feet south of Georgian Bay. The whole area in the western part slopes gently to the Great Lakes. The most striking relief is provided by the eastward facing scarp of the Niagara escarpment (elevation 250 to 300 feet). The interior plains, comprising the Pacific Provinces, slope eastward and northward $■$ few feet per mile. The descent from west to east is made from 5,000 feet to less than $x, 000$ feet in three distinct levels, with each new level being marked by an eastward facing coteau or scarp. Horizontal strata and peneplanation make for slight relief of the level to rolling type. Five fairly well-developed topographic divisions mark out the Cordilleran region of western Canada. These are: ( $x$ ) coastal ranges, largely above 5,000 feet with deep fiords and glaciated valleys, (z) the interior plateau, around 3,500 feet and comparatively level, ( 3 ) the Selkirk ranges, largely above 5,000 feet, (4) the Rocky Mountains with their chain of 10,000 to $12,000-$ feet peaks, and (5) the Peace River or Tramontane region with its rolling diversified country. The Arctic Archipelago, with its plateau-like character has an elevation between 500 and $x, 000$ feet, though in Bafin Land and Ellesmere Island the mountain ranges rise to 8,500 and 9,500 feet. Two tremendous waterway systems, the St. Lawrence and the Mackenzie, providing thousands of mites of water highway, occupy a broad area of lowland with their dominant axis following the edge of the shield.
Climate.-The climate of the eastern and central portions presents greater extremes than in corresponding latitudes in Europe, but in the southwestern portion of the Prairie Region and the southern portions of the Pacific slope the climate is milder. Spring, summer, and autumn are of about seven to eight months' duration, and the winter four to five months.

GOVERNMENT

The Constitution of Canada has its source in the British North America Act of $\mathbf{8} 867$ which formed a Dominion, under the name of Canada, of the four provinces: Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia; to this Federation the other Provinces have subsequently been admitted. Under this Act Canada came into being on July $x, 1867$ (Dominion Day), and under the Statute of Westminster, which received the royal assent on Dec. II, 193I, Canada and the Provinces were exempted (in common with other selfgoverning Dominions of the Commonwealth of Nations) from the operation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act, the Statute of Westminster having removed all limitations with regard to the legislative autonomy of the Dominions. Provinces admitted since 1867 are: Manitoba ( 1870 ), British Columbia ( 187 r), Prince Edward Island (1873), Alberta and Saskatchewan (1905) and Newfoundland (1949).
The Executive power is vested in a Governor-General appointed by the Sovereign on the advice of the Canadian Ministry, and aided by . Privy Council.

THE JUDICATURE
The Judicature is administered by judges following the Civil Law in Quebec Province and Common Law in other Provinces. All Superior, County and District Court Judges are appointed by the Governor-General, the others by the Lieu-tenant-Governors of the Provinces. Each Province has its Court of Appeal and the highest court is the Supreme Court of Canada, composed of a Chief Justice and eight puisne judges, which holds three sessions each year. There is one other federally constituted Court, the Federal Court of Canada, which has both a trial and an appeal division and which replaces the Exchequer Court with expanded jurisdiction.

NATIONAL DEFENCE

The Minister of National Defence has the control and management of the Canadian Armed Forces and all matters relating to National Defence establishments and works for the defence of Canada.

The Canadian Forces are organized, on a functional basis to reflect the major commitments assigned by the government and are formed into National Defence Headquarters and five major Commands reporting to the Chief of the Defence Staff. The roles of the five Commands are: Mobile Command-Provision of ground forces for the protection of Canadian territory, combat forces in Canada for support of overseas commitments, and forces for support of United Nations or other peace-keeping operations. Maritime CommandProvision of sea forces on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts for the defence of Canada, anti-submarine defence in support of NATO. Support to Canadian Military operations and the conduct of search and rescue operations within the Atlantic and Pacific search and rescue areas. Maritime Command also has operational control of Maritime aircraft. Air Command-Provision of operationally ready air forces to national, continental and international commitments. Canadian Forces Communication Command-Manages, operates and maintains strategic communications for the Canadian Forces. Canadian Forces Europe-Canadian Forces allocated -to support NATO in Europe consisting of land and air elements.

National Defence expenditures for the fiscal which ended March 31, 1977-$3,183,000,000. Canadian Armed Forces strength at March 3r, 1977, 78,59x.

EDUCATION AND LANGUAGE

Education is under the control of the Provincial Governments, the cost of the publicly controlled schools being met by local taxation, aided by provincial grants. In 1975-76 there were 14,996 publicly controlled elementary and secondary schools with $5,610,063$ pupils. Of these, 797 were private schools with 188,604 pupils; 297 Indian schools with 33, ror pupils and 837 special schools for the blind and deaf with 3,783 pupils. In $1975-76$ there were 67 degree-granting universities with full-time enrolment of 369,900 , students in 189 other post-secondary, non-university institutions.

Canada has two official languages, English and French. At the $197^{1}$ census $67^{\prime I}$ per cent. of the total population gave English as their official language, $18 \cdot 0$ per cent. French and 13.4 per cent. both English and French.

YUKON TERRITORY

The Yukon Act, 1970, 11 amended, provides for the administration of the Territory by a Commissioner acting under instructions from time to time given by the Governor in Council or the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. Legislative powers, analogous to those of a provincial government, are exercised by the Commissioner in Council. The Council comprises twelve members elected from electoral districts in the Territory. The area of the Territory is 207,076 square miles with a population (Jan. 1, 2977) of 21,000. Mining is the chief industry, though trapping remains important and there is considerable timber production. Mining production, including asbestos, copper, silver, lead, zinc, gold and nickel, valued at $$$ I31,069,000 in 1976 .

Seat of Government, Whitehorse. Pop. (1976) 13.31工.

Production and Industry. - The production levels of the four leading industries were estimated for 1976 as follows: wood manufactures, $$ 2,557,400,000$ : paper and allied industries, $$ 1,770,900,000$; minerals, $$ 1,486,128,000$; agriculture, $$ 436,751,000$; fisheries, $$ 297,621,000$. Manufacturing activity is based largely on the processing of the output of the logging, mineral, fishing and agriculture industries. The principal manufacturing centres Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria, North Vancouver and Port Moody. Forestry and forest-based industries form the most important economic activity, accounting for approximately 35 per cent. of total production. British Columbia is the leading province of Canada in the quantity and value of its timber and sawmill products. Mining, the second most important economic activity, is based on copper, zinc, lead, iron concentrates, molybdenum, coal, natural crude petroleum, asbestos and nickel. Molybdenum production is approximately 90 per cent. of the Canadian total. The most important agricultural products are livestock, eggs and poultry, fruits and dairy products. Salmon accounts for approximately 75 per cent. of the value of fisheries Other species include halibut, herring, sole, cod, flounder, perch, tuna and shellish. The climate is healthy, quite moderate $m$ the coast and continental east of the coast mountains. The economy is dependent upon markets outside the province for the disposal of most of the products of her industry. Canadian and world markets receive forestry, mineral, fishing and agricultural products. An estimated 55 per cent. of production is exported to foreign markets.

Transport.-The province has deep water harbours which are well serviced by railways and modern paved highways. Vancouver is the base for regular scheduled air routes to other parts of Canada, the United States, Europe, Mexico, South America, Hawaii, Fiji, Australia, Japan, Hong Kong and the Middle East.

Principal Cities.-Capital, $\Psi$ Victoria, Metropolitan population (s976) 218,250. $\Psi$ VANCOUVER metropolitan population ( 1976 ) $1,166,348$, is the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways (the C.N.R. also has a terminus at Prince Rupert) and the southern terminus of the British Columbia Railway, and possesses one of the finest natural harbours in the world, servicing a variety of vessels, including large bulk cargo carriers. Other principal cities are Prince George, Kamloops, Kelowna and Nanaimo.

MANITOBA

Area and Population.-Manitoba, originally the Red River settlement, is the central province of Canada. The Province has a considerable area of prairic land but is also a land of wide diversity combining 400 miles of sea-coast, large lakes and rivers covering an area of 30,225 square miles and Precambrian rock which covers about three-fifths of the Province. The total area is 251,000 square miles with $n$ population estimated at $1,028,000$ in -977.

PHYSICAL FEATURES

Australia was separated from the other great land surfaces at a remote period, and exhibits therefore some very archaic types of fauna and flora. It may (be regarded as the largest island or the smallest continent, being surrounded by the following waters:-North, the Timor and Arafura Seas and Torres Strait; East, Pacific Ocean; South, Bass Strait which separates Tasmania from the Continent) and Southern Ocean; and West, Indian Ocean. The total area of the mainland is $7,614,500 \mathrm{sq} \mathrm{kms}$, the island of Tasmania having an area of $6_{7}, 800 \mathrm{sq} \mathrm{kms}$ and making a total area for the Commonwealth of $7,682,300$ sq kms. The coastline of Australia is approximately $36,800 \mathrm{kms}$ (including Tasmania, $3,200 \mathrm{kms}$ ), and its geographical positions is between $10^{\circ} 41^{\prime}-39^{\circ} 8^{\prime}\left(43^{\circ} 39^{\prime}\right.$, including Tasmania)

South latitude and $113^{\circ} 9^{\prime}-153^{\circ} 30^{\prime}$ East longitude; the greatest length East to West is $4,000 \mathrm{kms}$, and from North to South $3,580 \mathrm{kms}(3,680 \mathrm{kms}$, including Tasmania). Nearest distances from England via Cape of Good Hope are East Coast 22,957 and West Coast, $20,048 \mathrm{kms}$.
From a physical standpoint the continent of Australia is divisible into an eastern and a western area, the former containing $\quad$ regular coast-line with - good harbourage, roadsteads, rivers, and inlann waterways, and a greater development of fauna and fiora; the latter broken coast-line with estuaries rather than rivers, and but little inland water communication. The whole continent is, roughly speaking, . vast, irregular, and undulating plateau, part of which is below the level of the sea, surrounded by $I$ mountainous coast-line, with frequent intervals of low and saudy shore on the north, west and south. The Great Barrier Reef extends parallel with the East coast of Queensland for $1,900 \mathrm{kms}$ ranging in width from 19 kilometres in the north to 240 kifometres in the south. A large part of the interior, particularly in the west, consists of sandy and stony desert, covered with spinifex, and containing numerous salt-marshes, though reaches of grass-land occur here and there. The geological formation of Australia is remarkable for its simplicity and regularity; the strike of the rocks is, with a single exception, coincident with the direction of the mountain-chains, from N. to $\mathrm{S}_{\text {. }}$ and the tertiary formation to be found in the N., S., and W. develops in the S.E. into a gigantic tertiary plain, watered by the Darling and the Murray Rivers. Nearly all round the coast, however, and in eastern and south-eastern Australia, stretching far inland from the coastal range, is a fertile area devoted to agriculture, beef cattle and dairying, while the inland districts particularly are admirably adapted to the rearing of sheep. The most extensive mountain system takes its rise - the S.E. point, and includes a number of ranges known by different names in different places, none of them being of any great height. The highest peak, Mount Kosciusko, in New South Wales, reaches an elevation of 2,228 metres. The principal rivers are the Murray, which debouches on the south coast, after recelving the waters of its tributaries the Murrumbidgee, Lachlan, and Darling, in the S.E. part of the continent: on the east coast, the Hawkesbury, Hunter, Clarence, Richmond, Brisbane, Mary, Burnett, Fitzroy, and Burdekin; on the west, the Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue. De Grey, and Fitzroy; on the north, the Drysdale, Ord, Victoria and Daly; and the Roper, Flinders, and Mitchell, which debouch into the Gulf of Carpentaria. The scarcity of the natural water supply in the interior has, however, been mitigated by successful borings and by the construction of large dams. The work of conserving the vast quantities of water which run to waste in the wet season is being vigorously prosecuted by in system of locks and weirs on some of the rivers. A major development is the use of the waters of the Snowy River in south-eastern New South Wales for hydro-electricity generation and irrigation.

Significant mineral resources comprise bauxite, coal, copper, crude petroleum. gems, gold, ilmenite, iron ore, lead, limestone, manganese, nickel, rutile, salt, silver, tin, tungsten, uranium, zinc and zircon. Recently, geological exploration has significantly increased the mineral resources of the nation.

Australia now has seven oilfields in production: Moonie, Alton and Bennett, Queensland; Barrow Island, Western Australia; and Barracouta, Kingfish and Halibut in the Gippsland Shelf area offshore from Victoria. In addition, a small amount of oil is being produced from several other wells in the Surat Basin in Queensland and in the Dongara area in Western Austrialia. The production of crude oil in 1976 from the Austrialian oil fields was 24,249,000 cubic metres, approximately $7 x$ per cent. of the country's requirements. Work is at present in progress to develop the offshore Mackerel and Tuna oilfields on the Gippsland Shelf area.

Production from natural gas deposits to supply Brisbane, Melbourne and Adelaide began during 1969 and to supply Perth in 197x. Late in 1976 Sydney began receiving natural gas from the Cooper Basin field and early in 1977 Brisbane began receiving additional supplies from the Kincaid field.

Climate.-The seasons are: summer, December to February; autumn, March to May; winter, June to August, spring, September to November.

Australia is less subject to extremes of climate than are regions of similar size in low parts of the world, though the climate varies considerably from the tropical to the alpine.

GOVERNMENT

The Commonwealth of Australia was constituted by an Act of the Imperial Parliament dated July 9, 1900, and was inaugurated Jan. 1,1901 . The Government is that of a Federal Commonwealth within the British Commonwealth of Nations, the executive power being vested in the Sovereign (through the Governor-General), assisted by a Federal Ministry of twenty-five Ministers of State. Under the Constitution the Federal Government has acquired and may acquire certain defined powers as surrendered by the States, residuary legislative power remaining with the States. Trade and customs passed under Federal control immediately on the establishment of the Commonwealth; posts, telegraphs and telephones, naval and military defence, lighthouses and quarantine on proclaimed dates. The Federal Government also controls such matters social services, patents and copyrights, naturalization, navigation, &c. The right of State to legislate on these and other matters is not abrogated except in connection with matters exclusively under Federal control, but where a State law is inconsistent with a law of the Commonwealth the latter prevails to the extent of the inconsistency.

Flag.-The British Blue Ensign, consisting of a blue flag, with the Union Jack occupying the upper quaster next the staff, differenced by a large white star (representing the six States of Australia and the Territories of the Commonwealth) in the centre of the lower quarter next the staff and pointing direct to the centre of the St. George's Cross in the Union Jack and five white stars, representing the Southern Cross, in the fly.

THE LEGISLATURE
Parliament consists of the Queen, Senate and a House of Representatives. The Constitution provides that the number of members of the House of Representatives shall be, nearly as practicable, twice the number of Senators. An Act, assented to on May 18, 1948 , provided for an increase in the number of members of the Senate from thirty-six to sixty, and as a result the number of members of the House of Representatives was increased from 74 to 123 . There are now 127 members in the House of Representatives, including one member for the Northern Territory and two for the Australian Capital Territory. Members of the Senate ure elected for six years by universal suffrage, half the members retiring every third year. Each of the six States returns an equal number of xo Senators, and the Australian Capital Territory and the Northern Territory two each. The House of Representatives, similarly elected for a maximum of three years, contains members proportionate to the population, with a minimum of five members for each State. The state of parties in the House of Representatives after the general election held in November 1975 was Liberal Party 68, National Country Party, 23, Australian Labour Party 36. Members of both Houses received $Azo,000 per annum, with allowances and free air and rail travel on parliamentary business.

President of the Senate, Senator Hon. C. L. Laucke. Clerk of the Senate, J. R. Odgers, C.B.B.
Speaker, House of Representatives, Rt. Hon. B. M. Snedden, Q.C.
Clerk of the House, J. A. Pettifer.

DEFENCE

A single Department of Defence was created on November 30,1973 , following the abolition of the Departments of the Navy, Army and Air. Legislation relating to the reorganization of the higher management of the Defence Force and Department of Defence was passed by the Commonwealth Parliament in September 1975 and the main provisions took effect on February 9,1976 .

The separate identities of the three services have been retained. The three Service Boards have been dissolved. Most of their previous powers are now exercised by the Minister for Defence or have been delegated by him to specific military or civilian appointments within the Department of Defence.

A new statutory appointment of Chief of Defence Force Staff has been created, under the Minister for Defence, responsible for command of the Defence Force through the three Service Chiefs of Staff (Navy, Army, Air Force) who are the professional heads of their respective arms of the Defence Force. The Chief of Defence Force Staff is also the principal military adviser to the Minister.

The Secretary to the Department of Defence has generally the powers and functions prescribed for such appointments in the Australian Public Service Act and the Audit Act. He is responsible to the Minister for Defence for advice on policy, resources and organization.

Royal Australian Navy

The Royal Australian Navy consists of an AntiSubmarine Warfare and strike aircraft carrier, 5 destroyers, 6 destroyer escorts, 5 submarines, 3 mines counter-measure vessels, 12 patrol boats, survey ships, 2 fleet support ships, 6 landing craft heavy, oceanographic ships and one training ship. The Fleet Air Arm is equipped with Skyhawk, Tracker, Macchi and $\mathrm{HS}_{748}$ fixed-wing aircraft, and with Sea King, Wessex, Iroquois and Bell 206 helicopters.
The strength of the Royal Australian Navy on 30 June $x 977$ was 2,287 officers and 14,097 sailors.

Army

In May 1977 the Australian Army comprised a volunteer Regular Army component of $\mathbf{3 2 , 2 1 6}$ and a volunteer Army Reserve component (formerly known as the Citizen Military Force) of $21,747$.
The command structure of the Australian Army was reorganized in 1973, replacing the previous geographically based organization with $\quad$ modernized functional organization.
The major development was the raising of three new functional commands which were invested with Australia-wide responsibilities for the command of units allocated to them and for the conduct of their specialist functions. Field Force Command, with its headquarters in Sydney, commands all teld force units and is responsible for the operation of the Army's fighting formations. Logistic Command, with its headquarters in Melbourne, commands all logistic units and is responsible for the broad military functions of transport, supply and repair. Training Command, with its headquarters in Sydney, is responsible for the command of operation of all Army schools and training establishments.

Air

The total strength of the R.A.A.F. on June $z_{3}$ 1977, was 21,665 . There were 17 operational units, 5 maintenance squadrons, 3 control and reporting units, 3 aircraft depots, stores depots, one ammunition depot, 22 training units, 7 Air Training Corps squadrons, 5 Citizen Air Force squadrons and supporting services. Three flying units, one maintenance squadron and supporting personnel were serving at Butterworth air base in Malaysia.

CAPITAL

Canberra is the capital of Australia. It is situated in the Australian Capital Territory which has marea of 939 sq. miles and was acquired from New South Wales in xgrı. Canberra, which is the seat of the federal government, had a population at June 30, 1977, of 208,000. Apart from Parliament House, the city also contains other National institutions, such as the Australian War Memorial, National Library, Royal Australian Mint and the Australian National University. Most Government departments have their headquarters in Canberra. An artificial lake is $\quad$ central feature of this planned city, based on Walter Burley Griffin's design.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY

The Northern Territory has a total area of 520,280 square miles, and lies between $129^{\circ}-138^{\circ}$ east longitude and $8 x^{\circ}-26^{\circ}$ south latitude. The administration was taken over by the Commonwealth on January I, 191I, from the government of the State of South Australia. The Department of the Northern Territory was created in 1972 . The Northern Territory elects one member to the Federal House of Representatives in Canberra and is represented by two Senators in the Senate.
The Legislative Council for the Northern Territory, established in 1947 under the provisions of the Northern Territory (Administration) Act, to make Ordinances for the peace, order and good government of the Territory (subject to the assent of the Administrator or Governor General), with 77 members, including ix elected members, was superseded in October, 1974, by a fully elected Legislative Assembly of 19 members.
The estimated Aboriginal population in the Northern Territory at the 197 I Census was 25,000 . Areas totalling 94,000 square miles, about one-fifth of the Northern Territory, have been set aside as reserves for the use and benefit of the Aboriginal people. Legislation has been introduced to enable Aboriginal tenure of these lands and as a result of recommendations of a Royal Commission the Government set up land councils which are now operating.
Approximately 16,000 Aboriginals used to live in communities which are now focal points for education, health and social development. However, significant numbers of Aboriginal people have moved from the established centres and have settled in their traditional areas known as Clan Centres.

About 4,000 Aboriginals live permanently on pastoral properties and the government aims to establish communal living areas for these communities. In the recent past, several Aboriginal groups gained control over their own pastoral lands and other groups are in the process of doing so. Other Aboriginals live in or around the main towns. In some of the more remote regions, the contact with European Australians has been relatively recent and traditional beliefs and customs are still strong.

The beef cattle industry is the main rural activity in the Northern Territory, and production depends almost entirely on export markets. Due to the depressed state of the industry brought about by restricted meat export markets, the value of beef production for the year 1975-76 was only $$ 19.8 \mathrm{~m}$.
Buffalo production realised $$ 500,000$. A recent development has been an increase in the export of live cattle and buffalo to overseas countries which has provided alternative markets to producers.
Despite the depressed state of the industry, the accelerated cradication programme for tuberculosis and brucellosis is progressing satisfactorily and compensation payments are now extended to include cattle slaughtered as brucellosis reactors.
Livestock ( 30 June 1976) $x, 500,000$ cattle; 2,000 sheep; 300,000 buffalo; 2,500 breeding sows.

Agriculture is conducted on a small scale in the Northern Territory. Small quantities of fruit, vegetables, eggs, dairy produce, poultry and pasture. Sceds were produced in area's adjacent to the principal population centres. The total gross value of agricultural production for $1975-76$ was $1,500,000.

Mineral industry projects are important to both regional and national economic development. The value of mine and quarry production for 1975-76 was just over $$$ Ax $37,000,000$, derived mainly from bauxite, manganese, alumina, gold and bismuth. The Gove bauxite alumina complex is operating at design capacity. The exteusive manganese deposits at Groote Eylandt supply both Australia's demand for metallurgical ore and an export market of almost million tonnes per annum. Copper production at Tennant Creek declined due to unfavourable world prices. In the McArthur River district a pilot plant is operating to investigate metallurgical problems associated with an extensive medium-grade, but extremely finegrained, lead-zinc deposit. The rich uranium deposits of the Alligator Rivers region remain to be developed. In the future, the value of production is expected to increase with increases in the world prices of bauxite, alumina and manganese, and as uranium development occurs.

Tourism, an important industry, is estimated to be worth $$ A z 8,000,000$ a year.

The chief rivers of the Territory are the Victoria, Adelaide, Daly, Roper, South Alligator and McArthur.

There are now 4,846 kilometres of sealed road within the Northern Territory. They include the three major interstate links: the Stuart Highway from Darwin to the South Australian border, the Barkly Highway, Tennant Creek to Mt. Isa, 447 kilometres of which is in the Northern Territory, and the Victoria Highway, Katherine to the Western Australian border, distance of 452 kilometres. In addition to this there are $x, 440$ kilometres of gravel roads, 4,400 kilometres of formed road and 9.250 kilometres of unformed roads or tracks, totalling approximately 20,000 kilometres of roads within the Northern Territory.

Alice Springs is connected by narrow gauge ( 869 kilometres) and standard gauge railway ( 342 kilometres) through Port Augusta to the Australian rail network. A standard gauge railway is currently being constructed on $=$ completely new alignment from Tarcoola on the Trans Australian line, to Alice Springs. Completion of the new line is expected by 198 r .

Following the cyclone on Christmas Day 2974, which destroyed go per cent. of the city, the population of Darwin fell to 11,000 . At the June 1976 Census the population was 46,655 , approximately the same as the pre-cyclone figure. Darwin, which is 97 ft . above sea level, overlooks Port Darwin. Alice Springs is situated in the MacDonnell Ranges. The climate of the Northern Territory ranges from dry in the south to wet-monsoonal in the north. Judges of the Supreme Court, Hon. W. E. S. Forster; Hon. J. H. Muirhead; Hon. R. C. Ward; Hon. J. L. Tooliey.

NORFOLK ISLAND

The island is situated in latitude $29^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. and longitude $168^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$., being about $\mathrm{r}, 042$ miles from Sydney and 400 miles north of New Zealand. It is about five miles in length by three in breadth, and was discovered by Capt. Cook in I774. Its area is 8,528 acres and circumference 20 miles. The climate is mild, with 1 mean temperature of $68^{\circ}$ and an annual rainfall of 53 inches. The descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty were brought here from Pitcairn Island in 1856. The island is $\quad$ popular tourist resort, and a large proportion of the population depends on tourism and its ancillaries for employment. Estimated population (including tourists) (June 30, 1976), 5,885.

Seat of Government and Administration Offices, Kingston. The Norfolk Island Council advises the Administrator on policy and the control of public finance. The island is administered by the Australian Government through the Department of Administrative Services in Canberra.

Regular air services operate from Australia and New Zealand.
Administrator, D. V. O'Leary, V.R.D.

COCOS (KEELING) ISLANDS

The Cocos (Keeling) Islands were declared a British possession in 1857 . In 1878 they were placed under the control of the Governor of Ceylon and were later annexed to the Straits Settlements and incorporated with the colony of Singapore. On Nov. 23, 1955, their administration was transferred to Australia. They are two separate atolls comprising some $z_{7}$ small coral islands with a total area of about $5^{\frac{1}{2}}$ square miles, situated in the Indian Ocean in latitude $1 z^{\circ} 5^{\prime}$, South and longitude $96^{\circ} 53^{\prime}$ East. The main islands are West Island (the largest, about 6 miles from north to south) on which are the aerodrome and the administrative centre, and most of the European community; Home Island, the headquarters of the Clunies Ross Estate; Direction Island, and Horsburgh. North Keeling Island, which forms part of the Territory, lies about 15 miles to the north of the group and has no inhabitants. The climate is equable and pleasant, being usually under the influence of the south-east trade winds for about three-quarters of the year. A two weekly air charter service operates between Perth and the Cocos Islands and Christmas Island. Population (estimated June 30, 1976), 544. The islands are administered by the Australian Governmen through the Department of Administrative Services in Canberra.

CHRISTMAS ISLAND

Until the end of 1957 - part of the then Colony of Singapore. Christmas Island was administered as a separate colony until October $\mathrm{x}, 1958$, when it became Australian territory. It is situated in the Indian Ocean about 224 miles S. of Java Head. Area 52 sq. miles. Population (estimated, June 30, ${ }^{2976)}$ ) 3,260 . The island is densely wooded and contains extensive deposits of phosphate of lime. The Christmas Island Phosphate Commission is responsible for mining activities in the Territory on behalf of the Australian and New Zealand Governments. By agreement, the Commission's function of obtaining and distributing phosphates for the Australian and New Zealand markets is carried out by the British Phosphate Commissioners as managing agents. The island is adminitered by the Australian Government through the Department of Administrative Services in Canberra.
Administrator, W. Worth.

THE ANTARCTIC CONTINENT

The area of the Antarctic Continent is estimated at approximately 14,000 square kilometres. The greater part of the coastline has been charted, but considerable portions of the interior have not been visited, or at best have been seen only from the air. The question of territorial rights is complicated and there is no general international agreement thereon.

The Australian Antarctic Territory was established by in Order in Council, dated February 7, 1933, which placed under the government of the Commonwealth of Australia all the islands and territories, other than Adelie Land, which are situated south of the latitude $60^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. and lying between $160^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. longitude and $45^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. longitude. The Order came into force on August 24,1936 , after the passage of the Australian Antarctic Territory Acceptance Act, r933. The boundaries of Terre Adélie were definitely fixed by a French Decree of April x, 1938, the islands and territories south of $60^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. latitude lying between $136^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. longitude and $142^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. longitude. The Australian Antarctic Territory Act, 1954 declared that the laws in force in the Australian Capital Territory are, so far as they are applicable, in force in the Australian Antarctic Territory.

On February 13, 1954, the Australian National Antarctic Research Expeditions (ANARE) established a station on Mac. Robertson Land at latitude $67^{\circ} 36^{\prime}$ S. and longitude $62^{\circ} 53^{\prime}$ E. The station was named Mawson in honour of Sir Douglas Mawson and was the first permanent Australian station to be set up on the Antarctic continent. Scientific research conducted at Mawson includes upper atmosphere physics, cosmic ray physics, meteorology, earth sciences, biology and medical science. Mawson is also the centre for coastal and inland exploration.

A second Australian scientific research station was established on the coast of Princess Elizabeth Land on January $\mathrm{I}_{3}, 1957$, at latitude $68^{\circ} \mathbf{3 5} 5^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. and longitude $77^{\circ} 58^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. The station was named in honour of Captain John King Davis, second in command of two of Mawson's expeditions and master of several famous Antarctic ships. The station was temporarily closed on Jan. 25, 1965 and reopened on Feb. 15, 1969. Scientific programmes carried out at Davis include metcorology, biology, upper atmosphere physics, with field investigations in geology. In February, 1959, the Australian Government accepted from the United States Government custody of Wilkes Station on the Budd Coast, Wilkes Land in about $66^{\circ} 15^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. and longitude $x 0^{\circ} 3 \mathrm{I}^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. The station was closed in February 1969, and activities were transferred to Casey station. Casey station was named in honour of Lord Casey, former Governor-General of Australia, in recognition of his long association with Australia's Antarctic effort. The station, at $66^{\circ} 17^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$., $110^{\circ} 32^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$., is of advanced design and scientific programmes carried out there include upper atmosphere physics, cosmic ray physics, geophysics, meteorology with field programmes in glaciology, geology, etc.
Since 1948 ANARE has also operated a station on Macquarie Island, a dependency of Tasmania, situated at $54^{\circ} 30^{\prime}$ S. and $158^{\circ} 57^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$., about 900 miles north of the Antarctic Continent.

On December I, 1959, Australia signed the Antarctic Treaty with Argentine, Belgium, Chile, France, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa, the United Kingdom, the United States and U.S.S.R., all countries which have been active in Antarctic operations and research. The Treaty reserves the Antarctic area south of $60^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. latitude for peaceful purposes, provides for international co-operation in scientific investigation and research, and preserves, for the duration of the Treaty, the status quo with regard to territorial sovereignty, rights and claims. The Treaty came into force on June $23,196 \mathrm{x}$, and has been acceded to by another four nations not actively engaged in the area.

For other Commonwealth dependencies in the Antarctic see New Zealand.

STATES OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA

NEW SOUTH WALES
The State of New South Wales is situated entirely between the 28 th and 38 th parallels of S . lat. and 14rst and 154 th meridians of E. long., and comprises an area of 309,433 square miles (exclusive of 939 sq. miles of Australian Capital Territory which lies within its borders).

Population.-The population (1976 census): Males, 2,380,712; Females, 2,396,931. Total, 4,777,643-

Births, Deaths and Marriages

| Year | Births | Deaths | Marriages |

| 1975 | 80,918 | 40,497 | 36,958 |
| 1976 | 78,505 | 42,112 | 38,485 |

Vital Statistics.-Annual rate per x,000 of mean population in 1975:-Births, $16 \cdot 84$; Deaths, 8.43 : Marriages, 7.69. Deaths under y year per 1,000 live births, $15 \cdot 21$.

Religions

The members of the Church of England in New South Wales, according to the Census of 1971, number $x, 639,3 \times 6$. Roman Catholic (including "Catholic") x,319,250, Presbyterian 352,107, Methodist 302,856, Congregational zo,902, Baptist 59,541. Orthodox 129, 178 , Lutheran 33,776, Salvation Army 19,733, and Hebrew 25,971. The religion of 519,125 persons was either not stated in the census schedules or was stated as "none".

Physiography

Natural features divide the State into four strips of territory extending from north to south, viz., the Coastal Divisions; the Tablelands, which form the Great Dividing Range between the coastal districts and the plains; the Western Slopes of the Dividing Range; and the Western Plains. The highest points are Mounts Kosciusko, 7,328 feet, and Townsend, 7,266 feet. The coastal district is well watered by numerous rivers flowing from the ranges into fertile flats which form their lower basins. The western portion of the State is watered by the rivers of the Murray-Darling system and immense reservoirs have been constructed for irrigation purposes, as well as many artesian bores. The Darling, 1,702 miles, and the Murrumbidgee, 98 r miles, are both tributaries of the Murray, part of which forms the boundary between the States of New South Wales and Victoria, Other inland rivers are: Lachlan, Macquaric-Bogan, Castlereagh, Namoi and Gwydir.

Climate.-New South Wales is situated entirely in the Temperate Zone. The climate is equable and very healthy. At the capital (Sydney) the average mean shade temperature is $18^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. The mean (shade) temperature ranges for the various divisions of the State are as follows: coastal, $16^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ in the south to $20^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ in the north; northern and central tableland, $12^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ to $16^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$; southern tableland, $7^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ to $14^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$; and for the rest of the State (western slope, central plains, Riverina and western), $15^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ in the south to $18^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ in the north.

Government

New South Wales was first colonized as $\llbracket$ British possession in $\mathbf{1 7 8 8}$, and after progressive settlement a partly elective legislature was established in 1843 . In 1855 Responsible Government was granted, the present Constitution being founded on the Constitution Act of 1902. New South Wales federated with the other States of Australia in 1901.

The executive authority of the State is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), assisted by a Council of Ministers.

Education

Education.-Education is compulsory between the ages of 6 and 15 years. It is non-sectarian and free at all state schools. The enrolment in August 1976 in 2,225 state schools was 799,737 . In addition to the state schools there were, in 1975, 79x private colleges and schools, with an enrolment of 218,435 scholars. The six universities had an enrolment of 66,245 students in 1976; $17,35^{8}$ at Sydney (incorporated 1850 ), $18,3,77^{8}$ at New South Wales ( $\mathbf{1 9 4 8}$ ), 7,883 at New England (1954), 9,857 at Macquarie (1964), 4,501 at Newcastle (1965) and z,269 at Wollongong ( $\mathbf{x 9 7 5 \text { ). Colleges of Ad- }}$ vanced Education which provide courses at tertiary level, but with a more vocational emphasis than universities, had 31,132 studen2s enrolled in 1976. Students enrolled in technical colleges in 1976 numbered 228,738 . The State expenditure on education was $\$$ Ag02,800,000 in the year 1975-76.

Production and Industry

Value of Production.-In 1975-6 the net value of production of the primary industries (excluding mining and quarrying), was $$ A x, 689,090,000$. Of that agriculture contributed $$ A_{756,282,000,}$ livestock products (wool, milk, etc.) $$ \mathrm{~A}_{4} 83,824,000$, live-stock slaughterings $$ A_{3} 60,5 \times 5,000$ and other industries (forestry, fishing and trapping) $$ A 87,469,000$. Value added in mining and quarrying industries and manufacturing industries in 1975-7 Was $$ A_{734,203,000}$ and $$ A_{5,96 z, 318,000}$ respectively.

Agriculture.-The production of wheat in 1975-76 was $4,3 \times 0,485$ tonnes of grain and 37,462 tonnes of hay. Other important crops in 1975-76 were 697,376 tonnes of barley, 349,902 tonnes of oats. 408,267 tonnes of rice, besides other kinds of grain, ${ }_{x 17,875}$ tonnes of potatoes, and $1,047,489$ kilograms of dried leaf tobacco. Sugar-cane to the extent of 889,677 tonnes was crushed; while $69,061,763$ kilograms of bananas were obtained; almost every kind of fruit and vegetable is grown.

Pastoral, etc.-A large area is suitable for sheepraising, the principal breed of sheep being the celebrated merino, which was introduced in 1797. On March 31, 1976, there were 9, 137,994 cattle, $53,200,000$ sheep and lambs, and 708,785 pigs. In $1975-76,217,200,825 \mathrm{~kg}$. (stated as in the grease) of wool were produced, $10,321,000 \mathrm{~kg}$. of butter, $12,418,000 \mathrm{~kg}$. of cheese, and $21,958,000 \mathrm{~kg}$. of bacon and ham.

Mining Industry.-The principal minerals are coal, lead, zinc, rutile, zircon, copper and tin. The total value of minerals won in 1975-76 was $$$ A976,775,000; the value of output of the coalmining industry was $$ A 63^{1}, 690,000$ and of the silver-lead-zinc industry, $Aг30,050,000. The mining industry gave employment to 23,877 miners during 1975-76. In 1975-76, 40,935,000 tonnes of coal were produced.

Manufacturing Industry.-At June 30, 1975, there were 13,9 I9 manufacturing establishments. The average number of persons employed during 197475 was 485,645 , and the value added to materials was $A5,961,318,ooo. Large iron and steel works with subsidiary factories are in operation at Newcastle and Port Kembla in proximity to the coalfields. Products of the regions include iron and steel of various grades, pipes, boilers, steel wire and wire netting, copper wire, copper and brass cables and tin-plate. The production ( $1975-76$ ) of pig-iron was $6,836,000$ tonnes, and of steel ingots $6,939,000$ tonnes.

Overseas Trade

| 1976 | 3,451,189,000 | 2,253,660,000 |

The chief exports in $1975-76$ were coal, wheat, wool, iron and stecl machinery, meat, chemicals and copper alloys. Chief imports were machinery, motor vehicles, textiles, petroleum, chemicals, foodstuffs, medical instruments, etc., clothing, paper products, printed matter, pharmaceuticals and plastic materials.

Transport and Communications.
Shipping.-Excluding coastal trade, 3.488 vessels entered ports of N.S.W. during the year ended June 30, 1976 , the net tonnage being 29,289,934. The shipping entries at Sydney, including coastal, were 2,409 vessels of $55,583,5$ Ix net tonnage.

Roads and Bridges.-There are 209,271 kilometres of roads and streets in New South Wales, including 34,974 kilometres of natural surface and cleared only. The total expenditure by the Government and the local councils on roads, bridges, &cc, in 1974-75 was $A415,416,000. Sydney Harbour Bridge which was completed and opened for traffic in March, I932, carries eight lanes of roadway with a total width of 25.6 m , two footways each 3 m wide, and two lines of railway. ## Physiography

The Great Dividing Range on the eastern coast of the continent produces a similar formation to that of New South Wales, the eastern side having narrow slope to the coast and the western m long and gradual slope to the central plains, where the Selwyn and Kirby Ranges divide the land into a northern and southern watershed. The Brisbane, Burnett, Fitzroy and Burdekin rise in the eastern ranges and fow into the Pacific, the Flinders, Mitchell, and Leichhardt into the Gulf of Carpentaria, and the Barcoo and Warrego rise in the central ranges and flow southwards.

Government
Queensland was constituted a separate colony with Responsible Government in I959, having previously formed part of New South Wales. The executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), aided by an Executive Council of 18 members.

Religions.

Religion is free and receives no State aid. At the Census, 197x, the persons belonging to the principal religious denominations were as follows: Church of England, 286.754; Methodists, 215.328; Congregationalists, ${ }^{15,238 ;}$ Baptists, 22,010; Lutherans, 62,641; Roman Catholics, 242,166; Presbyterians, 39,9z0; Churches of Christ, 2z,802; and Orthodox, $32,636$.

Physiography

The most important physical features of South Australia are broad plains, divided longitudinally by four great secondary features, which form barriers to east-west movement, and which have thus largely determined the direction of roads and railways, the sites of towns and villages and the manner of distribution of the population. These four barriers are Spencer Gulf, Gulf St. Vincent, the Mt. Lofty-Flinders Ranges and the River Murray. The long, deeply-indented coast-line, which provides a few major, and multitude of lesser harbours, trends generally south-eastward. Pleasant weather conditions and good rainfall are experienced in most coastal areas.

The north-western portion of the State is mostly desert, while north of latitude $3 z^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. the country is unpromising by comparison with the fertile land which surrounds the hill country of the east. The Murray, which flows for some 400 miles through the south-eastern corner, is the only river of importance.

The lack of rivers and fresh-water lakes in the settled areas has necessitated the building of a number of reservoirs, which have been supplemented since r94I by the construction of pipelines from the River Murray.

Climate. -The mean annual temperature at Adelaide is $17 . \mathrm{I}^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$, the winter temperature (JuneAugust) averaging $11 \cdot 8^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$, and the summer (Nov-Mar.) $21.5^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. During the summer months the maximum temperature at times exceeds $40^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$, but is associated with a relatively low humidity. The average annual rainfall at Adelaide, derived from over 130 years' record is 25 inches. This total is rather higher than the approximate average annual rainfall over the whole of the agricultural areas. In the Mount Lofty Ranges the mean yearly rainfall in places exceeds 40 inches, while in Adelaide precipitation has fallen as low as $10 \cdot$ Ir inches.

Government

South Australia was proclaimed a British Province in 1836, and in 185 a partially elective legistature was established. The present Constitution rests upon a Law of Oct. 24, 1856, the executive authority being vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown, aided by a Council of 12 Ministers.

Physiograpiy

The surface of the country is generally hilly and timbered, with mountains from $x, 500$ to $5,300 \mathrm{ft}$. in height, and expanses of level, open plains. There are numerous rivers, the Gordon, Derwent, Piemam and Esk being the largest. The climate is fine and salubrious, and well suited to European constitutions; the hot winds of Australia do not often reach the island. At Hobart the mean maximum temperature ranges from about $54^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$ in winter to $70^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$ in summer, the minimum from $40^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$ to $52^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. The western side of the island is very wet, the eastern side being much drier; the average rainfall varies from inches to 140 inches in different parts.

Government

The island was first settled by $\quad$ British party from New South Wales in 1803 , becoming a separate colony in 1825 . In 185 I a partly elective legislature was inaugurated, and in 1856 responsible government was established. In rgor Tasmania became a State of the Australian Commonwealth. The state executive authority is vested in a Governor (appointed by the Crown), but is exercised by Cabinet Ministers responsible to the Legislature, of which they are members.

Physical Features.-Large areas of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Meharry ( $4,082 \mathrm{ft}$ ) in the north-west division or that of Bluff Knoll ( $3,640 \mathrm{ft}$.) in the Stirling Range in the south-west. The coastal regions are undulating, with minterior slope to the unsettled central portion of Australia. The Darling and Hamersley ranges of the west have a seaward slope to the Indian Ocean, into which flow many streams, notably the Preston, Collie, Murray, Swan, Murchison, Gascoyne, Ashburton, Fortescue and De Grey. In the north the Fitzroy flows from the King Leopold ranges into the Indian Ocean, and the Drysdale and Ord into the Timor Sea. The greater portion of the State may be described as an immense tableland, with an average elevation of $x, 000$ to $x, 500 \mathrm{ft}$. above sea-level, the surface of which varies from stretches of clay soils to the sand dunes of the far interior. The climate is one of the most temperate in the world. Of the total area two-thirds is suitable for pastoral purposes.

Government

Western Australia was first settled by the British in 1829 , and in 1870 it was granted a partially elective legislature. In 1890 Responsible Government was granted, and the Administration vested in a Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The present constitution rests upon the Constitution Act, 1889, the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 5899, and amending Acts. The Executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and aided by a Council of responsible Ministers.

The Legislative Assembly (elected March, 1974) is composed of Liberal Party 23, Australian Labour Party 22, National Country Party 6.

Races and Religions

PHYSIOGRAPHY
New Zealand consists of number of islands of varying size in the South Pacific Ocean, and has also administrative responsibility for large tract in the Antarctic Ocean. The two larger and most important islands, the North and South Islands of New Zealand, are separated by only a relatively narrow strait. The remaining islands are very much smaller and, in general, are widely dispersed over considerable expanse of ocean. The boundaries, inclusive of the most outlying islands and dependencies, range from $8^{\circ}$ South latitude to south of $60^{\circ}$ South latitude, and from $160^{\circ}$ East longitude to $\mathbf{3 5} 0^{\circ}$ West longitude.
Geographical Features.-The two principal islands have a total length of $x, 040$ miles, and I combined of roz,344 square miles. A large proportion of the surface is mountainous in character. The principal range is that of the Southern Alps, extending over the entire length of the South Island and having its culminating point in Mount Cook ( $\mathbf{2} 2,349 \mathrm{ft}$.). The North Island mountains include several volcanoes, two of which are active, others being dormant or extinct. Mt. Ruapehu ( $9,175 \mathrm{ft}$.) and Mt. Ngauruhoe ( 7.515 ft .) are the most important. Of the numerous glaciers in the South Island, the TasII: a ( 18 miles long by $\mathrm{x} \frac{1}{4}$ wide), the Franz Josef and the Fox um the best known. The North Island is noted for its hot springs and geysers. For the most part the rivers are too short and rapid for use in navigation. The more important include the Waikato ( 270 miles in length); Wanganui ( 180 ), and Clutha (210). Lakes (Taupo, 234 sq . miles in area; Wakatipu, r13: and Te Anau 133) in abundant, many of them of great beauty.
Climate.-New Zealand has a moist-temperate marine climate, but with abundant sunshine. A very important feature is the small annual range of temperature which permits of some growth of vegetation, including pasture, all the year round. Very little snow falls on the low levels even in the South Island. The mean temperature ranges from $15^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. in the North to about $9^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. in the South. Rainfall over the more settled areas in the North Island wine from 35 to 70 inches and in the South Island from 25 to 45 inches. The total range is from approximately $\times 3$ to over 250 inches. The number of rainy days is generally in the neighbourhood of 160 to 180 in the North Island and between 1 ro and 140 in the South, except in the southern portion of the west coast. The amount of sunshine is generally over 2,000 hours per annum and ranges between $x, 600$ to 2,500 hours.

GOVERNMENT

The west coast of the South Island of New Zealand was discovered by Abel Janszoon Tasman, the navigator (voyaging under the direction of the Netherlands' East India Company), on December 13, 1642.

The islands were visited, and charted, in $\mathbf{1 7 6 9}$ by Captain Cook, who returned to them in 1773, I774 and 1777. From 1800 onwards sealers and whalers settled along the coasts, and trade in timber and flax followed. Christianity was introduced in 1814, and in 1832 I British Resident was appointed. In 8840 British sovereignty was proclaimed, and on May 3, x84x, New Zealand was, by letters patent, created $=$ separate colony distinct from New South Wales. Organized colonization on a large scale commenced in 1840 with the New Zealand Come pany's settlement at Wellington. On Sept. 26, 1907, the designation was changed to The Dominion of New Zealand. The Constitution rests upon the Imperial Act of 1852 , and on the New Zealand Constitution (Amendment) Act of Dec. ro, 1947 The Statute of Westminster was formally adopted by New Zealand in 1947. The executive authority is entrusted to a Governor-General appointed by the Crown and aided by an Executive Council, within a Legislature consisting of one chamber, the House of Representatives.
Flag: Blue ground, with Union Jack in top left quarter, four five-pointed red stars with white borders on the fly. On June 20, 1968, a new naval ensign bearing the Southern Cross w adopted, replacing the British white ensign.

Forestry. -The output of nwn timber for 1976 was $883,192,000$ board ft., of which $736,064,000$ board ft. represented exotic varieties, mainly pine.
Livestock.-Livestock on farms at Jan. 3x, 1977, included $2,970,000$ dairy cattle (of which $2,075,000$ were dairy cows in milk during season), $6,440,000$ beef cattle (of which $2,345,000$ were beef breeding cows), and 559,000 pigs. At June 30, 1976, sheep numbered $56,400,000$, including $4 \mathrm{I}, 200,000$ breeding ewes.
Manufactures.-Statistics of factory production show ( $1973-74$ ) 7,690 factories in operation, employing 244,522 persons. Salaries and wages amounted to $$ \mathrm{NZx}_{1,042,214,000 \text {; cost of materials }}$ used, $$ \mathrm{NZ}_{3}, \mathbf{1 2 2 , 8 0 6 , 0 0 0}$. Total value of production, $NZ5,250,878,000.

Minerals-Coal output in 1976 was 2,486,000 tonnes. Gold-mining formerly an important industry, but production has declined greatly la recent years. Other minerals produced on a relatively small scale are copper, silver, iron ore, ganese ore, zinc, leads, cadmium, tungsten and asbestos. Valuable deposits of natural gas have been discovered in Taranaki, and this has been piped to some main North Island centres. New Zealand has large resources of potential iron ore in the black sands of many of its beaches of which $2,346,625$ tonnes were exported in 1976 and steelworks have been built mat Auckland to utilize such deposits.

TRADE

Provisional figures of New Zealand's trade during the year ended June, 1976 , were; Imports (c.i.f.) $$ \mathrm{NZ} 2,927,690,000$, compared with $$ \mathrm{NZ}_{2,763}, 100,000$ in 1974-75; Exports, (f.o.b.) $$ \mathrm{NZ} 2,37 \mathrm{I}, 605,000$, compared with $$ \mathrm{NZ}$ 1,621,547,000 in 1974-75.

THE ISLANDS OF NEW ZEALAND
In addition to North, South, Stewart and Chatham Islands:-

The Three Kings (discovered by Tasman on the Feast of the Epiphany), in $34^{\circ} 9^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. lat. and $172^{\circ} 8^{\prime \prime} 8^{\prime \prime}$ E. long. (uninhabited). Auckland Islands, about 290 miles south of Bluff Harbour, in $50^{\circ} 33^{\prime}$ S. lat. and $166^{\circ} \times 3^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. long. The islands contain several good harbours, but are uninhabited. Campbell Island (used a weather station). Antipodes Group ( $40^{\circ} 4 \mathrm{I}^{\prime} 15 \mathrm{~S}$. lat. and $378^{\circ} 43^{\prime}$ E. long.) uninhabited. Bounty Islands $\left(47^{\circ} 4^{\circ} 43\right.$ S. lat., $170^{\circ}$ or 30 E. long.). Snares Islands and Solander (uninhabited).

The Kermadec Group (population normally 9 or 10) between $29^{\circ}$ rol to $31^{\circ} 30^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. lat., and $177^{\circ}$ $45^{\prime}$ to $179^{\circ}$ W. long., includes Raoul or Sunday, Macaulay, Curtis Islands, L'Esperance, and some islets. All the inhabitants are government employees at $\mathbb{I}$ meteorological station.

Cook and other Islands, included in the boundaries of New Zealand since June, 190r, consist of the islands of Rarotonga, Aitutaki, Mangaia, Atiu, Mauke, Matiaro, Manuae, Takutea, Palmerston, Penrhyn or Tongareva, Manihiki, Rakahanga, Pukapuka or Danger, and Nassau. The total population of the group was 18,937 at Sept. 30 , 1974. Niue, which is geographically part of Cook Islands, but which is administered separately, had an estimated population nill Sept. 30, 1974 of 3,992 . The chief exports of the Cook Islands are fruit juice, clothing, copra, bananas, citrus fuit and pulp, and pearl shell. The trade is chiefly with New Zealand, Australia, Japan, the U.K. and the U.S.A. Financial aid to the Cook Islands and Niue approved by the New Zealand Government totalled $$ \mathrm{NZ}_{5}{ }^{\circ}$ million for the $1973-74$ financial year.
The High Commissioner of the Cook Islands is employed in a dual role, since he represents both the Queen and the New Zealand Government. Since Aug. 4, 1965, the Islands have enjoyed complete internal self-government, excecutive power being in the hands of a Cabinet consisting of the Premier and five other ministers. The new Constitution Act was passed by the New Zealand Parliament in November 1964, but did not come into force until it had been endorsed by the $2 z$-member Legislative Assembly of the Cook Islands, elected in April 1965.
The New Zealand citizenship of the Cook Islanders is embodied in the Constitution, and assurances have been given that the changed status of the Islands will in no way affect the consideration of subsidies or the right of free entry into New Zealand for exports from the group.
A New Zealand Representative is stationed at Niue, which since October 1974 has been selfgoverning in free association with New Zealand, which is responsible for external affairs and defence. Executive power is in the hands of $■$ Premier and a Cabinet of 3 drawn from the Assembly of 20 members.

Tokelau (or Union Islands).-A group of atolls (Fakaofo, Nukunono and Atafu) (population r.574 in Sept. 1974), proclaimed part of New Zealand as from Jan. $x, 1948$.

THE ROSS DEPENDENCY

The Ross Dependency, placed under the jurisdiction of New Zealand by Order in Council dated July 30 , 1923 , and defined all the islands and territories between $160^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. and $55^{\circ} \mathrm{W}$. longitude which are situated south of the $60^{\circ} \mathrm{S}^{\circ}$. parallel. The Ross Dependency includes Edward Vill Land and portions of Victoria Land. For some years there have been permanent bases in the area, staffed by survey and scientific personnel.

The Bahamas

The Bahama Islands are an archipelago lying in the Atlantic Ocean between $20^{\circ} 55^{\prime}-27^{\circ} 32^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. Lat; $72^{\circ} 40^{\prime}-79^{\circ} 20^{\prime} \mathrm{W}$. Long. They extend from the coast of Florida on the north-west almost to Haiti on the south-east. The group consists of 700 islands, of which 30 are inhabited and 2,400 cays comprising an area of more than 5,380 square miles. The population, at the end of 1974, was estimated at 197,000. The principal islands include: Abaco, Acklins, Andros, Berry Islands, Bimini, Cat Cay, Cat Island, Crooked Island, Eleuthera, Exumas, Grand Bahama, Harbour Island, Inagua, Long Cay, Long Island, Mayaguana, New Providence (on which is located the capital, Nassau), Ragged Island, Rum Cay, San Salvador and Spanish Wells. San Salvador was the first landfall in the New World of Christopher Columbus on October 12, 1492.
The Bahamas were settled by British subjects when the islands were deserted. The ownership of the Bahamas was taken over in 1782 by the Spanish, but the Treaty of Versailles in 1783 restored them to the British.
Tourism is the economic mainstay of the Bahamas, whose salubrious climate and fine beaches attract over $x, 000,000$ visitors annually.

Government

The Bahamas gained independence on July ro, 1973. There are a Senate of 16 members and elected House of Assembly of 38 members.

Bangladesh

Area, Population, Climate, etc.- The People's Republic of Bangladesh consists of the territory which was formerly East Pakistan (the old province of East Bengal and the Sylhet district of Assam), covering in area of 55,126 sq. miles in the region of the Gangetic delta, and has - population, according to the 1974 census, of ${ }_{71}, 3 \times 6,8 \mathbf{1 7}$, but official estimates place the current figure at $8 \mathrm{r}, 000,000$.

The country is crossed by a network of navigable rivers, including the eastern wom of the Ganges, the Jumna (Brahmaputra) and the Meghna, fowing into the Bay of Bengal. The climate is tropical and monsoon; hot and extremely humid during the summer, and mild and dry during the short winter. The rainfall is heavy, varying from 50 inches to $\mathrm{I}_{35}$ inches in different districts and the bulk of it falls during monsoon season (from June to September). The mater temperature during the winter (November to February) is about $20^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. $\left(68^{\circ} \mathrm{F}\right.$.) and during the hot season $30^{\circ} \mathrm{C}\left(86^{\circ} \mathrm{F}\right.$.).

Prior to becoming East Pakistan, the territory had been part of British India. It acceded to Pakistan in October, $\mathbf{2 9 4 7}$, and became $\quad$ Republic on March 23, 1956.

By a proclamation of March 26, 197x, Bangladesh purported to secede from the central government, and g government-in-exile was set up in April in Calcutta. The short war between India and Pakistan, in both the East and the West, and India's overwhelming defeat of the Pakistani Army in the East, brought about de facto secession of the East wing. The Indo-Pakistan war was concluded on December 16 , 197x, and Mr. Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto became President on December zo. Sheikh Mujib was sworn in as Prime Minister on January iz. Recognition of the new state was accorded swiftly by many countries. Bangladesh was admitted to the Commonwealth on April 18 , and to the United Nations in 1974. Pakistan and Bangladesh accorded one another mutual recognition in Feb. 1974 and established diplomatic relations in Jan. 1976.

Government.-A Constitution was promulgated on December i5, and provided for a multi-party system of democratic government. In Dec. 1974 the President declared II State of Emergency and suspended certain constitutional privileges. In January 1975 Sheikh Mujib introduced constitutional amendments which empowered him to assume the Presidency and to establish a one-party system of government. On August 15 Sheikh Mujib and his family were assassinated by dissident Army officers. The former Commerce Minister, Khandaker Moshtaque Ahmed, assumed the Presidency. On November 4 Brigadier Khaled Mosharraf, Chief of Army Staff, led I short-lived coup which displaced President Moshtaque, but Mosharraf was himself overthrown and killed a few days later. Since then a non-political administration has run the country under martial law, initially under President Mr Justice A. M. Sayem (the former Chief Justice), who resigned on April 2, 1977, when Major-General Ziaur Rahman became President.

President and Chief Martial Law Administrators, Maj.Gen. Ziaur Rahman.

Education.-The present system of education is under review. Primary education is free but not universal. There are six Universities: Dacca, Rajshahi, Chittagong, Bangladesh University of Engineering and Technology (at Dacca), Bangladesh Agricultural University (at Mymensingh), and Jahangirnagar (opened in 1970). In 1974 literacy was estimated at 22.21 per cent. of the whole of Bangladesh and 26 per cent. of the male population.

Transport and Communications.-Principal seaports with total import and export tonnages for 1975 in millions, were: $\psi$ Chittagong 4.59 , and \# Chalna $\times 54$ The Bangladesh Shipping Corporation has been set up by the Government to operate the Bangladesh merchant fleet. The principal airports with runway lengths in feet are Dacca-Tejgaon ( 9,000 ) and Chittagong ( 7,500 ) ; new international airport outside Dacca is scheduled for completion in 1977. A national airline, Bangladesh Biman, has been established with services to London and Calcutta, Bangkok, Karachi, Dubai, Singapore and Katmandu, and an internal network.

There are about 3,900 miles of roads in Bangladesh; 2,400 miles are metalled. There are 2,600 miles of railway track.

Radio Bangladesh is the main national broadcasting service. A television service was introduced in 1965.

Production.-Bangladesh is the principal producer of raw jute in the world. Other agricultural products are rice, tea, oil seeds, pulses, and sugar cane. The chief industries are jute, cotton, tea, leather, paper, fertilizer and sugar.

Aid. Bangladesh is major recipient of bilateral and multilateral development aid. Commitments made by the Aid Group led by the I.B.R.D. in the financial year $1976-77$ totalled U.S. $921,740,000. Commitments were composed of U.S. $$ 253, a 10,000$ in food aid, U.S. $$ 258,930,000$ commodity aid and U.S. $$ 409,800,000$ project aid.

CAPITAL, Dacca. Population $1,730,253$, according to the results of the 1974 census.

Barbados

Barbados, the most easterly of the Caribbean islands, is situated in latitude $13^{\circ} 14^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. and longitude $59^{\circ} 37^{\prime} \mathrm{W}$. The island has a total area of 166 square miles, the land rising in a series of tablelands marked by terraces to the highest point, Mt. Hillaby ( $\mathbf{x}, \mathbf{1 0 4} \mathrm{ft}$.). It is nearly 2 I miles long by $\mathbf{4} 4$ miles broad. Some 46 acres are covered by forest and 68,875 acres are cultivated. Climate. -Barbados has a pleasant climate with annual average temperature $26.5^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. ( $79^{\circ} 8^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$.) and rainfall varying from $\square$ yearly average of 75 inches

Botswana

Botswana (formerly the British Protectorate of Bechuanaland) lies between latitudes $18^{\circ}$ and $26^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. and longitudes $20^{\circ}$ and $28^{\circ} \mathrm{W}$. and is bounded by the Cape and Transvaal Provinces of South Africa on the south and east, by Rhodesia, the Zambest amd Chobe (Linyanti) Rivers min the north and north-east and by South West Africa me the west. Botswana extends mine 500 miles by 550 miles, with $\mid$ total mel 220,000 square miles. The climate of the country is generally sub-tropical, but varies considerably with latitude and altitude. A plateau at a height of about 4,000 feet divides Botswana into two main topographical regions. To the east of the plateau streams flow into the Marico, Notwani and Limpopo Rivers; to the west lies a flat region comprising the Kgalagadi Desert, the Okavango Swamps and the Northern State Lands area. The Kgalagadi Desert is level tract closely covered with thorn bush and grass, extending 300 miles to the west and bounded by the Makgadikgadi salt pans and the Boteti River in the north. Its rainfall varies from 20 inches in the east to 9 inches in the south-west. The Okavango Swamps, 6,500 square miles in area, lie in the remote north-western corner of Botswana, and, apart from the Limpopo and Chobe Rivers, are the only source of permanent surface water in the country. North of the Boteti River and the Makgadikgadi depression the Kgalagadi Desert gives way to forest and dense bush of the Northern State Lands. Large areas of the country support only herds of game. Elephant numbers have been estimated at 10,000 .

Population--Botswana has an estimated population of 720,000 . The eight principal Botswana tribes are Bakgatla, Bakwena, Bangwaketse, Bamalete, Bamangwato, Barolong, Batawana and Batlokwa. CAprtal.-Gaborone, estimated population 34,000 . Other business centres are Francistown ( 25,000 ) and Lobatse ( 55,000 ). FlAG.-Horizontal bands of blue, white, blue, with a black stripe on the white band.

Government.-On September 30 , $\mathbf{x} 666$, Bechuanaland became a Republic within the Commonwealth under the name Botswana. The President of Botswana is Head of State and appoints as Vice-President a member of the National Assembly who is his principal assistant and leader of Government business in the National Assembly. The Assembly consists of the President, 32 members elected $\quad$ I basis of universal adult suffrage, specially elected members, the Attorney-General (non-voting) and the Speaker. There is also $=$ House of Chiefs.

Botswana is a predominantly pastoral country, with a national herd of nearly 3 million cattle and I. 8 million smallstock ( 2977 figures). Eighty per cent. of agricultural income is derived from cattle. The country il embarking on a Tribal Grazing Land Programme which will encourage the adoption of modern ranching techniques. Measures are being taken to combat soil erosion and to increase livestock and crop production.

Mineral extraction and processing has recently become a major source of income for the country, following the opening of large mines for diamonds and copper-nickel. Large deposits of coal have been discovered, and are being mined on small scale; plans for comprehensive deveiopment remain to be formulated. Much of the country has yet to be fully prospected. Manufacturing industry is expected to grow rapidly in the future, in communications improve.

Education.-In 1975, there were 323 primary schools with enrolment of 116,293 and 15 secondary schools with enrolment of 8,434 . There were also three teacher training establishments with enrolment of 489. The principal languages in use in the country are English and Setswana.

Communications.-The railway from Kimberley and Mafeking in South Africa to Bulawayo in Rhodesia passes through eastern Botswana. The main roads in the country are the north-south road, which closely follows the railway, and the road running east-west that links Francistown and Maun. A new road from Nata to Kazungula provides a direct link to Zambia from Botswana. Air services are provided on a scheduled basis between the main towns, linking with services from South Africa and Zambia.

Cyprus

Area, Climate and Population.-Cyprus with an of 3.572 square miles, is the third largest island in the Mediterranean Sea, exceeded in size by Sicily and Sardinia. Its greatest length is 140 miles and greatest breadth 60 miles. It is situated at the extreme north-east corner of the Mediterranean in latitude $35^{\circ} \mathrm{N}$. and longitude $33^{\circ} 30^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. It is about 40 miles distant from the nearest point of Asia Minor, 60 miles from Syria and 240 miles from Port Said. The main topographical features of Cyprus are: (a) A narrow limestone range of mountains extending in unbroken chain for nearly miles along the north coast, at an average height of 2,000 feet; ( $b$ ) A broad central plain, running for some 60 miles from west to east; ( $c$ ) An extensive igneous massif rising to over 6,000 feet in the west of the island; and (d) Narrow coastal plains between the mountains and the sea. The rivers are little more than mountain torrents. There is no permanent stream of any volume.

Cyprus has I somewhat intense Mediterranean climate (with $\_$hot dry summer and $\quad$ - variable wis winter). There are two contrasted seasons, winter and summer, while the intermediate ones uIE short and transitionat. The winter is generally sunny with frequent cold spells between the beginning of December and end of February. The mean temperatures of the coldest month range from $36^{\circ}$ to $50^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$.

The rainy season lasts from October to April with average total rainfall of about zo inches.
The summers are hot, dry and almost cloudless. July and August are the warmest months, with mean temperatures ranging from $80^{\circ}-85^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. in the lowlands, to $70^{\circ}$ in the mountains. In April I974 the estimated population was 632,000 . There are two maior communities, Greek Cypriots ( $7_{8}$ per cent.) and Turkish Cypriots ( 88.2 per cent.); and minorities of Armenians, Maronites and others. The population increases on the average at $0 \cdot 9$ per cent. annually. The birth rate in 1973 was estimated to be $18 \cdot 2$ and the death rate 9.5 per thousand.

CAPITAL. -Nicosia, near the centre of the island, with $■$ population of 235,000 (including suburbs); the Paphos ( 57,300 ) and Kyrenia ( 32,700 ). (Since the events of July and August 1974 (see below) there have been significant changes in population distribution). Nicosia is distant from London 2,028 miles by air.

Government

Cyprus passed under British administration from x878. Cyprus was formally annexed to Great Britain on Nov. 5, 1914, on the outbreak of war with Turkey. From x925 to 8960 it was a Crown Colony administered by - Governor, assisted by an Executive Council and also for time by partlyelected Legislative Council. Following the launching in April r955 of an armed campaign by EOKA in support of ENOSIS (union with Greece), a state of emergency was declared in November, 1955, and Archbishop Makarios was deported. Further proposals for a workable constitution made in $x 956$ and seven-year-plan for the government of Cyprus in association withGreece and Turkey were rejected by the Greek Government and Greek Cypriots. Archbishop Makarios was released in March, 1957, but was not allowed to return immediately to Cyprus. Following I meeting at Zuirich between the Prime Ministers of Greece and Turkey, I conference was held in London and an agreement was signed on February 19, 1959, between the United Kingdom, Greece. Turkey and the Greek and Turkish Cypriots which provided that Cyprus would be an independent Republic.

Constitution.-Under the Cyprus Act, 1960, the island became an independent sovereign republic co August 16, 2960. The constitution provides for Greek Cypriot President and Turkish Cypriot Vice-President elected for a five-year term by the Greek and Turkish communities respectively. The House of Representatives, elected for five years by universal suffrage of each community separately, consists of 35 Greek and 15 Turkish members. The 1960 Constitution proved unworkable in practice and led to the intercommunal troubles. Talks have been in progress between Greeks and Turks since 1968 on new Constitution for the island assisted by the Special Representative in Cyprus of the U.N. Sec.-Gen. and more recently the Secretary General personally. The mandate of the U.N. Peace Keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) was last renewed for the twenty-seventh time on June 13, 1975, for a further period of six months.

A General Election was held for the 35 Greek Cypriot seats on July 5, x970, resulting in the following state of parties: Unified Parly, 15; Akel (Communist), 9; Progressive Front, 7; Democratic Centre Union, 2 ; and Independents, 2 . On the same day elections were held in the Turkish sector to elect $\mathrm{x}_{5}$ members for Turkish Cypriot national seats and 5 Turkish communal seats which together form a temporary chamber in the Turkish Cypriot sector first set up in December, 1967, but which is not recognized by the Cyprus Government. On July 15. 1974, mainland Greek officers of the Greek Cypriot National Guard launched - coup d'étal against President Makarios and installed a former EOKA member Nikos Sampson in his place. Turkey, purportedly acting under the 1960 Treaty of Guarantee by which Britain, Greece and Turkey reserved to themselves the right to maintain constitutional order and the independence and territorial integrity of the island, invaded northern Cyprus on July 20 , subsequently moving on August 13, to occupy approximately 40 per cent. of $^{2}$ the island. Despite successive U.N. resolutions calling for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from the island and the return of refugees (who number about 210,000 ) to their homes, much of the northern part of Cyprus remains under Turkish military occupation with " Turkish Federated State" declared in this area.

British Sovereign Areas.-The United Kingdom retained full sovereignty and jurisdiction over two areas of 99 square miles in all-Akrotiri-EpiskopiParamali and Dhekella-Pergamos-Ayios Nicolaos-Xylophagou-and use of roads and other facilities. The British Administrator of these areas is appointed by the Queen and is responsible to the Secretary of State for Defence.

Production and Industries.-About 36 per cent. of those gainfully employed take part in agriculture, the chief agricultural products being:-cereals, vine products, potatoes, carobs, carrots, citrus and other fresh and dried fruit, tobacco and legumes.

Various kinds of livestock are raised, principally sheep, goats, pigs and poultry. The value of agricultural and livestock exports in 1974 was about £28,250,000. Mining is an important industry in Cyprus; the value of minerals exported in 1974 was $£ 9,742,000$. The principal minerals are cupreous and copper concentrates, copper pyrites, and asbestos. There is no heavy industry, but I wide variety of light manufacturing industries.

Fiji

This is a group of some 840 islands (of which about 100 are inhabited) in the South Pacific Ocean, about $x, 100$ miles north of New Zealand. The gross area of the group, which extends 300 miles from east to west, and 300 north to south, between $15^{\circ} 45^{\prime}-21^{\circ} 10^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. lat. and $176^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$.- $178^{\circ} \mathrm{W}$. long. is 7,072 square miles. The International Date Line has been diverted to the east of the island group. Many of the islands are of volcanic origin, with lofty mountains, and well wooded. The principal are Viti Levu, Vanua Levu, Taveuni and Kandavu. The climate is oceanic. Shade temperatures seldom rise above $93^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. or fall below $60^{\circ}$ F. except in the mountains. There is a great contrast in vegetation between the windward and leeward sides of the larger islands with rain forests and luxuriant vegetation giving way in the drier zones to grassland with scattered trees. The chief products are sugar cane, coconuts, (and coconut products, e.g., copra), gold, rice, bananas, pineapples, yams and dalo or taro (colocasia). Tourism is an increasingly important source of revenue.

The population ( 1976 Census) was 588,000 ( 293,000 Indians, 260,000 Fijians, $\mathbf{x 0 , 0 0 0}$ part-Europeans, 5,000 Chinese, and 15,000 other Pacific races).

Capital.- $\Psi$ 'Suva, in the island of Viti Levu. Population 64,000.

Government.-Fiji was a British colony from 1874 until October 10, 1970, when it became In independent state and member of the Commonwealth. Under the Constitution there is a Governor-General appointed by the Queen. An elected House of Representatives ( 52 members) consists of 12 Fijians, 4 Indians and 3 General members elected on Communal rolls; and 10 Fijians, so Indians and 5 General members elected on National rolls, in which members of all races vote on the same register. General members are in the main representatives of the European, part-European and Chinese communities.
There is a Senate of 22 members, 8 appointed by the Great Council of Chiefs, 7 by the Prime Minister, 6 by the Leader of the Opposition and one by the Council of Rotuma, island dependency 400 miles from Suva, discovered in 1879 and annexed in 188x.

The Gambia

The West African river Gambla discovered by the Portuguese in 1447 ; and in $\mathbf{2 5 8 8}$, the year of the Spanish Armada, Queen Elizabeth I, being then at war with Spain and Portugal, gave rcharter to British Company to trade with the Gambia, and mearly $\quad \mathbf{x 6 r 8}$ an effort to do so was made, but it was not successful. In 1686 a fort was built upon a rocky island, and, in honour of the new King, was named Fort James; but the English merchants had formidable rivals in the Portuguese and French, and it was not until $17^{83}$ that the river was recognized, by the Treaty of Versailles, British. The Colony had no regular political institutions until 1807, when it was put under the Government of Sierra Leone. The Colony of the Gambia was created in 1843, and was constituted a separate government in r888. It consists of a narrow strip of land, estimated at $4,003 \mathrm{sq}$. miles, lying on both sides of the River Gambla to a distance of about 300 miles, mainly between $13^{\circ} \times 5^{\prime}-13^{\circ} 45^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. and $13^{\circ} 45^{\prime}-13^{\circ} 65^{\prime} \mathrm{W}$. The river is navigable to ocean-going vessels for 150 miles and to river steamers up to 300 miles from its mouth. The capital and chief port, Banjul, formerly Bathurst, is situated at the mouth of the river. The provisional figure for the total population of the country at the 1973 Census was 493,499 . The climate of Banjul is extremely pleasant except during the rainy season from June to October, when it sometimes becomes uncomfortably humid. Rainfall, $30-60$ inches a year.
CAPITAL- $\Psi$ Banjul. Population (r973 census), 39,476.
FiAG.-Horizontal stripes of red, blue and green, separated by narrow white stripes.

Government.-On February 18, 1965, the Gambia became independent monarchy within the Commonwealth, with the Queen as Head of State. On April 24, 1970, following a referendum, the constitution was changed to that of a Republic (within the Commonwealth) with - executive President. The House of Representatives, which elects its own Speaker, consists of 35 elected members, 4 elected Head Chiefs, 3 nominated members and the Attorney General (who is also nominated member with voting rights). The Vice-President, who is the Government leader in the House, and other Ministers are appointed by the President. The latter's tenure of office is co-terminous with the life of $\quad$ Parliament.

Ghana

Ghana (formerly the British Colony of the Gold Coast) is situated on the Gulf of Guinea, between $3^{\circ} 07^{\prime}$ W. long. and $x^{\circ} 34^{\prime}$ E. long. (about 334 miles), and extends 441 miles north from Cape Three Points ( $4^{\circ} 45^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$.) to $I x^{\circ} 1 x^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. It is bounded on the north by the Republic of Upper Volta, on the west by the Republic of Ivory Coast, on the east by the Republic of Togo, and on the south by the Atlantic Ocean. Although a tropical country, Ghana is cooler than many countries within similar latitudes.

Area and Population,-Ghana has a total area of 92,100 sq. miles with - total population (Census of 1970) of $8,545.56 \mathrm{x}$, some 27 per cent. more than the population at the Census of 1960. Almost all Ghanaians are Sudanese Negroes, although Hamitic strains are common in Northern Ghana.

Caprtal - $\Psi$ Accra. Population of the Capital District (including Accra Tema City Council area, and Accra Rural area) (provisional, 1970) 851,614 . Other towns are Kumasi, Tamale, SekondiTakoradi, Cape Coast, Sunyani, Ho, Koforidua, Tarkwa and Winneba. Accra is 3,9 zo miles by sea from Liverpool, transit $x 2$ to 30 days.

Flag.-Equal horizontal bands of red over yellow over green; five-point black star on gold stripe. INDEPENDENCE DAY-March 6.

GOVERNMENT

The Gold Coast region of West Africa was first visited by European traders in the fifteenth century. The Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, the Northern Territories and Trans-Volta-Togoland, the constituent parts of the new State, came under British administration at various times, the original Gold Coast Colony, the coastal and Southern areas, being first constituted in 1874 ; Ashanti in $x 901$; and the Northern Territories Protectorate in ygor. The territory of Trans-Volta-Togoland, part of Togo, former German colony, was mandated to Britain by the League of Nations after the First World War, and remained under British administration $n$ United Nations Trusteeship after the Second World War. After in plebiscite in May.

1956, under the auspices of the United Nations, the territory was integrated with the Gold Coast Colony.
The former Gold Coast Colony and associated territories became the independent state of Ghana and a member of the British Commonwealth March 6, 1957, under the Ghana Independence Act, 1957, and adopted a Republican constitution on July $x, 1960$.

On Feb. 24, 3966, the Army seized power and Dr. Nkrumah and his ministers were dismissed.

Ghana was administered until October 1, 1969, by I National Liberation Council of four representatives each from the Army and the police, during which time $=$ Constitution for the Second Republic of Ghana evolved and brought into force by 150 member Constituent Assembly on Aug. 22, 1969.

General elections were held August 29, 1969, in which Dr. K. A. Busia's Progress Party won ros seats and Mr. K. A. Gbedemah's National Alliance of Liberals 29, the remaining 6 seats being won by minority parties. Dr. Busia was appointed Prime Minister on Sept. 3, 1969, and the N.L.C. formally handed over to the civilian government nil October $x_{0}$ 1969. A three-man presidential Commission was appointed under Brigadier Afrifa in September 1969. It was dissolved in July 1970, and a month later Mr. E. Akufo-Addo was elected President.

On January 13,1972 , the Busia administration was ousted in an army coup d'étal led by Colonel I. K. Achearmpong. The Constitution was withdrawn, political activity banned and the Presidency abolished. The National Redemption Council is the supreme governing body, assisted by ma Executive Council. Rule is by decree.

Judiciary

The Judiciary, headed by the Chief Justice, represents the judicial control of Ghana and has authority over all civil and criminal matters, except those heard by military tribunals. Fundamentally the Courts of Ghana consist of two divisions, the Superior Court of Judicature and the Inferior Courts. The former consists of the Court of Appeal and the High Court. The Inferioy Courts consist of the Circuit Courts, approximately equivalent to the old British Assize Courts, now Crown Courts, and such courts as deal with judicial matters on district and juvenile level.

The Court of Appeal, when constituted with five Justices, is the final Court of Appeal in Ghana. The Chief Justice has discretion to create divisions of the Court of Appeal.

The High Court of Justice.-This court has jurisdiction over criminal, industrial and labour matters. Consisting of the Chief Justice and minimum of twelve Puisne Judges, it may also include any other judge appointed at the discretion of the Chief Justice. Individual courts may consist of up to three judges, with or without I jury.

Production, etc.
Agriculture.-Agriculture forms the basis of Ghana's economy, employing 70 per cent. of $=$ working population. Crops of the Forest Zone include cocoa, which is the largest single source of revenue, rice and I variety of other foodstuff crops grown on mixed-crop farms. Fruits such : avocado pears, oranges and pineapples megrown. Cassava is the most important crop of the Coastal Savannas Zone, which consists of the Accra Plains ( $x, 400$ sq. miles) and Ho-Keta Plains ( 2,600 sq. miles) of the lower Volta area. Fishing is important in coastal in-w and in the Volta itself. Production of pulses such egroundnuts, tiger nuts and cowpeas is widespread. Near the Togo border oil palms, yams, maize, cassava, fruit and vegetables are produced. Livestock is raised in the uncultivated areas. The Northern Savanna Zone is Ghana's principal cattle rearing area and other livestock production there is important for home consumption. Corn and millet crops are produced in the far north and maize, yams, rice and groundnut crops in nin southerly parts of the Zone.

A State Farms Corporation, established in 1963 to further larger scale farming enterprise, has more than 300 farms in various parts of the country and operates from eight regional centres.

Fisheries.-Some 150,000 of the country's population are engaged in fisheries which now produce about $x 80,000$ tons annually. Ghana's estimated annual requirement is at least 250,000 tons and there IIE considerable imports of fish products. About 80 per cent of home supply is obtained from sea fisheries, but production from the Volta Lake and other inland fisheries is increasing rapially thanks to greatly increased fish population.

Mineral Production.-The area within 160 mile radius of Dunkwa produces 90 per cent. of Ghana's mineral exports. Manganese production from Nsuta ranks among the world's highest and gold, industrial diamonds and bauxite also produced. Some 30,000 persons are employed by the mining companies.

Mamufactures.-Examples of the smail-scale traditional industries are tailoring, goldsmithing and carpentry. Priority has been given in recent years to the establishment of a number of "Pioneer Industries "including sawmill furniture, prefabricated doors, plywood, vehicle assembly, cigarettes, boatbuilding, refrigerator assembly, food processing (biscuits, edible oils, confectionery, brewing, etc.), cotton textiles, clothing footwear, printing and other light industries. A modern industrial complex is growing in the Accra-Tema area.

Volta River Project.- The Volta River is formed at the confuence of the Black and White Voltas, both of which rise in the neighbouring republic of Upper Volta. With its tributaries the Volta drains an 150,000 sq. miles of which $6 x, 000 \mathrm{sq}$. miles lie in Ghana. The Volta Dam at Akosombo was inaugurated January, 1966 , to generate hydro-electric power for the processing of bauxite and feed a power transmission network for the Accra-Kumasi-Takoradi area. Electricity is miw also sent to Togo and Dahomey, The lake raised by the Volta Dam has a maximum urw of $3,275 \mathrm{sq}$. miles, a length of 250 miles and shore line of 4,500 miles. A water transport service from Akosombo to various points on the lake has been instituted.
Power output from Akosombo il planned to reach 768 megawatts, in times the country's 1959 generating capacity. Smalier dams with 550 MW . and 93 MW . capacity to be built Kpong rapids and II Buil if the Northern Region. Plamed aluminium output in Ghana by 1973 |⿶凵 145,000 tons (1969, 103,000 tons).

COMmUNICATIONS

There are four aerodromes in Ghana, situated at Accra, Takoradi, Kumasi and Tamale. Accra Airport is an international airport and is the terminus for services from the United Kingdom, the Northern, Ashanti and Western Regions.

Railway communications consist of a main line rumning from Takoradi to Kumasi thence to Accra, $\square$ distance of 357 miles. From Huni Valley on the Kumasi line north of Takoradi a line runs to Kotoku all the railway about 27 miles north of Accra. Branch lines run to Sekondi, Prestea, Kade, Awaso and Tema. Total railway mileage open to traffic is 600 . There we $\mathbf{2 0 , 2 4 5}$ miles of motorable roads, of which 2,335 are bitumen.

Takoradi Harbour consists of two breakwaters enclosing ■ water area of 220 acres. Seven quay berths are situated 5 in the lee breakwater-five $I$ used for the handling of general cargo, one is leased specially for manganese exports and one is used for shallow draft colliers. Tema HarbourAfrica's largest artificial harbour and mpospective major port of the South Atlantic-was opened in 1962. There are so berths for larger ocean going vessels and the harbour also has the largest dry dock on the West African coast. An oil berth has also been built to serve the Ghaip refinery which has been constructed at Tema.

Finance
The currency of Ghana is the cedi ( $\phi$ ) (of soo pesawas) equivalent to 35 pence sterling.

Guyana

GUYANA, the former colony of British Guiana, which includes the Counties of Demerara, Essequibo and Berbice, is situated on the north-east coast of South America and has a total area of 83,000 square miles with - seaboard of about 270 miles. The population at December 31 , 1970, was estimated at 714,233 . There are about 31,460 Amerindians. The territory is bounded on the south by Brazil, on the east by Surinam, on the west by Venezuela, and on the north and N.E. by the Atlantic. The coastline is very like the Netherlands, below the level of the sea, and intersected with canals constructed by its former Dutch owners. At the junction of the Guyana-Venezuela-Brazil boundaries is Mt. Roraima, a flat topped mountain 9,000 feet above sea-level. There are many beautiful waterfalls in Guyana: on the Potaro River (a tributary of the Essequibo) is the Kaieteur Fall, with a clear drop of 741 feet and a total fall of 822 feet, and on the Essequibo, the Horse Shoe Falls (discovered in 1934); fall, with $\quad$ drop of some 500 feet, discovered in 1934 on the Ipobe River, a tributary of the Kuribrong, has been named the Marina Fall, and other falls were discovered in $193^{8}$ mim the Kamarang River, 80 miles north-east of Mt. Roraima.

The seasons are divided into dry and wet, the two dry seasons lasting from the middle of February to the end of April, and from the middle of August to the end of November. The climate on the coast is pleasant and healthy for the greater part of the year. In the Aug.-Oct. period it is hot. The mean temperature is $80.3^{\circ}$, its extremes during 87 years ranging between $68^{\circ}$ and $96^{\circ}$, but these are very rare, the usual extremes being $70^{\circ}$ and $90^{\circ}$. In the interior the mean temperature is higher- $82.6^{\circ}$, its extremes ranging from $66^{\circ}$ to $103^{\circ}$. The yearly rainfall is subject to marked variation, its mean on the coast lands averaging about go inches with an average of 58 inches on the savannahs. The daily average sunshine is nearly 7 hours and, except when rain is falling, dull and cloudy weather is rarely experienced.

Government,-Guyana became independent on May 26,1966 , with a Governor-General appointed by the Queen. It became - Cooperative Republic on Feb. 23, 1970, and Mr. Arthur Chung was elected first President on March $\mathbf{x} 7,1970$, for a term of six years. The electoral system is a Proportional Representation or "single list " system, each voter casting his vote for a party list of candidates. The Prime Minister and Cabinet are responsible collectively to National Assembly of 53 members elected by secret ballot; the voting age is 21 . Elections to the National Assembly are held every five years; the last election was on July $\times 6$, 1973.

An important feature of the Constitution is its provision for the appointment of an Ombudsman. The life of the Assembly, presided over by a Speaker, who may or may not be Member of the Assembly, is five years.

Capital.- $\Psi$ Georgetown. Estimated population, including environs, 168,000. Other towns are: Linden (population 29,000); $\Psi$ New Amsterdam (population 23,000 ); Corriverton (population 17,000 ).

Judicature

The Supreme Court of Judicature consists of a Court of Appeal and a High Court. There are also Courts of Summary Jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal consists of the Chancellor as President, the Chief Justice and such number of Justices of Appeal as may be prescribed by Parliament. The High Court consists of the Chief Justice, President, and nine Puisne Judges. It is a court with unlimited jurisdiction in civll matters and exercises exclusive jurisdiction in probate, divorce and admiralty, and certain other matters. It also sits as Full Court of the High Court of the Supreme Court of Judicature comprising not less than $=$ Puisne Judges and then its jurisdiction is almost entirely appellate.

Production, etc.-Much of the country is forest. The cultivated portion (about 600,000 acres, of which 107, 182 are under sugar-cane and 316,950 in rice) is largely confined to the narrow coastal alluvial belt. There are extensive deposits of gold, diamonds, bauxite and mica.

Communications.-The Georgetown Automatic Exchange had 11,575 direct extension lines in 1976 , involving $\mathbf{1 8 , 5 8 4}$ telephones. Twenty-five subsidiary exchanges provided in total of 3,772 direct exchange lines with $3,94 \mathrm{I}$ telephone stations. Thirty-nine land-line telegraph stations are maintained at coastal post offices and telegraph stations in the interior, providing communications with the coast. In Georgetown a central radio station, operated by the Guyana Telecommunication Corporation, provides radio-telephone communication with so branch offices, zoz stations operated by other Government departments, and 190 by private concerns. Overseas telephone, telex and telegraph services are provided by Cable and Wireless (W.I.) Itd. in association with the Guyana Telecommunications Corporation. In 1976 there were 51 district post offices at which all classes of postal business were transacted, 159 postal agencies and 43 telegraph stations. There are two broadcasting stations operated on a commercial basis. The Guyana Airways Corporation provides internal and coastal air services. Guyana International Telecoms Corporation provides overseas telephone, telex and telegraph services.
Education.-In September 1976 Government assumed total control of the education system and made education free from nursery to university level. This resulted in the setting up of 358 nursery schools with over 35,000 students which is 70 per cent. of the 3 years 9 months to 5 years 9 months agegroup. Enrolment in the 437 primary schools stands at 147,063 , raising the involvement of the $6-12$ agegroup to 83.7 per cent. In September 1976 there were 79,709 students in secondary schools representing 66.8 per cent. of the $12-17$ age-group. Government trains teachers for primary and secondary schools at its own institutions.

In $\mathbf{x} 974-75, x, 752$ students were enrolled at the University of Guyana in degree programmes and certificate and diploma courses in the Faculties of Arts, Social Science, Natural Science, Technology and Education. The Faculty of Agriculture was established in September 1977.

There are five technical and vocational institutions: Georgetown and New Amsterdam Technical Institutes, Carnegie and Fredericks School of Home Economics and the Guyana Industrial Training Centre. Besides these there are 26 Home Economics and Industries Arts Centres in various parts of the country and many primary and secondary schools have departments attached to them. There are also a number of technical and vocational institutions that are not under the Ministry of Education.
It was estimated that in 1977 the Government would spend $G $ 80,094,987$ on education, of which G $$ 6 \mathrm{M}$ would be spent on capital works.

CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of India came into force on January 26, 1950. The Constitution provides for single and uniform citizenship for the whole of India, with the right of vote for every adult citizen.

EXECUTIVE

The executive of the Indian Union consists of the President, the Vice-President and the Council of Ministers. The President is elected for five years by an electoral college consisting of all elected members of Parliament and of the various State Legislative Assemblies. The Vice-President is also elected for five years by members of the two Houses of Parliament. As head of the State the President exercises his functions with the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers headed by the Prime Minister. The Council is collectively responsible to the House of the People.

LEGISLATURE

The Legislature of the Union is called Parliament. It consists of two Houses known a the Council of States (Rajya Sabha) and the House of the People (Lok Sabha). The Council of States consists of not more than 250 members, of whom 32, having special knowledge or practical experience in literature, science, art or social service, are nominated by the President and the rest are indirectly elected representatives of the State and Union Territories. The Council is not subject to dissolution, one-third of its members retiring every two years. The House of the People at present consists of 524 members. Of these, 506 are directly elected from 21 States and 15 from eight Union Territories. One member is nominated by the President to represent the Union Territory of Arunachal Pradesh and two to represent the AngloIndian community. The House has 1 maximum duration of five years.
Subject to the provisions of the Constitution the Union Parliament can make laws for the whole of India and the State legislatures for their respective units. The distribution of legislative powers is governed by a system of three lists-the Union, the State and the Concurrent-under which all legislative activity has been mapped out. The Union Parliament has exclusive powers to legislate on 97 subjects of all-India importance, such defence, foreign affairs, communications, railways, currency and banking, insurance, customs duties, etc. The State List contains 65 headings, e.g. public order and police, justice, education, public health, local government, agriculture, etc. The Concurrent List contains 48 subjects of common interest to the Union and the States.

OFFICIAL LANGUAGE

The Constitution (Art. 343) provides that the official language of the Union shall be Hindi in the Devanagari script and the form of numerals for official purposes shall be the international form of Indian numerals. English, which was originally to continue as the official language for a period of 55 years from the commencement of the Constitution (January 1950), will, under the Official Language Act, 1963, as amended, continue to be used for all the official purposes for which it was used before Jan. 26,1965 , and also for the transaction of business in Parliament.

THE JUDICATURE

The Supreme Court of India, consisting of a Chief Justice and not more than 13 other judges; is the highest court in respect of constitutional matters. It is also the final Court of Appeal in the country.

DEFENCE

The supreme command of the armed forces is vested in the President. Administrative and operational control resides in the Army, Navy and Air Headquarters under the supervision of the Ministry of Defence.
The Army has five Commands, Southern, Eastern, Northern, Western and Central.
The Indian Navy consists of an aircraft-carrier, two cruisers, a number of frigate squadrons, including some of the latest type of anti-submarine and anti-aircraft frigates, a squadron of anti-submarine patrol vessels, a minesweeping squdron, conventional type submarines, submarine depot ship and fast boats carrying surface-to-surface guided missiles. A Naval aviation wing and $\quad$ hydrographic office have also been set up. India has started building her own naval craft.
The Indian Air Force is organized in five major formations, the Western, Eastern and Central Air Commands, and the Training and Maintenance Commands and an independent Operational Group. Aircraft in use include $\mathrm{SU}=7$, Hunter, Gnat, Mig 25 and $\mathrm{HF}_{24}$; Canberra bomber, helicopter and training planes.

PRODUCTION

About 70 per cent. of the inhabitants of India are dependent on agricultural pursuits. Most of the agricultural holdings are less than 5 acres. Food grains occupy three-fourths of the total cropped area. There are about $176,000,000$ cattle, or about a quarter of the world's cattle population.

COMMUNICATIONS

Civil Aviation.-India occupies imporant place in civil aviation among the nations of the world. All air lines were nationalized in 1953 and two corporations formed, Indian Airlines and Air India.
Four international aerodromes are managed by the International Airports Authority. The other 84 aerodromes are controlled and operated by the Civil Aviation Department of the Government.

Railways.-The railways are grouped into nine administrative zones, Southern, Central, Western, Northern, North-Eastern, North-East Frontier, Eastern, South-Eastern and South-Central.

Gross Traffic Receipts ( 9744 -75), crores of rupees 1408.19. Working expenses, 1317.29 . Net tallway revenues, $73 \cdot 64$.
$\Psi$ Ports.-The chief seaports are Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Mormugao, Cochin, Visakhapatnam, Kandla, Paradip, Mangalore and Tuticorin. There are 167 intermediate and minor ports with varying capacity.

Shipping.-On Dec. $3^{1}$, 1975, 471 ships totalling $38 \cdot 69$ lakh gross tons were the Indian Register.

Postal.-On March 3x, 1975, there were 117,223 post offices, and $x, 744,088$ telephones.

Jamaica

Jamaica is situated in the Caribbean Sea sou th of the eastern extremity of Cuba and lies between latitudes $17^{\circ} 43^{\prime}$ and $18^{\circ} 3 z^{\prime}$ North, and longitude $76^{\circ} 1 x^{\prime}$ and $78^{\circ} 21^{\prime}$ West. The island was discovered by Columbus 17. May 4, 1494, and occupied by the Spanish from 1509 until. 1655 when a British expedition, sent out by Oliver Cromwell, under Admiral Penn and General Venables, attacked the island, which capitulated after trifing resistance. In 1670 it was formally ceded to England by the Treaty of Madrid. Jamaica became 1 independent state within the British Commonwealth on August 6, 1962.

Area and Population.-Jamaica is $4,4 \times \mathrm{I}$ square miles in area and is divided into three counties (Surrey, Middlesex and Cornwall) and 14 parishes. The surface of the island is extremely mountainous, the highest peak being $7,402 \mathrm{ft}$. above level. The greatest length from east to west (Morant Point to Negril Point) is 146 miles and the extreme breadth 5 I miles. At Dec. 3x, 1975 Jamaica's population was estimated to be 2,060,300. Jamaica for climatic and other reasons is a popular tourist resort, attracting visitors mainly from the U.S.A. The total number of visitor arrivals in r975 was 553,258 . Tourist expenditure in 1975 was estimated at J\$ $\$ 16.8$ millions.
Physical Features.-The topography consists mainly of coastal plains, divided by the Blue Mountain Range in the east, and the hills and limestone plateaux which occupy the central and western areas of the interior. The central chain of high peaks of the Blue Mountains is over 6,000 feet above level, and the Blue Mountain Peak, the highest of these, reaches an elevation of 7,402 feet. The rivers flow down from the central mountainous area. Most of the rivers are narrow and fast flowing, and some have rapids. In general those flowing south are longer and are fed by more tributaries than those flowing north. None is navigable except the Black River, and that only for small craft.
Capral.-The seat of government is Kingston, the largest town and seaport (estimated population of the Corporate area of Kingston and St. Andrew in 1975, 572,653). Other towns are Montego Bay ( 42,800 ) and Spanish Town ( 41,600 ).
FLAG.-Gold diagonal cross forming triangles of green at top and bottom, triangles of black at hoist and in fiy. National Day.-First Monday in August (Independence Day).

COMMUNICATIONS

There are several excellent harbours, Kingston being the principal port. The island is intersected by 2,700 miles of main road, of which 1,350 are asphalted. There are 229 miles of railway open. Telegraph stations and post offices are established in every town and in very many villages.
There are two international airports capable of handling the largest civil jet aircraft, the Norman Manley Airport on the south coast serving Kingston, and the Donald Sangster Airport on the north coast serving the major tourist areas. In addition there are licensed aerodromes at Port Antonio, Ocho Rios, Tinson Pen and Mandeville, which are used by Trans Jamaica Airlines on scheduled domestic flights. There are seven privately owned airstrips.

Air Jamaica, the national airline formed by the Government of Jamaica in association with Air Canada, operates scheduled services between the U.K., Canada, U.S.A., Nassau, Europe and Jamaica. Twelve other international carriers provide air communication with Europe, North, Central and South America and the Caribbean islands. They are: British Airways, British West Indian Airways, Air Canada, Pan American World Airways, A.L.M. Antillean, Cubana, Delta Lufthansa, Cayman Airways, Mexicana Airlines, Eastern Airlines and TACA International Airlines.

Scheduled internal routes are operated by TransJamaica Airlines. Their are also six non-scheduled air services catering for various services and activities.

PRODUCTION

Most of the staple products of tropical climates are grown. Sugar and rum are manufactured and exported (the latter is still counted the best in the world), and fine quality coffee is grown in certain areas of the Blue Mountains. Sugar production in 1976 amounted to 363,000 tons. There is trade in fruits, chiefly bananas, with U.K. Citrus, cocoa, coffee, pimento and ginger ITs also export crops, although production has declined. Jamaica has developed a breed of dairy cattle known as Jamaica Hope and a beef breed, the Jamaica Black. Jamaica is the second largest producer of bauxite II In world; output for 1976 was 10, 145,756 tons. The bauxite deposits are worked by Canadian and five U.S. companies; the Canadian company and a consortium of Ghe U.S. companies process bauxite into alumina. The Government has entered into partnership with three of the U.S. companies and has acquired majority shareholding in the operations. Gypsum is 1. mined, production in 1976 being 279,000 tons. Cement is manufactured locally, the output of the factory being 359,411 tons in 1976. The Esso Oil Refinery is able to process 36,000 barrels of crude thit daily. The Jamaica Industrial Development Corporation is responsbile for implementing the Government's industrial development programme. This Corporation administers incentive legislation which was enacted to stimulate establishment of industries locally. In addition to undertaking promotional activities both locally and abroad, the Corporation all liw offices in the United States and the United Kingdom. In the last decade, manufacturing has grown from the processing of few agricultural products into the production of whole range of commodities dependent on both local and foreign raw materials.

Kenya

Kenya is bisected by the equator and extends approximately from latitude $4^{\circ} \mathrm{N}$. to latitude $4^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. and from longitude $34^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. to $4 \mathrm{I}^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. From the coast of the Indian Ocean in the east, the borders of Kenya are with Somalia in the east and Ethiopia and Sudan in the north and north-west. To the west lie Uganda and Lake Victoria. On the south is Tanzania. The total area is 224,960 square miles (including 5,224 square miles of water). The population is estimated to be $12,934,000$ and to be increasing by 3.5 per cent. annually. The country is divided into 7 Provinces (Nyanza, Rift Valley, Central, Coast, Western, Eastern and NorthEastern).
CAPITAL.-Nairobi, situated at latitude $z^{\circ}$ S. and longitude $36^{\circ} 49^{\prime}$ E. at 5,453 feet above sea level, covers an area of a00 sq. miles win has a population of about 509,000 . It is 307 miles by road from Mombasa, the country's main port. $\Psi$ Mombasa ( 246,000 ) possesses what is perhaps the finest harbour on the East Coast of Africa and lil well served by shipping lines from Europe and Asia besides a frequent coastal service. Other centres mil Nakuru ( 47,800 ), Kisumu ( 30,700 ), Eldoret ( 16,900 ), Thika ( 18,100 ) and Nanyuki ( 15,200 ).

Krinya high Commission in London 45 Portland Place, W.x. [01-636 237x]

High Commissioner. His Excellency Ng'ethe Njoroge ( $\mathbf{x 9 7 0 \text { ). }}$

Brttish High Commission
Bruce House, Standard Street, P.O. Box 30465 Nairobi
High Commissioner, His Excellency Stanley James Gunn Fingland, C.M.G. (1975).
British Council Representative, Dr. J. Barrott, P.O. Box 40751, Kenya Cultural Centre, Harry Thaku Road, Nairobi. There are offices at Kisumu and Mombasa.
Production.-Agriculture provides about 35 per cent. of the national income. The great variation in altitude and ecology provide conditions under which a wide range of crops $n$ be grown. These include wheat, barley, pyrethrum, coffee, tea, sisal, coconuts, cashew nuts, cotton, maize and a wide variety of tropical 4 mif temperate fruits and vegetables. The total of high potential land on which concentrated alternate husbandry can be practised amounts to only $\mathbf{1 6 , 7 6 \Sigma}$ sq. miles or $1 \mathrm{x} \cdot 9$ per cent. of the total land area. The remainder is arid or semi-arid country suitable for stock raising. In the areas of high potential, most of the old, large scale farms, formerly farmed by Europeans, have been bought by the Government for settlement of landless people and for transfer to African largescale farmers.

Prospecting and mining are carried $m$ II in many parts of the country, the principal minerals produced being soda ash, salt and limestone. Major deposits of fluorite and galena are now being exploited. Small amounts of gold are also mined.

Hydro-electric power has been developed, particularly on the Upper Tana River. Owen Falls Dam scheme in Uganda is connected to the Kenyan system, and supplies about 30 per cent. of consumption. Work is in progress on the second stage of the $6,37,000,000$ Seven Forks Project which is expected to provide 300 MW .- completion in the early x 98 os .
There has been considerable industrial development over the last 15 years and Kenya has a wide variety of industries processing agricultural produce and manufacturing an increasing range of products from local and imported raw materials. New industries have recently come into being such - steel, textile mills, dehydrated vegetable processing and motor tyre manufacture as well many smailer schemes which have added to the country's already considerable consumer goods. There is an oil refinery in Mombasa supplying both Kenya and Uganda, and in fuel pipeline to Nairobi is expected to open shortly. The market served comprises all the East African territories and the volume of exports to adjoining African and Indian Ocean countries is increasing year by year. Industrial areas have been developed in all the principal towns and light industrial estates are being developed for African entrepreneurs. The Kenya Government is actively encouraging investment in the industrial sector and has $\quad$ Foreign Investments Protection Act to protect such investments.
The main imports are manufactured goods, classified chiefly $=$ materials, machinery and transport equipment, mineral fuels, lubricants and related fuels and chemicals.

Communications.-The East African Railways and Harbours are self-contained and self-financing services of the East African Community; the railway, which is metre gauge, has a total route mileage of open line of 3,670 miles ( $\mathbf{1}, 270$ miles in Kenya). In addition the East African Railways operate a marine service on Lakes Victoria and Tanganyika, with route mileage of 3,469 miles. There are also 2,367 miles of road services providing regular transport to the Southern Highlands of Tanzania, and beyond the railhead at Pakwach in Uganda. East African Harbours control the four seaports of Mombasa, Tanga, Dar-es-Salaam amd Mtwara. Mombasa, Dar-es-Salaam and Mtwara have deep-water berths and Tanga is $\quad$ lighterage port.

Scheduled trunk airline services are operated to and from Kenya, through Nairobi airport, by East African Airways, British Airways, Air India, Air France, Scandinavian Airlines System, Alitalia, Pan Am, K.L.M., Ethiopian Airlines, El A1 Israel Airlines, Pakistan International Airlines, Lufthansa German Airlines, Sabena, Swissair, Olympic Airways, T.W.A. and Egyptair, while regional scheduled servies are also run by East African Airways, Ethiopian Airlines, Air Zaire, Air Malawi, Zambia Airways, Sudan Airways and Air Madagascar.

The country has approximately 26,000 miles of road including 3,850 miles of trunk roads and 6,200 miles of secondary roads. There is $\quad$ total of $2,3 \times 8$ miles of bitumen-surfaced roads, apart from town streets, etc.

Finance

Trade.-A large part of Kenya's trade is with the United Kingdom. The principal exports are coffee, tea, petroleum products, maize, meat products, pyrethrum flowers, powder and extract, and hides and skins.

Trade with U.K.

The mountainous areas I linked by $1,200 \mathrm{~km}$ network of access tracks which am normally only suitable for fourwheel drive vehicles. Gravel roads link border towns in South Africa with the main towns in Lesotho. There is also an extensive network of about 900 km of gravel roads serving the lowlands and foothill areas, with about $\mathrm{r}, 000 \mathrm{~km}$ of bridle paths in the mountains. Maseru is connected by rall with the main Bloemfontein-Durban line of the South African Railways. Scheduled international services are operated three times a week between Maseru and Johannesburg. There are $3^{2}$ airstrips. Internal scheduled services are operated by the Lesotho Airways Corporation. The telephone network is fully automated in all urban centres. Subscribers dial direct to telephone exchanges in South Africa. Similar facilities exist for telex subscribers, who can also dial direct to $=$ number of overseas countries. Radio telephone communication is used extensively in the remote rural areas.

Agricultural Production.-The economy of Lesotho is mainly agrarian. At the last enumeration livestock numbers were: cattle 465,500 , sheep $x, 556,900$, goats 961,900 , horses 144,000, poultry 578,800 , $4,764,158 \mathrm{~kg}$. of wool valued at $R_{3,451,776}$ and $678,003 \mathrm{~kg}$. of mohair valued at $R x, 589,162$ were exported in 1974. Five large scale integrated agricultural development projects amounting to $R 25,330,000$ are being implemented for increasing agricultural production, with emphasis on cash crops and livestock.

High Commissioner, His Excellency V. T. Likaku (1977).

Brtish High Commission

Lingadzi Building (P.O. Box 30042), Lilongwe High Commissioner, Hís Excellency Kenneth Gordon Ritchie, C.M.G.
Deputy High Commissioner, W. Jones.
British Council Representative, (vacant), P.O. Box 456, Glyn Jones Road, Blantyre. There is also an office at Lilongwe.
Education.-Primary education is the responsibility of local authorities in both urban and rural areas. About 35 per cent. of the population of school age can be taken into schools and only ro per cent. of those successfully completing primary education be placed in secondary schools. The Ministry is responsible for policy, school curricula, secondary education teachers' and technical training. Religious bodies, with Government assistance, still play an important part in primary and secondary education and teacher training. Further training is pursued at the University of Malawi, opened in September 1965. For the academic year $1975 / 76$ there were 1,148 students studying for degrees and diplomas at the three constituent colleges.

Communications.-A single-track railway runs from the south-western area of Lake Malawi (itself served by two passenger and number of cargo boats) through Blantyre to the southern frontier into Mozambique, crossing the Zambesi River by a bridge 12,050 feet long, and connecting with the Mozambique port of Beira, which handles the bulk of the country's imports and exports. In 1970 a 70 -mile line was opened from Liwonde to Nayuci, linking the Malawi rail system with the Mozambique network to the port of Nacala. Construction of $\quad$ new railway line from Salima to Lilongwe is in progress and was expected to be completed in 1977. Plans are underway and funds are available for another line from Lilongwe to Mchinji. A road system of 6,823 miles covers the whole country, of which 977 miles are bituminized from Mulanje through Blantyre and Zomba to Lilongwe, the new capital, and from there to the lakeshore at Salima, the northern terminus of the railway. Plans are underway for a bituminized road from Blantyre to the Mozambique border and onwards to Tete and Salisbury, Rhodesia.

(excluding Development Account) $\star$ Provisional
Decimal currency was introduced on Feb. 15, 197x. The unit is the kwach (=approx. 5op. sterling), divided into 100 tambala.

Agriculture is the country's mainstay, the principal exports being tea, tobacco, cotton, sugar and groundnuts. The value of major agricultural exports in 1976 was: tea, $\mathrm{K}_{2} 6,599,000$; tobacco, K65,234,000; groundnuts, KII, 254,000; cotton, $\mathrm{K}_{2,324,000}$; sugar, $\mathrm{K}_{7,353,000}$; beans and peas, $\mathrm{Kx}, 6$ x, 000; rice, $\mathrm{Kx}_{\mathrm{r}}, 587,000$. Other agricultural exports include tung oil, sisal, casava, coffee and vegetables. Imports are mainly clothing materials, vehicles, fuels and machinery.

Malaysia

Malaysia, comprising Malaya, Sabah and Sarawak, forms $\quad$ crescent well over $x, 000$ miles long between latitudes $\mathbf{r}^{\circ}$ and $7^{\circ}$ North latitude and longitudes $100^{\circ}$ and $119^{\circ}$ East. It occupies two distinct regions-the Malay Peninsula which extends from the Isthmus of Kra to the Singapore Strait and the North-West Coastal of the Island of Borneo. Each is separated from the other by 400 miles of the South China Sea.
Area and Population.-The total area of the 13 states of Malaysia, including the Federal Territory of Kuala Lumpur ( 94 sq. miles) is estimated to be $\mathbf{1 3 0 , 0 0 0} \mathrm{sq}$. miles, containing a population of ro,434,034 a the Census of Housing and Population of Malaysia held in 1970. Details of individual states appear on p. 201.

Climate. -The whole region is open to maritime influences and is subject to the interplay of wind systems which originate in the Indian Ocean and the South China Sea. The year is commonly divided into the Southwest and Northeast monsoon seasons. Rainfall averages about yoo inches throughout the year, though the annual fall varies from place to place. The average daily temperature throughout Malaysia varies from $70^{\circ}$ Fahrenheit to $90^{\circ}$ Fahrenheit, though in higher areas temperatures are lower and vary widely.
CapITAL.-Kuala Lumpur was proclaimed Federal Territory on February 3, 1974. Its population is about 770,000 . The chief town of Sarawak is $\Psi$ Kuching, and of Sabah is $\Psi$ Kota Kinabalu.
Bahasa Malaysia (Malay) is the national language. In Sarawak English will continue - official language as well - Bahasa Malaysia until 1979, when the Sarawak State Council will review the position.
Religion.-Islam is the official religion of Malaysia, each Ruler being the head of religion in his State, though the Heads of State of Sabah and Sarawak are not heads of the Muslim religion in their States. The Yang di-Pertuan Agung is the head of religion in Malacca and Penang. The Constitution guarantees religious freedom. National Day.-August 3 I (Hari Kebangsaan).

FLAG.-Equal horizontal stripes of red ( 7 ) and white ( 7 ); 14 point yellow star and crescent in blue canton.

GOVERNMENT

The Federation of Malaya became an independent country within the Commonwealth on Augusl 3x, 1957, as a result of III agreement between H.M. the Queen and the Rulers of the Malay States, whereby Her Majesty relinquished all powers and jurisdiction over the Malay States and over the Settlements of Penang and Malacca which then became States of the Federation. On Sept. 16,1963 , the Federation was enlarged, by the accession of the further states of Singapore, Sabah (formerly British North Borneo) and Sarawak, and the Hullu of MALAYSM was adopted from that date. On Aug. 9, x965, Singapore seceded from this Federation.

The Constitution was designed to ensure the existence of a strong Federal Government and also a mil anm of autonomy for the State Governments. It provides for I constitutional Supreme Head of the Federation (His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agung) to be elected for a term of five years by the Rulers from among their number, and for $■$ Deputy Supreme Head (His Royal Highness the Timbalan Yang di-Pertuan Agung) to be similarly elected. The Malay Rulers are either chosen or succeed to their position in accordance with the custom of the particular state. In other states of Malaysia choice of the Head of State is in the discretion of the Yang di-Pertudn Agung after consultation with the Chief Minister of the State. Save in certain instances provided in the Constitution, the Supreme Head acts in accordance with the advice of a Cabinet appointed by him from among the members of Parliament on the advice of the Prime Minister. The Supreme Head appoints as Prime Minister the person who in his judgement is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the House of Representatives. He also has the powers to promulgate emergency ordinances. The National Operations Council was dissolved on February 19, 1971, and the Yang diPertuan Agung promulgated the reconvening of Parliamentary democracy the following day.

LEGISLATURE

The Federal Parliament consists of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Senate (Dewan Negara) consists of 58 members, under a President (Yang di-Pertua Dewan Negara), 26 elected by the Legislative Assemblies of the States ( 2 from each) and 32 appointed by the Yang diPertuan Agung from persons who have achieved distinction in major fields of activity or are representative of racial minorities, including the Aborigines. The House of Representatives (Dewan Rakyat), consists of 154 members (Peninsular Malaysia, 114; Sarawak, 24; and Sabah, 16). Members are elected on the principle of universal adult suffrage with a common electoral roll. The House of Representatives is presided over by a Speaker who is either a member of the House or is qualified to be elected as a member. Speaker, Tan Sri Datuk Nik Ahmed bin Kamil.

The Constitution provides that each State shall have its own Constitution not inconsistent with the Federal Constitution, with the Ruler or Governor acting on the advice of Executive Council appointed on the advice of the Menteri Besar or Chief Minister and a single chamber Legislative Assembly. Three ex officio members sit in the Executive Council besides these elected members. They are the State Secretary, the State Legal Adviser and the State Financial Officer. The State Constitutions provide for the Ruler or Governor to appoint as Menteri Besar or Chief Minister, to preside over the Executive Council, a member of the Legislative Assembly who in his judgement is likely to command the confidence of the majority of the members of the Assembly. The Legislative Assemblies are fully elected on the same basis as the Federal Parliament.

Legislative powers are divided into a Federal List, - State List and a Concurrent List, with residual powers vested in the State Legislatures. The Federal List comprises broadly, external affairs, defence, civil and criminal law and justice, the machinery of government, finance, commerce and industry, communications and transport, power, education, medicine and labour and social security.

The State List includes land, agriculture and forestry, local government and services and the machinery of state government. In the Concurrent List are, inter alia, social welfare, wild-life, animal husbandry, town and country planning, public health and drainage and irrigation.

A State of Emergency was declared after disturbances on May 13, 5969. As Parliament was not then sitting, the Yang di-Pertuan Agung did not summon Parliament and instead established the National Operations Council and Y.A.B. Tun Abdul Razak bin Dato Hussein, the then Deputy Prime Minister, was appointed Director of Operations vested with the executive authority of the Federation including the powers to make essential regulations. The Yang di-Pertuan Agung remained as the Supreme Head of Federation with powers to promulgate emergency ordinances.

JUDICATURE

The Judicial System consists of $\quad$ Federal Court and two High Courts, one in Peninsular Malaysia and one for Sabah and Sarawak (sitting alternately in Kota Kinabalu and Kuehing). The High Court in Peninsular Malaysia known Malaya has its principal registry in Kuala Lumpur while the High Court in Sabah/Sarawak known - the High Court in Borneo has its principal registry in Kuching.

The Federal Court comprises a President, the two Chief Justices of the High Courts and other judges.

This court possesses appellate, original and advisory jurisdiction. In its capacity ${ }^{-}$an appellate court it has exclusive jurisdiction to determine appeals from the decisions of $\quad$ High Court or of judge thereof (except decisions of High Court given by a registrar or other officer of the court and appealable under federal law to a judge of the Court). This appellate jurisdiction is subject to limitations imposed by or under federal law. It also has jurisdiction to determine disputes between the Federation and any of the States within the Federation, any challenge to the competence of the Federal or any State legislature to enact particular law and any question as to the effect of any of the provisions of the Constitution which question has arisen in proceedings before another court. It also renders advisory opinions on questions referred to it by the Yang di-Pertuan Agung as regards the effect of any provisions of the Constitution which has arisen or is likely to arise.

Each of the High Courts consists of Chief Justice and not less than 4 other judges. The Federal Constitution allows for maximum of twelve such judges for Malaya and eight for Borneo. In Peninsular Malaysia the Subordinate Courts consist of the Sessions Courts and the Magistrates' Courts. In Sabah/Sarawak the Magistrates' Courts constitute the Subordinate Courts.

DEFENCE
The Malaysian Armed Forces consist of the Army, Navy and Air Force, together with volunteer forces for each arm. The defence of the country is largely borne by the army in its role of providing defence against external threat and coun-ter-insurgency operations and also to assist the police in the performance of public order duties. The Royal Malaysian Navy ( $R M N$ ) has the responsibility of defending the 3,000 miles of the country's coastline and maintaining constant patrol of 500 miles of the high seas that separate Sabah and Sarawak from the mainland. The Royal Malaysian Air Force ( $R M A F$ ) is capable of providing close strategic and tactical support to the army and police in the defence and internal security of the country.

PRODUCTION AND TRADE
The agricultural sector continues to be the mainstay of the Malaysian economy. However diversification of crops and rapid growth in the manufacturing sector has made Malaysia less vulnerable to fluctuations in the price of its primary crop, natural rubber.

Malaysia is the largest exporter of natural rubber, tin, palm oil and tropical hardwoods. Other major export commodities are manufactured and processed products, petroleum, oil, and other minerals, palm kernel oil, tea and pepper.

Exports of the four major primary commodities: rubber, tin. palm oil and tropical hardwoods accounted for 57.8 per cent. of the total exports in 1976 (preliminary figures). With the rapid expansion in the manufacturing sector, Malaysia is also increasing her export of manufactured products.

Another commodity which is produced throughout Malaysia is rice, the staple food of Malaysians. Total output of padiin the $1974-75$ season amounted to $x, 099,000$ tons. The level of self-sufficiency of rice has increased to 90 per cent. in Peninsular Malaysia. To achieve self-sufficiency, various measures aimed at increasing output and productivity are being introduced. They include wider of improved seeds and fertilizers, expansion of double-cropping through the provisions of largescale irrigation schemes and research programmes to improve rice yields.

Imports in 1973 consisted mainly of machinery and transport equipment, manufactured goods, food, mineral fuels, chemicals and inedible crude materials for her growing population and to accelerate the pace of her economic growth and development. Malaysia's Trade by Countries ($Mooo,000)

Malta

Malta lies in the Mediterranean Sea, 58 miles from Sicily and about 380 from the African coast, about 17 miles in length and 9 in breadth, and having an area of 94.9 square miles. Malta includes also the adjoining island of Gozo (area $25 \cdot 9$ sq. miles); Comino and minor islets. The estimated population on Dec. 3r, 1973, was $3^{18,48 \text { (including temporary visitors). Malta's climate, although not tropical, is hot in }}$ summer.
Malta was in turn held by the Phœenicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans and Arabs. In rogo it was conquered by Count Roger of Normandy. In 5530 it was handed over to the Knights of St. John, who made of it a stronghold of Christianity. In 1565 it sustained the famous siege, when the last great effort of the Turks was successfully withstood by Grandmaster La Vallette. The Knights expended large sums in fortifying the island and carrying out many magnificent works, until they were expelled by Napoleon in 1798 . The Maltese rose against the French garrison soon afterwards, and the island was subsequently blockaded by the British fleet. The Maltese people freely requested the protection of the British Crown in 1802 on condition that their rights and privileges would be preserved and respected. The islands were finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814.

Malta was again closely besieged in the last war and again withstood the attacks of all its enemies. From June, 1940 , to the end of the war, 432 members of the garrison and $x, 540$ civilians were killed by enemy aircraft, and about 35,000 houses were destroyed or damaged. In recognition of the part played by the Maltese people, King George VI awarded the George Cross to the island, but this honour is no longer used.

Government.- On Sept. 21, 1964, under the Malta Independence Order, 1964, Malta became an independent state within the Commonwealth; on December 13, 1974, Malta became $I$ republic within the Commonwealth. In the 1976 general election the Malta Labour Party was returned to office. State of the parties; Malta Labour Party, 34 seats; Nationalist Party, $3^{1}$ seats. Maltese and English are the official languages of administration and Maltese is ordinarily the official language in all the courts of law and the language of general use in the islands.

Capital.- $\Psi$ Valletta. Population (estimated, Dec., 1973), 34,152. Valletta Grand Harbour is one of the finest in the world; it is very deep, and large vessels can anchor alongside the shore. It is an important port of call and ship repairing centre for vessels, being half-way between Gibraltar and Port Said.

Flag.-Equal vertical stripes of white (next staff), and red; a silver George Cross outlined in red in top corner of white stripe.
President, His Excellency Dr A. Buttigeig.

British Council Representative, H. R. H. Salmon, Piazza Indipendenza, Valletta.
Education.-In October 1975 there were 104 Government Primary Schools with 22,68r pupils and 37 Secondary and Upper Secondary Schools with 22,769 pupils. Third level education is available at the Royal University of Malta ( 844 students in October 1975) and the Malta College of Arts, Science and Technology ( $x, 284$ students in October 1975). The Government also runs Trade Schools, Nautical School, a Training Centre in Industrial Electronics, - School of Art, School of Music, and a School of Nursing. A number of private schools offer more or less the same facilitics that exist in Government Primary and Secondary (including sixth form) Schools. These are fee-paying and entry at Secondary level is selective.

In religion, the Maltese are Roman Catholics. The Maltese language is of Semitic origin and held by some to be derived from the Carthaginian and Phoenician tongues.

Production.-The total labour force in 1976 was 355,3II of which $1 \times 0,4 \times 3$ were gainfully employed.
Agriculture plays $\quad$ significant role in the economy. There are 6,500 full time farmers and about 8,000 part time farmers. The yearly crop production is about 60,500 metric tons consisting mainly of potatoes, tomatoes, onions, cabbages and cauliflowers. Some 8,000 tons of fruit are produced. Grape is the largest fruit crop.

Industry.- The island's leading industry is the state-owned Malta Drydocks, employing about 4,500 people. Local manufactures include textiles, footwear, furniture, detergents, plastics, rubber products, electronic equipment and components, glass products and carpets. The private sector employs some 75,000 .

Tourism.-In 1976, 339.537 tourists visited the island. Income from this industry stood at CMre. 6 million.

Finance and Trade

The Central Bank of Malta has the sole right of issuing legal tender currency notes and coins. The Maltese pound is divided into xoo cents and $x, 000$ milss. On I June 1977 the rate of exchange was £ $\operatorname{stg} \mathrm{x}=\mathrm{£MO} \cdot 723$.

Trade.-The principal imports for home consumption are foodstuffs-mainly wheat, meat and bullocks, milk and fruit-fodder, beverages and tobacco, fuels, chemicals, textiles and machinery (industrial, agricultural and transport). The chief domestic exports are potatoes, tomatoes, onions, smoking requisites, textile fabrics, rubber goods, gloves, hosiery, beer, mineral waters, edible oil, fresh flowers, fibres and yarns, rubber seals, flower cuttings, plastic goods, wine, mattresses, knitwear, stainless steel sinks, electronic equipment and components, carpets, etc.

Mauritius

Mauritius is an island group lying in the Indian Ocean, 550 miles east of Madagascar, between $57^{\circ} 17^{\prime}-$ $57^{\circ} 461 \mathrm{E}$. long. and lat. $10^{\circ} 581-20^{\circ} 33^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$., and comprising with its dependencies an area of 805 square miles. The estimated resident population in mid-1976 was: Mauritius, 867,885 ; Rodrigues, 26,539 ; Lesser Dependencies about 350, made up of Europeans (mainly of French extraction), Asiatic races and persons of mixed descent.

Mauritius was discovered in 1513 by the Portuguese; the Dutch visited it in 3598 , and named it Mauritius, i. honour of the Stadtholder, Prince Maurice of Nassaus. From 1638 to 1710 it was held as a small Dutch colony and in 1715 the French took possession but did not settle it until 1721. Mauritius was taken by a British Force in 18 ro. A British garrison remained on the island until its withdrawal in June 1960 . The French language and French law have been preserved under British rule. English is the official language but French is in common use.

Climate.-Mauritius enjoys a sub-tropical maritime climate, with sufficient difference between summer and winter to avoid monotony; further variation is introduced by the wide range of rainfall and temperature resulting from the mountainous nature of the island. Humidity is rather high throughout the year and rainfall is sufficient to maintain a green cover of vegetation, except for $\begin{gathered}\text { brief period in the driest districts. }\end{gathered}$

CapITAL.- $\Psi$ Port Louis, population ( $x 976$ ), 139,400 ; other centres are Beau Bassin and Rose Hill ( 83,000 ): Curepipe ( 54,000 ); Vacoas and Phoenix ( 50,000 ) and Quatre Bornes ( 53,000 ) (all figures provisional). Flag.Red, blue, yellow and green horizontal stripes.

Government.-A Crown Colony for 158 years, Mauritius became an independent state within the Commonwealth on March 12, 1968. The Constitution defined by Order in Council in 1964 was slightly altered in 1966 on the recommendation of the Banwell Commission, the effect being to increase the membership of the Legislative Assembly to 70,62 elected by block voting in multi-member constituencies (including a members for Rodrigues) and 1 specially-elected members. Of the latter, 4 seats go to the "best loser" of whichever communities in the island are under-represented in the Assembly after the General Election and the four remaining seats are allocated on the basis of both party and community. The Constitution provides for the appointment of a Governor-General who acts on the advice of the Council of Ministers, collectively responsible to the Legislative Assembly. The present state of the parties in the Assembly is: Government; Labour, 28; P.M.S.D. (Parti Mauricien Social Democrate), 8; Opposition, M.M.M. (Mowvement Militant Mauricien), 34 (One M.M.M. Education.-At the primary level education is free and is provided for $\mathbf{1 4 5 , 5 2 4}$ children at 184 government primary schools and 50 aided primary schools. Although education is not compulsory it is estimated that about 90 per cent. of children of primary school age attend school. There are 7 government secondary schools-and also 120 private secondary schools, fees being paid by the Government for 94 . Total enrolment in secondary schools (1976) is 64,953. In addition there are 4 junior technical schools which provide education in practical subjects, 5 rural craft training centres (small scale industries) and I industrial trade training centre. There is teacher training college for the training of primary school teachers. An institute of education has been set up for the purpose of training secondary school teachers and engaging in curriculum and examination reform. The University of Mauritius consists of a School of Administration, a School of Agriculture and $=$ School of Industrial Technology. There are 1,321 students (1976). Estimated expenditure on education in 1975-76 was: recurrent Rs. $225,072,000$; capital Rs. $46,169,160$.
Communications.-Port Louis, on the N.W. coast, has an excellent harbour which handles the bulk of the island's external trade. Goods unloaded in 1975 amounted to 798,000 metric tons and goods loaded to 635,000 metric tons. The international airport is located at Plaisance in the southeast of the island about 2 miles from Mahébourg. Freight unloaded there during 1975 totalled 2,000 metric tons and freight loaded totalled 2,005 metric tons. Scheduled services are operated by Air France, Air India, Air Malawi, Air Mauritius, British Airways, Kenya Airways, Lufthansa, Qantas, South African Airways, Zambia Airways, Air Malagasy and Alitalia. There are 26 telephone exchanges serving 25,500 individual telephone installations on the islands. There are 13 daily newspapers published, mostly in French with occasional articles in English, and 3 Chinese daily papers. The Mauritian Broadcasting Corporation has a monopoly of radio broadcasting in the country. Television was introduced in February 1965, educational television in 1969, and colour television in 1975.
Production.-In 1975, sugar cane was cultivated over an area of 213,500 acres compared with 13,700 acres under tea, 1,450 acres under tobacco and about 3,560 acres devoted to vegetables and other crops. The sugar crop in 1976 was 690,000 long tons.
Finance.-The main sources of Government revenue are private and company income tax, customs and excise duties, mainly on imports, but also on sugar exports.

Nigeria

(For MAP, see Index).
Area and Population.-The Republic of Nigeria is situated on the the west coast of Africa. It is bounded on the south by the Gulf of Guinea, on the west by the Republic of Benin, on the north by Niger and on the east by Cameroun. It has area of $356,669 \mathrm{sq}$. miles with a population ( x 963 Census) of $55,654,000$. (The 1973 census provisional results give $79,760,000$ ). The population ilmost entirely African.

A beit of mangrove swamp forest $30-60$ miles in width lies along the entire coastline. North of this there is $\quad 50-100$ miles wide of tropical rain forest and oil-palms. North of this the country rises and the vegetation changes to open woodland and savannah. In the extreme north the country is semidesert. There are few mountains, but in Northern Nigeria the central plateau rises to average level of 4,000 feet. The Niger, Benue, and Cross are the main rivers.

The climate varies with the types of country described above, but Nigeria lies entirely within the tropics and temperatures are high. Temperatures of over $100^{\circ}$ in the north are common while coast temperatures are seldom over $90^{\circ}$. The humidity at the coast, however, is much higher than in the north. The rainy season is from about April to October; rainfall varies from under 25 inches - year in the extreme north to $\mathrm{x}_{\mathrm{z}}$ inches on the coast line. During the dry season the harmattan wind blows from the desert; it is cool and laden with fine particles of dust.

CAPITAL. $-\Psi$ LAGOS, estimated population, $x, 000,000$. Other important towns are Ibadan, Kano, Ogbomosho, Qyo, Oshogbo, Onitsha, Ife, Abeokuta, Enugu, Aba, Maiduguri, Katsina, $\Psi$ Port Harcourt, Sokoto, Zaria, Calabar, Benin, Jos and Ilorin. Flag.-Three equal vertical bands, green, white and green. NATIONAL DAY.-October I (Republic Day).

GOVERNMENT

Following the military take-over of January $\mathbf{3 6}$, 9966, the Federal and Regional Constitutions were suspended, in relation to the offices of President, Prime Minister, Regional Governors and Regional Premiers, and Parliament and the Regional Legislatures were dissolved. The country was divided into 12 new States by decree in May, 1976, and this number was increased to 19 in January 1976. A Federal Military Government, made up of Supreme Military Council, Council of State composed of the State Military Governors, and a Federal Executive Council (the latter with some civilian members) perform the functions of the former Federal Government and Council of Ministers. A Military Governor administers each of the x9 States. Head of State, Lieut.-Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo.

British Council Representative in Nigeria, O. D. Elliott, Western House, 8-ıo Broad Street, Lagos. Branch offices at Ibadan, Kano, Kaduna and Enugu.
Education. -There are six Universities, situated in Lagos, Ife, Zaria, Benin, Nsukka (with campuses at Nsukka, Calabar and Enugu) and Ibadan (with campuses at Ibadan and Jos). Four more universities are planned.

Railways.-The Nigerian railway system, which is controlled by the Nigerian Railway Corporation, is the most extensive in West Africa. There 2,680 route miles of lines.

Civil Aviation.-Trunk route services operated by Nigerian and the principal international airlines bring Nigeria within less than 12 hours of the Western European capitals and South Africa. There are also services to other parts of Africa and to the United States. A network of internal air services connects the main centres. Comprehensive radio navigational aids installed at Kano and Lagos airports, and basic radio navigational facilities are provided at the twelve other aerodromes in regular use. Several fiving strips are also in use by light aircraft. There is a network of meteorological reporting stations.

Production and Industry. - Nigeria has $n$ traditional but increasingly mixed economy: farming, forestry, and fishing activities contribute just under forty per cent. of the country's gross domestic product but manufacturing industry and, in particular, petroleum are gaining in importance. The export structure is diversified. Mineral oil is the principal soutce of export revenue, followed by cocoa and palm kernel products. Other crops include benniseed, capsicums, cassava, coffee, copra, cotton, ground nuts, guinea-corn, gum arabic, kola-nuts, maize, millet, piassava, rice, rubber, tobacco, and yams. There are important tin and coal-mining industries at Jós and Eriugu respectively. The coal is mainly used within the country. Nigeria is the principal source of supply of the world's requirements of columbite. Timber and hides and skins are other important commodities, though, to satisfy growing domestic demand, timber exports have been stopped since late 1975. Some of the country's more important industrial installations include : steel-rolling mill, at tin smelter, a petroleum refinery, flour mills, a sugar factory, several cement plants and textile factories. Of growing importance is the local assembly of motor vehicles, bicycles, radio sets, fans and sewing machines. Other major manufactures include soap, cigarettes, beer, soft drinks, vegetable oils, canned food, confectionery, metal containers, plywood, footwear, tyres and tubes, paints, pharmaceuticals, plastic goods, glass containers, cement products, and roofing sheets.

Trade.-The principal imports are food, cotton yarn and thread, medicines and drugs, milk, motor vehicles and spares, gencral machinery and iron and steel bars, electrical goods, pipes and sheets. The principal export is crude oil.

Papua New Guinea

Papua New Guinea extends from the equator to Cape Baganowa in the Louisiade Archipelago at 1 y degrees 40 minutes south latitude and from the border with Irian Jaya to 160 degrees east longitude. The total area of Papua New Guinea is 178,260 square miles, of which approximately 152,420 are om the main island.

The main group of islands in Papua New Guinea is the Bismark Archipelago, portion of the Solomon Islands, the Trobriands, the D'Entrecasteaux Islands and the Louisiade Archipelago. The main islands of the Bismark Archipelago are New Britain, New Ireland and Manus. Bougainville is the largest of the Solomon Islands within Papua New Guinea.

Papua New Guinea lies wholly within the tropics between the continents of Asia and Australia and has typically monsoonal climate. Atmospheric temperature and humidity are uniformly high throughout the year. The temperature may be slightly less in the dry areas around Port Moresby. The average rainfall is about 80 inches per year but there are wide variations-from 47 inches per annum at Port Moresby to 200 inches at Kikori in the Gulf of Papua.

Population-At June 1976 the estimated total indigenous population of Papua New Guinea was $2,793,800$. The indigenous inhabitants of the country comprise a great diversity of physical types and a large number of lingustic groups. The population increases by approximately 2.7 per cent. annually.

Capital.-Port Moresby. Estimated population 2x7,000. Other major towns are Lae, Rabaul, Madang, Wewak, Goroka and Mount Hagen.
Flag.- A rectangle divided diagonally from the top of the hoist to the bottom of the fy, the upper segment scarlet and containing soaring yellow bird of paradise. The lower segment is black charged with five white five-pointed stars representing the Southern Cross.

Government.-New Guinea was sighted by Portuguese and Spanish navigators in the early sixteenth century. In 1884 Germany formally took possession of what came to be known as the Trust Territory of New Guinea. In 1914 the Territory was occupied by Australian troops and remained under military administration until 1921. In 1884, - British Protectorate was proclaimed over the southern coast of New Guinea and the islands adjacent thereto. British New Guinea, by which name the Protectorate was called, was annexed outright in 2888 . In 1902 the Territory of British New Guinea was placed under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia. In $19 z 0$ the League of Nations conferred on the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia mandate for the government of the Territory of New Guinea.

New Guinea administered under the Mandate until the Japanese invasion brought about the suspension of civil administration and the devastation of large areas of the country. Papua was administered under the Papua Act until the invasion by the Japanese in 1942 when the civil administration was suspended and an Australian Military Government established for the parts not occupied by the Japanese. With the surrender of the Japanese in 1945. civil administration of Papua

New Guinea was progressively restored between October 1945 and June 1946, under the provisions of the Papua-New Guinea Provisional Administration Act $\mathbf{5 9 4 5 - 1 9 4 6 .}$

The first House of Assembly opened in $x 964$ and had 64 members who included elected indigenous majority and only ten nominated official members.
Elections held in April 1972 returned $\quad$ Coalition Government to the House of Assembly. Elections are at present held every four years. The House of Assembly comprised soo elected Members, 18 from Regional electorates, the remainder from Open electorates. After 1970 there was Egradual assumption of powers by the Papua New Guinea Government, culminating in formal self-government in December 1973. Final reserve powers held by Australia over defence and foreign relations were relinquished to Papua New Guinea in March 1975.
In June 1975, the Coalition Government obtained the approval of the House of Assembly for Papua New Guinea to achieve full independence bill September 16, 1975.

British High Commission

P.O. Box 739, Port Moresby

High Commissioner, His Excellency D. K. Middleton ( $\mathbf{9 7 7}$ ).
Communications.-The most important roads are those linking Lae with the populous and developing Highlands and with Wau, and those in the hinterlands of Port Moresby, Rabaul, Madang and Wewak.
Air Niugini (the National Airline) and Qantas operate regular air services from Australia to Port Moresby. Air Niugini also operates regular serm vices to Manila (Philippines), Honiara (Solomon Islands), Jayapura (Indonesia), Kagoshima (Japan) and Hong Kong. Internal air services are operated by Air Niugini, Douglas Airways, Panga Airways and Talair.

Several shipping companies operate regular cargo and passenger services between Papua New Guinea and Australia, Europe, the Far East and U.S.A. Over zoo coastal vessels $u p$ to $x, 000$ tons provide cargo and limited passenger services between Papua New Guinea main ports, outports, plantations and missions.

Papua New Guinea is linked via the Seacom international cable to Australia, Guam, Hong Kong, Kota Kinabalu and Singapore. Further connections via the Compac cable are made to Canada, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. Direct dialling is available between the major towns and also with Australia. Telex services are also available.

Economy.-Papua New Guinea is essentially an agricultural nation and relies on primary industries for most of its overseas income. Before the mineral resources were tapped in any large quantities its wealth came from the primary crop products of coconuts, rubber, coffee, cocoa, tea and oil palm.

In the last few years the Bougainville copper project has become the country's major overseas money earner. Indications are that extensive mineral deposits exist in other parts of the country. Developers are investigating these and they could contribute significantly to the country's economic prosperity and development in the future.

Of the agricultural products, copra is the largest money earner but it has been losing ground in recent years. Coconuts grow in most coastal areas of Papua New Guinea and all exported nuts leave the country as copra or coconut oil.
Tea is $\begin{array}{r}\text { relative newcomer to Papua New Guinea. }\end{array}$ Experimental plantings were made in the early x950s. The first commercial blocks were leased in 1965. Centrally placed processing factories on the large tea plantations provide facilities for smallholders in the vicinity.
A new crop for Papua New Guinea with considerable export potential is palm oil. Commercial plantings of the oil palm started in New Britain in 1967/68. As with tea, central processing factories on nucleus estates provide points of sale and processing facilities for smallholder blocks in their neighbourhood.

To meet local demand for meat, the Government is increasing extension effort and providing transport assistance to the cattle industry. As result local cattle production has increased in recent years. The cattle industry is supplying about 60 per cent of domestic beef needs.

Secondary industry was originally orientated towards the processing of the local primary products. Emphasis has now swung to industries that service the expanding local market. Amongst those in successful operation are beer brewing, bottle and other packaging factories, paint manufacture, plywood, nails and other wire products, steel drums, clothing, match manufacture, louvred windows and doors, furniture, cement bricks and pipes and many others.

More and more Papua New Guinean entrepreneurs are starting their own businesses or are taking up equity in overseas operated companies. Papua New Guineans are increasingly entering the fields of retail trading, road transport and all aspects of the building industry.

Sierra Leone

Area and Population, ett.-Sierra Leone, with a total land area of 27,925 square miles and a population of $3,002,426$ ( 1974 census), is on the west coast of Africa. The origins of the country date back to the late 18 th century when a project was begun to settle destitute Africans from England on Freetown peninsula. In 1808 the settlement was declared a Crown Colony and became the main base in West Africa for enforcing the 8807 Act outlawing the slave trade. The Colony was also used as a settlement for Africans from North America and the West Indies, and great numbers of Africans rescued from slave ships, also settled there. Their descendants, known as Creoles, still live min Freetown peninsula. The southern half of Sierra Leone is inhabited by peoples whose languages fall into the Mende group; the northern half by the Temne, and smaller groups such © the Limba, Loko, Koranko and Susu.

Capital.-Freetown (population, ${ }^{274,000}$ ). Flag.-Three horizontal stripes of leaf green, white and cobalt blue. National Day.-April 9.

Govermment.-Sierra Leone became Ifully independent state within the Commonwealth on April 27, 196x. On April 19, 1971 Republican Constitution providing for a Ceremonial President was adopted. Two days later on April $=1$ the Constitution was amended to provide for an Executive President and a Prime Minister. Dr. Siaka Stevens was then sworn in President and was inaugurated for $\quad$ further term of 5 years on April 20, 1976. General Elections were last held in May 1977. The All People's Congress Party, who had secured all seats in the 1973 General Elections when the Opposition withdrew their nominations, remained in office, but the Sierra Leone People's Party gained 15 seats. Parliament is at present (July 2977 ) comprised of 77 elected members, 12

Paramount Chiefs and 3 members appointed by the President. Elections remain pending in ${ }^{\text {r }}$ constituencies.

High Commissioner, His Excellency M. H. Morgan (1977).

British Council Represehtative, D. Howell, P.O. Box 124, Tower Hill, Freetown.
Communications.-There are 4,406 miles of roads in the country maintained principally by the Ministry of Works. A bridge has been constructed over the Mano River linking Sierra Leone and Liberia.

The Freetown international airport is situated at Lungi, across the Sierra Leone River from Freetown. The main port is Freetown, which has one of the largest natural harbours in the wortd, and where there is a deep water quay providing about six berths for medium sized ships. There are smaller ports at Pepel (at present not used) and Bonthe.

Radio and television are operated by the Department of Broadcasting of the Sierra Leone Government. There are two shortwave transmitting and receiving stations in Freetown. A new 250 KW radio transmitter has been installed which covers the whole country. Broadcasts are made in several of the more important indigenous languages in addition to English. 'There is also a weekly broadcast in French. The television service was established in 1963 and transmits five hours of programmes each evening. A new transmitter is being built which will cover two-thirds of the country.
Education.-There are 1,080 primary schools in Sierra Leone and $x 08$ secondary schools. Technical education is provided in the two Government Technical Institutes, situated in Freetown and Kenema, in two Trade Centres and in the technical training establishments of the mining companies. Teacher training is carried out at the university, six colleges in the Provinces and in the Milton Margai Training College near Freetown. The University of Sierra Leone ( 2967 ), consists of Fourah Bay College ( 1827 ) and Njala University College ( $\mathbf{2} 964$ ).

Production and Trade. -On the Freetown Peninsula, farming is largely confined to the production of cassava and garden crops, such as maize and vegetables, for local consumption. In the hinterland, the principal agricultural product is rice, which is the staple food of the country, and cash crops such as cocoa, coffee, palm kernels, and ginger.

The economy depends largely on mineral exports ( 66 per cent), mainly diamonds and bauxite and, until 1975 , iron ore. Exports of diamonds in 1976 totalled Le59.7 million compared with Le6 $3^{\circ} 3$ million in 9975.
Total exports in 1976 are estimated at Leri9 millions; imports Lex 55 million.

Singapore

The Republic of Singapore consists of the island of Singapore and 54 smaller islands, covering a total area of 225.6 square miles. Singapore Island is 26 miles long and $x 4$ miles in breadth and is situated just north of the Equator off the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula, from which it is separated by the Straits of Johore. A causeway, carrying a road and railway, crosses the three-quarters of a mile to the mainland. The highest point of the island is 58 I feet above sea level. Climate. The climate is hot and humid and there are no clearly defined seasons. Rainfall averages 96 inches a year and temperature ranges from $24^{\circ}-3 x^{\circ} \mathrm{C}\left(76^{\circ}-87^{\circ} \mathrm{F}\right.$.). Population.-Estimated at $2,278,200$ on June 30,1976 , the population is multiracial with a preponderance of Chinese. The racial groups were estimated in 1976 to be divided as follows: Chinese- $\mathrm{r}, 934,600$; Malays-342,900; Indians, Pakistanis and Ceylonese- 156,500 ; others (Europeans, Eurasians etc.)-44,200. At least 6 Chinese dialects are used and Malay, Mandarin, Tamil and English are the official languages. Flag.-Horizontal bands of red over white; crescent with five five-point stars on red band near stafi. National Day.-August 9.

Government.-Singapore, where Sir Stamford Raffes had first established a trading post under the East India Company in $\mathbf{x 8 9}$, was incorporated with Penang and Malacca to form the Straits Settlements in $\mathbf{1 8 2 6}$. The Straits Settlements became a Crown Colony in 1867. Singapore fell into Japanese hands in 1942 and civil government was not restored until 1946, when it became Iseparate colony. Internal self-government and the title "State of Singapore "were introduced in 2959 . Singapore became a state of Malaysia when the Federation was enlarged in September, $x 963$, but left Malaysia and became an independent sovereign state within the Commonwealth on August 9, r965. Singapore adopted $\quad$ Republican constitution from that date, the Yang di-Pertuan Negara being re-styled President. There is a Cabinet collectively responsible to a fully-elected Parliament of 69 members.

Head of State
President, Benjamin Henry Sheares, G.C.B., assumed office as President, Jan. 2, 197 I (re-elected for second 4-year term from Jan. I, 1975).

Communications.-Singapore is one of the largest seaports in the world, with deep water wharves and ship repairing facilities. Ships also anchor in the roads, unloading into lighters. $57,970,000$ tons of cargo were handled in 1976. The International Airport at Paya Lebar, $7 \frac{1}{2}$ miles from the centre of the city, has a runway $x 3,350$ feet long. There are 28 miles of railway connected to the Malaysian rail system by the causeway across the Straits of Johore, and $x, 337$ miles of roads, $x, 026$ miles of which are metalled roads maintained by the Government. There are both wireless and wired broadcasting services carrying commercial advertising. Television was introduced in 1963 and a colour service on two channels in 1974.

Production, etc.-Historically Singapore's economy was largely based on the sale and distribution of raw materials from surrounding countries and on entrepot trade in finished products. In the last decade, however, new manufacturing industries have been introduced, including ship building and repairing, iron and steel, textiles, footwear, wood products, micro-elecrronics, scientific instruments, detergents, confectionery, pharmaceuticals, petroleum products, sanitary-ware, building materials, domestic electrical appliances, plastic articles, transport equipment, etc. Singapore has also become a financial centre with over seventy banks established in the Republic.
Projects now being undertaken include the reclamation of $x, 850$ acres of land for new International Airport at Changi for the 1980 's; further reclamation of marshy land at Jurong Town where industrial sites and housing development already cover over 34,000 acres; extension of other industrial estates; the building of 148,000 low-cost housing units by the Housing & Development Board by x979; new drainage system throughout the island; and the development of additional water-supply catchments.

Sri Lanka

AREA AND POPULATION

Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon) is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern tip of the peninsula of India and separated from it by narrow strip of shallow water, the Palk Strait. Situated between $5^{\circ} 55^{\circ}-$ $9^{\circ} 50^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. latitude and $79^{\circ} 42^{\prime}-8 \mathrm{I}^{\circ} 52^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. longitude, it has m area of 25,332 square miles, including 33 square miles of inland water. Its greatest length is from north to south, 270 miles; and its greatest width 140 miles, point in Sri Lanka being more than 80 miles from the sea.

At the Census of 197 r , the population was $\mathbf{1 2 , 7 4 7 , 7 5 5}$

Races and Religions

The races of Sri Lanka are low-country Sinhalese, Kandyan Sinhalese, Ceylon Tamils, Indian Tamils, Ceylon Moors, Indian Moors, Burghers and Eurasians, Malays and Veddahs. Generally Sinhalese who trace their descent to low-country district are classified as low-country Sinhalese, others as Kandyan Sinhalese. The Western and Southern Provinces, the Southern (Chilaw) District and the Western parts of Puttalam District are low-country areas; the Central and North Central Provinces, Uva, Sabaragamuwa and Kurunegala are regarded as Kandyan districts. At the 197 I Census 42.8 per cent. of the population were low-country Sinhalese, $29 \cdot \mathrm{x}$ per cent. Kandayan Sinhalese. The religion of the great majority of inhabitants is Buddhism, introduced from India, according to ancient Sinhalese chronicles, in 247 B.C. Next to Buddhism, Hinduism has $\quad$ large following.

PHYSIOGRAPHY

Sri Lanka is compact area, except for the island of Mannar and an almost detached portion in the north, the Jaffna Peninsula and its satellite islands of Delft, Kayts, etc. The relief of the island includes a mountainous area in the south-central region of 3,000 to 7,000 feet above sea level, surrounded by an upland belt of about 1,000 to 3,000 feet and $\quad$ narrow coastal plain broadening out to a vast tract in the north. The coastal plain continues for $\|$ distance out to sea as $\llbracket$ continental shelf and $\|$ coral reef, for the most part submerged, lies close to the coast. On the Central Ridge of the hill country are some of the highest peaks in Sri Lanka, Pidurutalagala ( $8,28 \mathrm{x} \mathrm{ft}$.), Kirigalpotta ( $7,857 \mathrm{ft}$.) and Totapolakanda ( $7,74 \mathrm{r} \mathrm{ft}$ ) and the high plains Nuwara Eliya (over 6,000 ft.), Elk Plains ( $6,000 \mathrm{ft}$.) and Horton Plains (over 7,000 ft.) The other principal peaks are Adam's Peak ( $7,360 \mathrm{ft}$.), Namunukula ( $6,679 \mathrm{ft}$.), Knuckles ( $6, \mathrm{Ir} \mathbf{z} \mathrm{ft}$.) and Haycock ( $\mathbf{z}, \mathbf{1} 67 \mathrm{ft}$.). The Peninsula of Jaffna and the island of Mannar are featureless level stretches.

The Mahaveli-ganga, 208 miles long, is the largest river of Sri Lanka. Rising on the western side of the central hilly ridge, it flows north and east to empty into the Koddiyar Bay on the east coast. Other rivers are the Kelaniganga ( 90 miles), Aruvi-aru (r04), Kala-oya ( $9 z$ ), Yam-oya (88) and Deduru-oya (88). Waterfalls girdle the central mountainous massif and offer some of the best scenic features in the island; Dunhinda (Badulla), Diyaluma (Koslanda), Elgin (Hatton Plateau) and Perawella are among the outstanding falls. Forests, jungle and scrub cover the greater part of the island, often being intermingled. The forests, of varying species, extend from fairly near the coast right into the hill country. In areas over 2,000 feet above sea level grasslands (patanas or talawas) are found. Their total area is some 250 square miles, principally in the Province of Uva.

Climate. -The climate of Sri Lanka is warm throughout the year, with whigh relative humidity. Temperatures average $80^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. during the year in the lowlands, falling off in the hills to $60^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. at elevations over $6,000 \mathrm{ft}$. Day humidity is over 70 per cent, and night humidity over 85 per cent. Temperature ranges vary little between wet and dry seasons. In the hilly areas morning mists sometimes occur. Traces of ground frost appear occasionally at night, at the highest levels, and disappear at sunrise Thunderstorms occasionally give hail, but snow is completely absent. Rainfall is gemerally heavy, with marked regional variations; the heaviest falls ( $200-250$ inches) are recorded on the south-west slopes of the central hills. Some depressional or cyclonic activity occurs generally during October to December.

GOVERNMENT

Early in the sixteenth century the Portuguese landed in Ceylon and founded settlements, eventually conquering much of the country. Portuguese rule in Ceylon lasted 550 years during which the Roman Catholic religion was established among the Sinhalese inhabitants and to some extent Portuguese modes of living adopted. In 1658 , following a twenty-year period of decline, Portuguese rule gave place to that of the Dutch East India Company which was to exploit Ceylon with varying fortunes until 1796.

The Maritime Provinces of Ceylon were ceded by the Dutch to the British on February 16, 1798 , becoming a British Crown Colony in $180 z$ under the terms of the Treaty of Amiens. With the annexation of the Kingdom of Kandy in 18 r 5 , all Ceylon came under British rule.

On February 4, 1948, Ceylon became a self-governing state and a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations under the Ceylon Independence Act 1947. Under this Act the Parliament of Ceylon consisted of (a) The Queen (represented by the Governor-General) and (b) two houses, namely, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Executive consisted of the Prime Minister and a Cabinet chosen from the party which had the majority in the House of Representatives. The House of Representatives constituted itself as the constituent Assembly in July, 1970, to draft $\begin{aligned} \text { republican Constitution for Ceylon. Accordingly, a }\end{aligned}$ new republican Constitution was adopted on May 22, $197^{2}$, and the country was renamed the Republic of Sri Lanka (meaning "Resplendent Island'). The republic continues to be in the Commonwealth.

Swaziland

Swaziland is the smallest of the former three High Commission Territories in Southern Africa. Geographically and climatically, it is divisible into four physiographic provinces; the broken mountainous Highveld of the west, adjacent to the Drakensberg, with altitudes averaging over 4,000 ft., the Middleveld which is mostly mixed farming country, about $2,000 \mathrm{ft}$. lower and the Lowveld, $i$ hot scrubland region, bounded on the east by the Lubombo mountains, with an average altitude of $1,500 \mathrm{ft}$. The Lubombo mountains form the fourth physiographic province. Four rivers, the Komati, Usutu, Mbuluzi and Ingwavuma, fow from west to cast, cutting their way through the Lubombo mountains to the Indian Ocean. The exploitation of these rivers is particularly important to the agricultural development of the middle and bush veld, where irrigation projects are giving the scenery $■$ different aspect. The total area is 6,704 sq. miles and the population (estimated, x976), 493,728.
Caprtal.-Mbabane (population, estimated, 1975, 21,500), the headquarters of the Government, is situated on the hills at an altitude of $3,800 \mathrm{ft}$. Other main townships are: Manzini (population $\mathbf{1 8 , 0 0 0 \text { ), }}$ Hlatikulu ( 2,000 ), Nhlangano ( 3,500 ), Pigg's Peak ( 3,000 ), Havelock $(5,500$ ), Big Bend ( 4,000 ) and Mhlume ( 3,000 ). Flag.-Five horizontal bands, crimson, bearing shield and spears device, bordered by narrow yellow bands; blue bands at top and foot.

Government.-The Kingdom of Swaziland came into being on April 25, 1967, under a new internal selfgovernment constitution and became independent kingdom in membership of the Commonwealth on September 6, 1968. On April $\mathbf{x z}$, 1973, the King, in response to a motion passed by both Houses of Parliament, repealed the Parliamentary Constitution of 1968 and assumed supreme legislative, executive and iudicial power, to be exercised in collaboration with a Council constituted by his Cabinet Ministers.

Communications.-Swaziland's first railway nin completed in 1964. It is about 140 miles long, starting at Ngwenya, 13 miles north-west of Mbabane, and connecting at the Mozambique frontier with an extension to the existing line between Lourenco Marques and Goba. Principal export traffic on the railway is the iron ore mined at Bomvu Ridge, near Ngwenya, by the Swaziland Iron Ore Development Company. A large part of the country's passenger and goods traffic is carried by privately-owned motor transport services. Besides these, the South African Railways Road

Motor Services maintain regular goods and passenger services between Mbabane and Manzini and the main railheads in South Africa which serve Swaziland-Breyten, Piet Retief, Komatipoort, Hectorspruit and Golela. There are post offices, telegraph and telephone offices at all the chief centres.
Production.-Exports in 1974 amounted to E.120,000,000 of which iron ore was worth E. $12,289,000$; sugar $E .46,300,000$; unbleached wood pulp E.3I,328,400; wood and wood products E.5.433.500; asbestos E.5.682,200; citrus fruit E.4.516,700; live animals $E_{.1}, 851,600$; meat and meat products E.2,691,200; hides and skins E.426,400.

Tanganyika, the mainland part of the United Republic of Tanzania (Tanganyika and Zanzibar) occupies the east-central portion of the African continent, between $x^{\circ}-\pi \Sigma^{\circ} 45^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. lat. and $29^{\circ} 20^{\prime}-40^{\circ} 38^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. long. It is bounded on the N. by Kenya and Uganda; on the S.W. by Lake Malawi, Malawi and Zambia; on the S. by Mozambique; on the W. it is bounded by Rwanda, Burundi and Zaire; on the E. the boundary is the Indian Ocean. Tanganyika has I coastline of about 500 miles and an area of 362,820 sq. miles (including $20,650 \mathrm{sq}$. miles of water). The greater part of the country is occupied by the Central African plateau from which rise, among others, Mt. Kilimanjaro, the highest point on the continent of Africa ( $19,340 \mathrm{ft}$ ) and Mt. Meru ( $\mathbf{~} 4,979 \mathrm{ft}$.). The Serengeti National Park, which covers an area of 6,000 sq. miles in the Arusha, Mwanza and Mara Regions, is famous for its variety and number of species of game.

The African population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race. The total population of Tanzania at the Census held in August, 1967, was 12,311,99I (estimated, July, $1973,13,968,000$ ); Africans form $\mathbb{I}$ very large majority, while the Europeans, the Asians, and other non-Africans form 1 small minority. Annual average population growth is 2.7 per cent. The total population of Zanzibar at the 1967 census was 354,815 (estimated, 1973, 403,000). Swahili is the national and official language. English is the second official language, both for educational and government purposes.

Zanzibar.-Formerly ruled by the Sultan of Zanzibar, and $=$ British Protectorate until Dec. 10, 1963. Zanzibar consists of the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. It has a total area of approximately $\mathrm{x}, 000$ sq. miles The islands produce $\quad$ large part of the world's supply of cloves and clove oil, and coconuts, coconut oil and copra are also produced.

Zanzibar became internally self-governing on June 24, 1963, and fully independent on Dec. 10, 1963. The revolutionary Afro-Shirazi party seized power on Jan. 12,1964 , and the Sultan was forced to leave the country. Later Zanzibar united with Tanganyika (see below).

Trinidad and Tobago

area and population

Trinidad，the most southerly of the West Indian Islands，lies close to the north coast of the continent of S．America，the nearest point of Venezuela being 7 miles distant．The island is situated between $10^{\circ} 3^{\prime}-$ $10^{\circ} 50^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$ ．lat．and $60^{\circ} 55^{\prime}-6 \mathrm{I}^{\circ} 56^{\prime} \mathrm{W}$ ．long．，and is about 50 miles in length by 37 in width，with an area of 1,864 sq．miles．Population．－Of the population（estimated at $1,027,900$ in Dec．1974）， 43 per cent．are African， 36 per cent East Indian，$z$ per cent．European，i per cent．Chinese，and the rest mixed．
The island was discovered by Colombus in 1498 ，was colonized in 1532 by the Spaniards，capitulated to the British under Abercromby in 1797，and was ceded to Britain under the Treaty of Amiens（March 25， 1802）．Two mountain systems，the Northern and Southern Ranges，stretch across almost its entire width and in third，the Central Range lies somewhat diagonally across its middle portion；otherwise the island mostly flat. The highest peaks are in the Northern Range (Aripo 3,085 ft., El Tucuche $3,072 \mathrm{ft}$.). The climate is tropical with temperatures ranging from $8 z^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. by day to $74^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. by night and $I$ rainfall averaging $82 \cdot 7$ inches $■$ year. There is a well-marked dry season from January to May and a wet season from June to December. The nights are invariably cool. The main tourist season is from December to April.

Tobago lies between $I I^{\circ} 9^{\prime}$ and $x x^{\circ} 2 I^{\prime} \mathrm{N}$. lat. and between $60^{\circ} 30^{\prime}$ and $60^{\circ} 50^{\prime} \mathrm{W}$. long., about 75 miles south-east of Grenada, ig miles north-east of Trinidad, and r20 miles S.W. of Barbados. It was ceded to the British Crown in $18 \times 4$ and amalgamated with Trinidad in 1888 . The island is 26 miles long, and $7 \frac{1}{2}$ wide, and has an mit of ix6 sq miles. The population was 33,333 in the 196 census and was estimated at 33,950 in Dec. 1974. It is one of the healthiest of the West Indies and a popular tourist resort. The main town is $\Psi$ Scarborough.

Other Islands.-Corozal Point and Icacos Point, the N.W. and S.W. extremities of Trinidad, enclose the Gulf of Paria, and west of Corozal Point lie several islands, of which Chacachacare, Huevos, Monos and Gaspar Grande are the most important.

CAPITAL.-Port of Spain (population approximately 100,000 ) is the administrative centre of the island. Programmes currently being planned to extend and improve the supply of utilities to the city which are at present inadequate to meet the demand largely created by recent building development. A town of importance is San Fernando, about 33 miles south of the capital (population about 50,000 ), which is emerging as the business centre of Trinidad, near which a number of large industrial plants are being constructed.

Flag.-Black diagonal stripe bordered with white stripes, running from top by staff, all on $=$ red field, National Day.-August 3 (Independence Day).

Government

The Territory of Trinidad and Tobago became an independent state and a member of the British Commonwealth on August 3x, 1962, under the Trinidad and Tobago Independence Act, 1962. There is a Parliament consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives with an elected Speaker and 36 members. The Senate has 24 members of whom $x_{3}$ are appointed on the advice of the Prime Minister, 4 on the advice of the Leader of the Opposition and 7 on the advice of the Prime Minister after consultation with religious, economic and social organizations. Legislation was passed in April 1976 under which Trinidad and Tobago would become a Republic with - President as Head of State.

Education.-The system of education has been reformed to co-ordinate more closely the nursery, primary, junior secondary, senior secondary and university stages. The system provides for education of the pupils from 4-5 in nursery schools, 5-15 (or $\mathbf{x 5}^{5}$ ) in primary schools. Admission to secondary schools ( $\mathrm{II}-\mathrm{x} 8$ ) is by common entrance examination at II years. A Primary School leaving Examination can be taken at 15 . Junior secondary schools catering for the II-I4 group are being introduced to ease the shortage of places at secondary level. A General Certificate of Education giving admission to the University of the West Indies is taken in senior secondary schools. The Government Polytechnic Institute was established in 1959. There are two Technical Institutes, I government Vocational Centre and six Teacher Training Colleges. One of three branches of the University of the West Indies is ten miles from Port of Spain, : St. Augustine.

Communications.-There are some 4,000 miles of all-weather roads. The only general cargo port is Port of Spain but there are specialized port facilities elsewhere for landing crude oil, loading refinery products and sugar and for landing, storing and trans-shipping bauxite and cement. Regular shipping services call at Port of Spain, which is also - port for the many small inter-island craft. International scheduled airlines, including the national airline, B.W.I.A., use Piarco International Airfort outside Port of Spain. A local airline fies between Piarco and Crown Point Airport in Tobago.

There are two commercial broadcasting stations, one rediffusion station and one commercial television station. There is an internal telephone system and good external telephone and telegraph connections.

Production.-Oil is extracted from land and sea wells for refining locally and large quantities of crude oil are also imported. The most important agricultural crop is sugar, but there is a growing diversification into other crops for local use and export. There is considerable industrialization, which already includes the manufacture of cement, chemicals, tyres, clothing, soap, furniture and foodstuffs.

Total exports in 1975 amounted to $T T $ 3,847$ million, of which $T T $ 3,345$ million was on account of exports of crude oil and petroleum products. Other main exports were sugar and sugar preparations, ammonium compounds, tar oils, coffee and cocoa beans and fertilizers. Total imports in 1975 were $T T $ 3,232$ million, of which $T T $ 1,629$ million was accounted for by imports of crude oil.

Uganda

Situated in Eastern Africa, Uganda is flanked by Zaire, the Sudan, Kenya and on the south by Tanzania and $R$ wanda. Large parts of Lake Victoria, Idi Amin Dada and Mobutu Sese Seko are within its boundaries, - Lakes Kyoga and Salisbury and the course of the River Nile from its outlet from Lake Victoria to the Sudan frontier post at Nimule. Despite its tropical location, Uganda's climate is tempered by its situation some $3,000 \mathrm{ft}$. above sea level, and well over that altitude in the highlands of the Western and Eastern Regions. Temperatures seldom rise above $85^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. $\left(29^{\circ} \mathrm{C}\right.$.) or fall below $60^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$. ( $15^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$.). The rainfall averages about 50 inches $\|$ year which means that the country is covered in I lush green cloak for most of the year. Uganda has three National Parks with $\quad$ wide variety of wildlife and flora.

Area and Population.-Uganda has an area of 91,000 sq. mile (water and swamp 16,400 sq. miles) and population (estimated, 1974) of $\mathrm{xI,172,000} \mathrm{} .\mathrm{The} \mathrm{official} \mathrm{language} \mathrm{of} \mathrm{Uganda} \mathrm{is} \mathrm{Swahili}$, is commonly spoken and is used in commercial circles. The main local vernaculars are of Bantu, Luo and Hamitic origins. Ki-Swahili is generally understood in trading centres. CApITAL.-Kampala (population of Greater Kampala, 33r,000). FLAG.-Six horizontal stripes of black, yellow and red (repeated) with a crested emblem on a white orb in the centre. National Day.-October 9 (Independence Day).

Govermment.-Uganda became an independent state and 1 member of the Commonwealth on October 9,1962 , after some 70 years of British rule. A Republic was instituted on September 8, 1967, under an executive President, assisted by - Cabinet of Ministers.
Early on Jan. 25, 197r, while the President, A. Milton Obote, was in Singapore at the 197x Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Meeting, the Uganda Army, with the co-operation of the police forces, assumed control of the country. All political activity in Uganda was suspended. On Jan. 26, 1971, Maj.-Gen. Idi Amin, the Army Commander, proclaimed himself Head of State, having previously announced that there would be in early return to civilian rule "after free and fair general elections". There was some short-lived military opposition in northern parts of Uganda, by troops loyal to Dr. Obote. On Feb. 2, Gen. Amin announced the suspension of certain parts of the Constitution, dissolution of Parliament and the formation of a Defence Councll under his own Chairmanship.
President and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces and Minister of Defence, Field-Marshal Al-Hajii Idi Amin Dada, borm x926, assumed office Jan. 26,197x.

Diplomatic relations with Uganda were suspended by the United Kingdom in the summer of 1976.

Education.-Education is I joint undertaking by the Government, Local Authorities and, to some extent, Voluntary Agencies. The education system is divided into three distinct sectors-Primary, Secondary and Post-Secondary. The Primary course covers the first seven years of schooling. There were $\mathrm{a}^{3}$ estimated 786,899 pupils in grantaided Primary Schools in 1972. Education at secondary level falls into four categories-Secondary schools, which are of the Grammar type of school with a course extending over six years to Higher School Certificate; Technical Schools; Farm Schools; and Primary Teacher Training Colleges. Further education is provided at the Uganda Technical College, the National Teachers' College, the Uganda College of Commerce; and Agricultural Colleges. There are also in addition to these, several departmental training schools training staff for different departments. The Medical Department alone has eight such schools training nurses, midwives, medical assistants, health inspectors, and other medical staff.

University level education is available at Makerere University, Kampala: the University College, Nairobi, in Kenya, and the University College, Dar es Salaam, in Tanzania. Uganda students also co to universities and colleges outside East Africa for higher education.

Communications.-There is a first-class international airport at Entebbe, with direct flights to many places in Africa, Asia and Europe. There are 10 other state airports and airfields in Uganda. There are 1,700 kilometres of bituminized and 25,000 kilometres of gravel roads. Nearly 75 per cent. of all trunk roads are metalled, the remainder and all feeder roads are gravel roads of good standard. A railway network joins the capltal to the western, eastern and northern centres. A Treaty for East African co-operation was signed by the Presidents of the United Republic of Tanzania, the Sovereign State of Uganda and the Republic of Kenya nul June 6, 1967. The Treaty came into force on December 1,3967 . By this Treaty the Governments of Tanzania, Uganda and Kenya established among themselves an East African community and, an integral part of such community, an East African Common Market. Because of strains between the three member states and financial difficulties within the corporations, a commission of enquiry known the Demas Commission was set up to review the treaty and to make recommendations for the future. Its report was submitted to the three states in December 1976 but its contents have not been made public. Decentralisation of some corporations has already taken place. Whilst they are all nominally still in existence at the time of writing, organisations such E Kenya Railways, Tanzania Railways, Uganda Airways and Kenya Airways have been set up and are operating autonomously.

Trade, etc.-The principal export commodities un: coffee, cotton, copper, animal feeding-stuffs, hides and skins and unmanufactured tobacco. Other crops grown include sugar and groundnuts. Hydroelectric power is produced from the Owen Falls power station which has capacity of $150,000 \mathrm{kWh}$. Plans are under way for increasing the output of electricity.

Zambia

The Republic of Zambia lies on the plateau of Central Africa between the longitudes $22^{\circ}$ E. and $33^{\circ} 33^{\prime} \mathrm{E}$. and between the latitudes $8^{\circ} 15^{\prime} \mathrm{S}$. and $18^{\circ} \mathrm{S}$. It has an area of 290,587 square miles within boundaries 3.515 miles in length and a population (sample Census, 1974) of $4,696,000$, including about 50,000 nonAfricans.

With the exception of the valleys of the Zambesi, the Luapula, the Kafue and the Luangwa Rivers, and the Luano valley, the greater part of Zambia has a flat to rolling topography, with elevations varying from 3,000 to 5,000 feet above Ele level, but in the north-eastern districts the plateau rises to occasional altitudes of over 6,000 feet. In many localities the evenness of the plateau is broken by hills, sometimes occurring as chains which develop into areas of broken country.

Although Zambia lies within the tropics, and fairly centrally in the great land of the African continent its elevation relieves it from the extremely high temperatures and humidity usually associated with tropical countries. The lower reaches of the Zambesi, Luangwa and Kafue rivers in deeper valleys do experience high humidity and trying extremes of heat, but these areas are remote and sparsely populated.

Government.-At the dissolution of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, on December 31, 1963, Northern Rhodesia (as Zambia was then known) achieved internal self-government under a new constitution. Zambla became an independent republic with the Commonwealth on October 24, 1964-75 years after coming under British rule and nine months after achieving internal self-government. Until December 1972, when the 1964 Constitution was superseded, the country had multi-party constitution. In July 1973, Inew Constitution was introduced, providing that the United National Independence Party shall be the only party.
Capital.-Lusaka, situated in the Central Province. Population (estimated, 1976), $4^{83}, 000$. Other centres are Livingstone, Kabwe, Chipata, Mazabuka, Mbala, Kasama, Solwezi, Mongu, Mansa, Ndola, Luanshya, Mufulira, Chingola, Chililabombwe, Kalulushi and Kitwe, the last six towns being the main centres on the Copperbelt. FiAG.-Green with three small vertical stripes, red, black and orange (next fy); eagle device on green above stripes.
President, Dr. Kenneth David Kaunda, assumed office October 24, 1964; re-elected, December 1973.
