The impressively finished, large diameter steering wheel has a horn ring and a self-cancelling direction indicator control. The gear-change lever and headlight beam dip-switch are mounted on the telescopic steering column.

Two large dials, set immediately in front of the driver, incorporate all the essential instruments. The dials have anti-glare lighting for night driving. The large glove-box is concealed by a drop-flat cover, whilst there is also a useful cubby-hole on each side. Provision is made for H.M.V. car radio, the speaker grille being built into the fascia panel.

The rear corner roof panels are remarkably narrow because of the exceptional width of the curved rear window. This effectively reduces blind spots when reversing.

The lid of the luggage locker is counter-balanced for ease of opening. At night the lid handle is clearly illuminated by the number-plate light to facilitate unlocking.

People are certain to take more than one look at the distinctive Wolseley Six-Ninety. Capturing in its modern styling the essence of gracious living, yet retaining a traditionally conservative appearance, this car gains immediate distinction on looks alone. Low sweeping lines give exterior evidence of unusual spaciousness and the interior fully justifies this impression with luxurious roominess. The Wolseley Six-Ninety IS a truly beautiful car.

Wide-opening doors give by their elegant appearance and quality finish a hint of the luxury that lies within. One can alight from this car with all the grace and poise demanded by the most formal occasion.

Three persons can travel comfortably and safely in the front compartment. The wide front seat is of the divided type allowing individual adjustment when there are only two persons travelling in the compartment.
